Acquittal of Judge Stirs State.

Act on Chicago Judges

Rulings affecting two judges of Chicago's Municipal court are expected this week.

Judge Eugene L. McGarry, whose indictments on charges of conspiracy and malfeasance in office were dismissed last Tuesday, is expected to resume his seat on the bench today. However, he faces renewal of an inquiry begun several months ago by the Chicago Bar association. The association's judiciary committee is expected to act this week.

Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court will rule tomorrow whether answers of Municipal Judge Eugene J. Holland concerning real estate deals with the slain Edward J. O'Hare would be incriminating. Judge Holland had refused to answer questions on these transactions before the grand jury.

New York, Nov. 26.—Demands are growing for new legal weapons with which to clean out widespread corruption in the courts of New York state. They arise from the recent mysterious fiasco in which the state senate refused to remove County Judge George Washington Martin from the bench.

Judge Martin.

Martin was acquitted by the senate on charges of corruption and general unfitness for judicial office. State Senator Thomas C. Desmond, Orange county Republican who voted for the ouster, announced today that at the next session of the legislature he would introduce legislation designed to raise the standards of both bench and bar.

One of the proposals would disqualify judges or candidates for the bench who allow judgments against them to remain unsatisfied, or who have been adjudicated bankrupt. Another would permit the Court of Appeals, the state's highest judicial tribunal, to remove judges. Senator Desmond declared: "Judges, like Caesar's wife, should be above suspicion."

A different view was taken by Senator Frederic R. Coudert Jr., Manhattan Republican who likewise voted to end Martin's judicial career. Coudert said he doubted a change of methods would be effective and voiced the opinion the remedy lay with the voters.

Judge Martin, Yale '97, is senior judge of the Kings (Brooklyn) County court, and has been since 1920. The judgeship is a $25,000 a year post. The high salary, higher than that of the justices of the United States Supreme court, was obtained by the Tammany machine some years ago in order to raise the ante on assessments of judges for political campaigns.

Lehman Convenes Senate.

Upon recommendation of Gov. Herbert H. Lehman, the senate convened for the judicial ouster proceedings, the first in 70 years.

It was a question of ethics rather than criminality. Special Prosecutor Harlan Amen, however, brought out testimony that Judge Martin consorted socially with Leo Byk, notorious slot machine king of Brooklyn. John P. Carroll, the judge's secretary, was Byk's lawyer in his periodic tilts with the law.

Witnesses testified that Martin bestowed such plums as appointments to lunacy commissions upon relatives and political favorites, had his private bills paid by appointees and by an attorney practicing before him, and allowed personal relations to sway the conduct of cases. He acted, witnesses asserted, as the front for wildcat stock speculations, including one involving an odorless garbage pail. His grocery, butcher, and clothing bills remained unpaid.

A jury had acquitted Martin on charges of taking a bribe in an abortion case last spring, and the judge's

SOUTHERN CALIFORNIA HAS A GLOW ON; SO HAS THE WEATHER MAN

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26 (AP).—Southern California, which leans to the spectacular, experienced a "colossal" sunrise today.

David Greenfield, federal weather observer, was excited about it, and called it the most unusual sunup of the year. He told newspaper men:

"At 6 a. m., while it was still dark, cirriform, or ice clouds, hanging in high bands, caught the first pink rays of the sun, which was far below the horizon then. As the color deepened, the rich blue night background slowly merged with the golden east, forming violets and purples of all shades.

"At 6:20 a. m. the eastern horizon became a vivid orange that tinted even the western clouds with a soft lilac glow."

BLIMP TO TEST REFUELING AND RESCUE AT SEA

Lakehurst, N. J., Nov. 26 (AP).—Three experiments in rescuing persons and in raising fuel from a ship to an airship will be made tomorrow by the United States navy blimp J-4.

An "injured" seaman is to be raised from an open coast guard surf boat to the blimp held 50 feet in the air by a sea anchor. The seaman will be hoisted in a specially devised stretcher and tackle. A sea anchor is a large canvas sack which is dropped to the surface of the water.

In the second test gasoline is to be lifted from the deck of a merchant ship, and in the third experiment, an effort is to be made to raise a "shipwrecked" sailor and his rubber lifeboat to the J-4.

The tests are to be made off Manasquan river inlet, five miles at sea.

MISSIONARY AND 1,300 CANNIBALS MEET; NO FEAST

DARWIN, Australia Nov. 26.—Gordon Sweeney, Methodist lay missionary, who patroled the district between the Blyth and Liverpool rivers in Arnhemland, reports the discovery of cannibalism among three tribal groups. He tramped 230 miles and took a launch to the heads of the Liverpool and Tomkinson rivers and counted 1,300 natives living under the same social system. The aborigines eat the bodies of persons killed in battle or dying in other "fortuitous ways," believing consumption of the flesh increases their skill as hunters. There was no evidence that they kill one another for food.

Girls: Don't Get Fired Before You're Hired!

Why are girls hired or fired? As secretary, typist, salesgirl, telephone operator? This is the first of a series of articles, intended as a guide for the young girl looking for work, in which employers and employment bureaus analyze the girls they hire, reject, or recommend.

BY MARCIA WINN.

Jobs are relatively scarce. Employment is better than it was five years ago, but it still is slow. And 8 out of 10 girls today lose jobs before they have them.

They have sufficient knowledge. They have the requisite skill. They almost have the jobs, but they lose them by a host of seeming intangibles.

A girl may lose a job for no other reason than the wagon-red nail polish on her long, pointed talons. She may lose it because she has no polish on dirty, unkempt nails.

Hands Noticed First.

Employers frankly say they notice a girl's hands first. Four out of five say they detest vivid polish and claw-like nails. They like neat, clean, well tended nails, and the girls they hire have them.

A girl may lose a job if her stocking seam is twisted or a big hole yawns at the heel. She may lose it if her legs are bare. She may lose it because her slip sags below her dress, or she may lose it because she wears no slip.

"As a girl dresses," one employer said, "so she is. To me, anyway."

Appearance 50 Per Cent.

If careless in her dress, he and others maintained, she will be careless in her work. Appearance, they estimate, means 50 per cent in their rating.

She may lose a job because of the peroxide on her curls or because her g-r-r-r-reat big eyes are embroidered heavily in mascara. She may lose it because of a grotesque hat or because she wears no hat.

A girl loses a job if she seems bored during the interview. She loses it if she seems too aggressive. She loses it if she flaunts her brilliance too willingly. ["We want average minds," one complained, "not scholars."] She loses it because she eyes with undue interest and sparkle the men passing thru the office. ["The charmer," confided one, "must be stopped before she starts."]

Point of View Variable.

The girl rarely knows why she is rejected. The point of view of an employer is as variable and as unpredictable as a weathercock.

On the whole, employers do not want glamor. They don't want beauty. Both, they say, may become troublesome.

What they ask—and what they employ and keep and promote—are neatness, directness, simplicity of attire, sincerity, and an eager, alert look.

It is just as well, too, when looking for a job, to restrain your tongue, if you are inclined to be flip; to be careful about your grammar, as it is of utmost importance, and to deposit your chewing gum in the first "Help Keep Our City Clean" receptacle you pass. It all helps.

FRANCE PUTS INDIAN SIGN ON AN AMERICAN WHO PLAYED COWBOY

New York, Nov. 26 [Special].—George Carl Magg, a poet, former rancher and writer of cowboy stories, arrived on the American liner President Polk today from Marseilles, where he was arrested and held for four hours while wearing a cowboy costume. He was wearing the suit today.

When the President Polk put in at Marseilles on Nov. 12, French authorities questioned its passengers. Magg appeared before his inquisitors in the cowboy suit. They laughed. Magg resented this so vehemently, he said, that he was sent ashore in custody of a squad of marines, questioned for four hours, and released with an apology just in time to catch the boat.

BURY KINGMAKER OF NEW ORLEANS WITH ZULU POMP

New Orleans, La., Nov. 26 (AP).—John Metoyer, the kingmaker, who never came closer to splendor than riding in a broken-down barouche in a Mardi gras parade, was the center today of as glittering a funeral as any New Orleans Negro ever had.

Metoyer was the founder of the Zulu Social Air and Pleasure club 28 years ago. The members, like himself, were Negro porters and bartenders.

Every year he helped select one of them to be king in the Zulu carnival parade, the colored folks' Mardi gras. He would have been king himself this year for the first time, but he died last Tuesday.

As soon as Metoyer died the Zulus planned to march in the funeral procession carrying coconuts, while the six pallbearers would wear their Mardi gras hulu skirts. Then Metoyer's family said no.

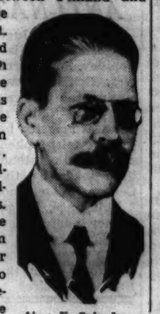
Today six tuxedoed pall bearers marched beside his shining hearse. All the other Zulus followed in their Sunday best. A ten-piece band was next, followed by a string of limousines.

SINK PILSUDSKI AND BRITISH ARMED SHIP; FINNS KILLED 4 REDS, RUSSIA CHARGES

Withdraw Troops, Moscow Warns Helsingfors.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HELSINGFORS, Finland, Nov. 26.—The crisis between Finland and Russia grew more acute tonight. Russia charged that Finnish troops on the Karelian isthmus had opened fire with artillery on soviet forces, killing four soldiers and wounding nine others. The soviet charge was made both in a broadcast over the Moscow radio and in a note delivered to the Finnish minister in Moscow, Baron Aarno Yrjo-Koskinen.



Aimo K. Cajander.

Russia demanded in its note that Finland immediately withdraw its troops 12 to 16 miles from the border on the isthmus. Submission to such a request would mean abandonment by the Finns of their frontier fortifications.

Finland emphatically denied the soviet charge, just as it has consistently in the past refused to knuckle under to its powerful neighbor. One government spokesman said that the Russian demand was considered a "friendly proposal," but that it would go unrecognized.

Criticism in Soviet Press.

The emergency developed suddenly after several days of incessant criticism of Finland in the soviet press over the Finns' refusal to grant Russia territorial concessions in the Gulf of Finland and on its northern frontier. The negotiations seeking a solution of this issue were suspended Nov. 13, with Finland doing the suspending.

The Moscow radio called the alleged shooting a "brazen provocation by Finland against the U. S. S. R." The incident, Russia said, occurred near the village of Mainila, which is near the Finnish-soviet frontier. The border on the isthmus, which reaches between the Gulf of Finland and Lake Ladoga, is less than 30 miles from Leningrad, whose defenses the Russians are eager to make more secure.

Say Seven Shots Fired.

Seven cannon shots were fired, the Russians said, killing three soldiers and one commander and wounding the nine others, among whom were two commanders. The soviet note said the firing began suddenly at 3:45 p. m. The note also said that Russia was "not inclined to magnify this abominable act of attack on the part of Finnish troops, probably badly managed by the Finnish command."

Some sources in Helsingfors hinted that the Russians may have been killed accidentally during artillery practice.

The incident was believed in official quarters to be part of the soviet campaign to unnerve the Finns, but the effort seemed foredoomed to failure. The Finnish general staff, it was said, has been expecting such accusations.

Finns questioned by THE TRIBUNE tonight declared they were not alarmed by the growing virulence of the communist press campaign against their country and its leaders. This campaign attained its greatest intensity today in an attack in Pravda, organ of the communist party in Moscow.

Calls Premier a Court Fool.

Pravda called Premier Aimo K. Cajander a court fool, a vassal, and a clown, who represented international imperialists and church circles. The paper said the premier was receiving their hidden support for what it called his belligerent, war provoking attitude toward Russia.

The premier, Pravda charged, wept

WE WILL WIN WAR BY APRIL, HITLER TELLS HIS FRIENDS

Chamberlain Speaks

Prime Minister Chamberlain of Great Britain broadcast a speech to America and the British empire yesterday. He declared the aim of Britain and France in waging war on Germany was the defeat of "that aggressive, bullying mentality which seeks to dominate other peoples by force." Once Germany is defeated, he said, Britain and France hope to establish a "new Europe" in which all "will approach their difficulties with good will and mutual tolerance." Complete text appears on page 5.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Adolf Hitler, in talking to friends, expressed the conviction today that by April the war will be over and Germany will be the victor.

He bases this belief on what he and his friends claim is the "German superiority in military, political, and diplomatic fields as well as a greater spirit of enterprise in these three fields."

His military claims are based on the spectacular success of the German campaign in Poland, German raids on the "lairs of the navy of the British lion, such as Scapa Flow and the Firth of Forth," and on what Germans describe as "further surprises in military matters which will stagger the world even more than the German magnetic torpedoes and mines."

Will Accept Hardships.

Politically, the master of Germany is convinced, his friends say, that the "German people have been drilled to discipline and will accept all the hardships without muttering, while if the British masses have to pull their belts tighter and must submit to strict regimentation, they will rebel."

Germans believe their "friends in England" can succeed in convincing the British Labor party that the working people are being exploited by the upper classes and that labor will compel Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, to resign. If this happens, Nazis say, "it will be possible for us to come to terms with Chamberlain or whatever other government is formed without Churchill and his friends."

In the diplomatic field, Germans declare, they are preparing new surprises which are "fully as spectacular as the Russo-German treaty."

Near Treaty with Iran.

I understand that negotiations with Iran [Persia] have progressed so far that the Germans hope to be able to announce a German-Iranian treaty "even more far reaching than the Russian-Germany treaty."

Iran is an important key state in the wide plan of Moscow and Berlin. From there the Russians and Germans can threaten the British empire at its weakest spot, India, and the rich oil fields of Iran.

The Iranian move—if it becomes a reality—will further help the Germans and Russians threaten and intimidate Turkey and the states of southeastern Europe which to date have not completely buckled down to German demands.

Engineers Going Ahead.

Germans say that a great number of German engineers and experts in all walks of life have been arriving in Iran ever since the Russian-German agreement was signed.

The English have important holdings in Iran and the Germans have been trying very hard to obtain concessions which would enable them to "cripple English activities in these fields."

Germany's ambassador to Russia, Count Frederic Werner von Schuienburg, prepared the ground for the projected treaty when he was in Iran as a special delegate of Hitler at the marriage of the crown prince of Iran to an Egyptian princess.

Germans also believe they have scored a victory in Italy where Premier Mussolini has been making up his mind recently whether he should side with Hitler or the French-British front. The Germans say Mussolini now is fully on their side since the "Germans succeeded in convincing him that the alliance with Russia does not mean Moscow has the upper hand but that Germany will continue her old policy."

Polish Steamer Hit by Torpedo in North Sea.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—German relations with The Netherlands are becoming increasingly tense following the German claim that a ship sunk recently was a "British Q-boat sailing under the Dutch flag," while in reality it was a Dutch steamer. The Dutch crew landed in The Netherlands after seven and a half days in an open boat.

[The Q-boats are designed to fight and destroy submarines. They usually are small, armed vessels but disguised as merchantmen in order to decoy submarines.]

BULLETIN.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 27, Monday (AP).—A 300 ton German trawler sank today after striking a mine off the Danish island of Langeland. A Danish torpedo boat searched for survivors.

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP).—Merchant and war fleets of the British and French empires suffered new blows today in the sinking of the Polish luxury liner Pilsudski, 14,294 tons, and the British armed merchant cruiser, Rawalpindi, 16,697 tons, with the reported combined loss of 287 men. These were the two largest commercial victims of the sea warfare to date.

Capt. Stankiewicz.

The admiralty announced that all but 17 of the officers and crew of the Rawalpindi had gone down with the vessel. About 300 men were reported aboard, and the loss was estimated at 280. The cause and place of the Rawalpindi sinking was not disclosed.

[An unconfirmed London report said the Rawalpindi was sunk by "enemy action."]

Sunk in North Sea.

Seven persons were missing from the Pilsudski, which was torpedoed in the North sea.

A British destroyer and other vessels landed 171 survivors of the Pilsudski at a northeast coast port.

Capt. Hamart Stankiewicz of the Pilsudski, who was the last person to leave his ship, died after a daring high dive from the bridge into the frigid sea.

[A British press association report said the Pilsudski was sunk by a mine, but the Polish Telegraph agency in a dispatch from Paris and the British Broadcasting corporation in a radio broadcast said the Pilsudski was torpedoed.]

A British steamer previously reported sunk by a mine was identified today as the 1,537 ton Hookwood. The ship sank Thursday off the Kent coast and two of the crew were reported missing.

A pilot boat ran aground in the Mersey river near Southport today and 20 men drowned.

The British trawler William Humphries was reported shelled by a submarine, and 13 men who took to lifeboats have been missing since Tuesday.

Swedish Tanker Disabled.

Another report told of the damage of the 1,289 ton British steamer Stangate in a collision off the southeast coast. An attempt was made to beach her.

The 6,336 ton Swedish tanker Gustaf E. Reuter was reported disabled today off the northeast coast of England after striking a mine. Nineteen of its crew were rescued by a trawler.

The Pilsudski, the first trans-Atlantic liner built for the Polish republic and which had accommodations for 760 passengers, was under charter to the British admiralty. She was in New York harbor when the war broke out, and remained there for a while before being taken to England.

Vessel Built in Italy.

The Pilsudski was built in 1935 thru a barter agreement with Italy for about 6 million dollars in Polish goods, mostly coal. It plied principally between New York and Gdynia, Poland.

The Pilsudski was the object of great national pride when it made its maiden voyage to New York in September, 1935. The vessel was named for the late Marshal Josef Pilsudski, who was dictator of Poland until his death in 1935.

The Pilsudski normally carried a crew of 307 men. It was 498 feet long and had a 70 foot beam. It was constructed sturdily to ride thru the ice encountered in the Baltic and North Atlantic. Space for 760 passengers was contained in the ship's 318 staterooms.

War's Heaviest Toll.

Ten water tight compartments and a water tight B deck were features which were considered as making the Pilsudski almost "sink proof" when it was built.

The Rawalpindi was a former P. & O. [Peninsular and Oriental] mail ship. It was converted into an armed merchant cruiser and put into service to supplement regular British warships. The ship was built in 1925 and its home port was Greenock. Her usual run had been from London to Yokohama.

The Rawalpindi at the start of the war was brought into drydock, her furnishings removed and guns emplaced. When she sailed again she was painted gray, naval officers were in command, she was offensively armed and she flew a white ensign.

The thirteenth week of the war thus opened with heavy losses for the empires' side on the heels of the most destructive week of sea warfare in the current conflict. Twenty-nine ships—British and French, neutral and German—had been reported sunk in the seven days thru Saturday.

The largest victim to date was the British battleship Royal Oak, 29,150 tons, which was torpedoed on Oct. 14 with loss of 786 lives.

In the commercial field the 13,581 ton British liner Athenia, sunk on the first day of the war with 112 lives lost, had been the largest passenger liner to go down, while the French tanker Emile Miguet, 14,115 tons, was the largest commercial vessel. She was torpedoed Oct. 13.

Welcomed by 40,000 Persons.

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 26 [Special].—The liner Pilsudski was the first ship flying the Polish flag to sail up the Delaware river. Nearly 40,000 persons, many of them Poles by birth or descent, were on hand at the pier when the vessel arrived for a two day "good will" call at this port in March, 1938.

When the Pilsudski docked Capt. Zdenko Knoetgen held open house and Polish-Americans by the hundreds, many of them dressed in native costumes, went aboard to see the modern features of the ship.

'ASKS PRESIDENT CUT DIPLOMATIC LINK TO RUSSIA

New York, Nov. 26 [Special].—Matthew Woll, president of America's Wage Earners Protective conference and vice president of the American Federation of Labor, called upon President Roosevelt today to withdraw our recognition of soviet Russia and to "take such other steps as may be appropriate for the security of the United States with respect to the activities of the communist party and its leaders in this country."

In an open letter to the President Woll said the soviet pledge to refrain from any form of interference in the internal affairs of the United States and to forbid the formation here of any organization seeking overthrow of our form of government had been flagrantly violated. The pledge was given by Maxim Litvinov, then soviet commissar for foreign affairs, on Nov. 16, 1933, Woll said.

Belgium Has Ration Cards Ready for Distribution

BRUSSELS, Belgium, Nov. 26 (AP).—The newspaper Derniere Heure said today the Belgian government shortly will begin distribution of ration cards. A cabinet minister was quoted as saying the rationing will not begin immediately, but 8,000,000 cards will be placed in homes as precaution.

crocodile tears in a recent speech about failure of the Finnish-soviet negotiations. The attack expressed a hope that the Finnish people would put an end to the allegedly provocative attitude of their government and find a mutual language for negotiations with Russia.

Ponder Moscow Intentions.

MOSCOW, Nov. 26 (AP).—Russian charges that Finnish artillery fire had killed four soviet soldiers and wounded nine others on the Karelian isthmus today provoked a flood of speculation on what might be the immediate intentions of Russian leaders toward Finland.

Observers said that Russia probably had nearly 1,000,000 troops massed along the borders of Finland, whose entire population is not much more than three times that figure. Finland, they said, is known as a land "of a thousand lakes" and that these waters now are frozen, easing the way for troops equipped with snowshoes.

Observers also said that the growing campaign of the inspired soviet press against Finland was similar to that which was launched against Poland just before the invasion of that country on Sept. 17.

Signal for Invasion Seen.

At any rate, it was feared that a pretext for an invasion had been reported, if an invasion were intended. Some foreign quarters thus interpreted today's events as a signal for soviet troops, massed along the Finnish borders, to march in and to cap the diplomatic conquests of the shores of the Baltic that were begun with Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania.

Tonight a spokesman at the Finnish legation tried for more than an hour to get in touch with Helsingfors, his capital, by telephone before succeeding. Finally, at midnight, he made his connection. Details of the conversation were not revealed.

"We are not going to shoot first," the Finnish spokesman said. "The frontier there is very zigzag. We must wait and see."

Early Reply Promised.

A soviet broadcast late tonight said the Finnish diplomat who had called at the Kremlin to receive the soviet note demanding the withdrawal of Finnish troops from the border on the isthmus had promised to get in touch with the Finnish government and secure an early reply regarding the incident.

The shelling was described in a dispatch by Tass, official soviet news agency, as having caused "tremendous indignation among troops stationed in the area of the Finnish artillery attack."

Text of Russian Note to Finns

MOSCOW, Nov. 26 (AP).—The text of the soviet note on the alleged border incident, which was handed to the Finnish minister in Moscow and published by Tass, the official news agency, follows:

"Mr. Minister:

"According to a report of the general staff of the Red army, Nov. 26 at 3:45 p. m. artillery fire suddenly opened from Finnish territory against soviet troops stationed near the village of Mainila, Karelian isthmus, near the Finnish border.

"Altogether seven cannon shots were fired as a result of which three rank and file and one junior commander were killed, seven rank and file and two commanders were wounded. Soviet troops, having strict orders not to yield at any provocation, refrained from returning the fire.

"Informing you of this, the soviet government deems it necessary to emphasize that during the recent negotiations with Tanner [Vaino Tanner, Finnish finance minister] and Paasikivi [Dr. Juho Kusti Paasikivi, head of the Finnish delegation to Moscow] it already has been pointed out that danger was created by the concentration of large numbers of regular Finnish troops on the very border near Leningrad.

"In the present connection, the fact of provocational shelling of soviet troops from Finnish territory, the soviet government is compelled to state that the concentration of Finnish troops near Leningrad not only creates a menace to Leningrad but is in fact a hostile act against the U. S. S. R. which already has led to an attack on soviet troops and caused victims.

"The soviet government is not inclined to magnify this abominable act of attack on the part of Finnish troops, probably badly managed by the Finnish command. But it would like that such abominable acts should not take place in the future. Therefore, the soviet government, resolutely protesting against everything that happened, proposes that the government of Finland withdraw its troops without delay 20 to 25 kilometers [12 to 16 miles] farther from the border on the Karelian isthmus, thus preventing the possibility of a repeated provocation. Accept, Mr. Minister, the assurance of my perfect respect.

"VYAGHESLAV MOLOTOV."

BULGARIA HOLDS WRITER OVER ANTI-NAZI QUOTE

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 26.—Bulgarian police last night seized Ilia Popiliev, Sofia correspondent for Reuters, British news agency, without stating the charge.

Inquiries today revealed that Popiliev was arrested because he was said to have telegraphed an account of an anti-German statement alleged to have been made by the prime minister, George Kiosseivanoff.

Bulagence, Bulgarian official news agency, quotes the alleged statement:

"Contrary to German methods, which resort to force, terrorizing her neighbors with threats and attacks, Bulgaria desires the realization by peaceful methods of her claims and denounces the use of force."

Bulgagence denies the premier made the statement and Popiliev and his colleagues deny the telegram was sent. Popiliev is in danger, however, of being interned.

Germans Take Kosciusko Statue from Lodz Square

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—The monument to Thaddeus Kosciusko, Polish patriot who distinguished himself in the American revolution, has been dismantled and removed from Liberty square in the Polish city of Lodz, the German press states today. The monument, the German reports say, was erected as a symbol of Polish rule, but tho it cost a fortune "it was by no means an adornment" for the city.

GERMANS REPEL BRITISH AIR RAID ON KIEL CANAL

Report Photograph Shows Cruiser Was Hit.

BERLIN, Nov. 26 (AP).—The German high command announced today 16 men were missing after the German advance patrol boat 301 sank in Danish waters yesterday while on an undisclosed mission. Its communique also reported that British planes were driven back in an attempt to pass Heligoland and reach northwest Germany. East of Heligoland lies the Kiel canal and the important German naval base of Wilhelmshaven.

The advance patrol boat 301 went down following an explosion at the southern exit of the great belt, a channel which separates the Danish islands of Fuenen and Zealand. The communique did not disclose whether the vessel hit a mine.

Insists Planes Made Four Hits.

The communique said:

"Minor artillery activity in the west.

"On Nov. 25 units of the German air force attacked English naval forces in the northern North sea. Four hits were made, among them one on a cruiser of the Aurora class.

[The Aurora class of British warships is of 5,270 ton vessels carrying six 6 inch guns and six 21 inch torpedo tubes. There are four ships of this class in service, the Aurora, Penelope, Arethusa, and Galatea.]

Heligoland Raid Repulsed.

"The enemy attempted yesterday afternoon to reach northwest Germany over Heligoland, but north coast antiaircraft forced him to return. There were no losses to report among the German air force.

[The British planes were making the second attempt in 10 days to reach northern Germany. The British air ministry said successful reconnaissance flights were carried out Saturday over the German naval bases at Heligoland and Wilhelmshaven.]

[The official German short wave news broadcast to America last night said "The German high command today admitted the loss of one U-boat." It also stated Germany had a report from London which said the British cruiser Belfast, which was damaged by a German torpedo last week, was hit on the starboard side about the center of the ship. "It took the British admiralty three days to admit this latest feat of a German U-boat," the broadcaster added.]

The German flyers' attack on British warships occurred between the Shetland Islands and the northern Scottish coast, DNB, the German official news agency, reported, asserting that photographs brought back by the raiders established that one cruiser had been hit near the stern.

[The British admiralty has denied any warship was hit.]

Tell of Scuttling Freighter.

Scuttling of the German freighter Adolph Woermann to avoid capture by a British light cruiser in the South Atlantic was admitted by DNB. The 8,557 ton freighter had slipped out of Lobito bay, Portuguese West Africa, on Nov. 18. DNB said the British cruiser was summoned by a nearby armed British merchantman, which the agency said proved that merchantmen were serving with the British fleet.

[The British reports Saturday said 55 passengers and the crew of 127 from the Adolph Woermann were saved.]

The German army today decorated the graves of Polish and French soldiers in the annual celebration of Germany's Decoration day.

Cold Hampers West Front Action.

PARIS, Nov. 26 (AP).—Snow and cold hampered military operations on the western front today but the French reported repulsing a German trench raid east of the Moselle river with fire from advance posts.

The morning military communique said there was patrol activity during the night in the Vosges region. Tonight's communique stated "There was a certain amount of patrol and artillery activity."

EMPIRES APPOINT CANADIAN TO BUY WAR GOODS IN U. S.

PARIS, Nov. 26 (AP).—Arthur Purvis of Montreal, president of Canadian Industries, Ltd., today was appointed head of a special coördinating board to control French-British war purchases in the United States.

Frenchman Named Buyer.

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP).—Jean Monnet, French financial expert, today was appointed head of the allied economic coördinating committee set up by France and Britain.

Monnet was selected by Prime Minister Chamberlain and Premier Daladier. The joint economic committee was established Nov. 17 to coördinate the French and British war buying program to prevent competitive bidding in foreign markets.

U. S.-JAPANESE RELATIONS NEAR TEST IN ORIENT

American Soldiers Still on Duty in China.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26.—Events are moving rapidly toward a showdown in the relations of the United States and Japan and in the formulation of American policy in the far east.

Both Great Britain and France have withdrawn their soldiers from China and otherwise ceased to offer material resistance to Japan's conquest of the Asiatic mainland. Both powers are relying upon the United States to hold the Japanese in check until the end of the European war shall permit Britain and France to resume a position of influence in the far east.

American Troops Still There.

The United States is the only occidental power still maintaining more than nominal armed forces in China, the American contingent numbering several thousand soldiers and sailors. The Roosevelt administration has turned thumbs down on all urgings to withdraw the American force. To contentions that it is none of America's business what Japan does in China the administration retorts that there are American commercial and other rights there to be protected, by force if necessary.

Germany having run out on Japan by signing the pact with Stalin, Japan is now seeking an understanding with her ancient enemy, Russia. Negotiation of a Russo-Japanese trade agreement is now proceeding in Moscow, to be followed, it is expected, by a nonaggression pact whereby Russia will withdraw the aid she has been giving China and give tacit approval to the Japanese aggression.

Plan New Challenge.

Thus strengthened in their position in China, the Japanese propose to turn on the United States with a challenge of further opposition to the "new order" they are creating whereby foreign commercial rights in China exist only on sufferance of Nippon.

At the same time the Japanese are exhibiting apprehension of their position when their commercial treaty with the United States expires Jan. 26 next and when the United States then will be free to embargo exports to Japan, in aid of China and in retaliation for affronts suffered by Americans from Japanese troops.

The Roosevelt administration already has drawn the fire of Senators William E. Borah [R., Idaho] and Arthur H. Vandenberg [R., Mich.] on the question of the policy to be pursued in this situation. They have deprecated what they regard as a provocative attitude of the administration toward Japan.

It was Vandenberg who halted the drive for a Japanese embargo last summer by pointing out that those who profess to abhor Japan's treaty breaking were proposing to break the American commercial treaty with Japan. Conceding the error, the administration gave notice of the termination of the treaty.

Last week Acting Secretary of State Sumner Welles issued a report by the American consul general at Tientsin describing numerous instances of Japanese interference with American trade. A few days later, when the Japanese sought to make it appear that the United States is negotiating a new commercial treaty and thereby indicating a willingness to recognize the "new order," Mr. Welles issued a formal denial and said that "future treaty relations" with Japan would "depend upon developments." That put Japan upon notice that she can have a new commercial treaty only by recognizing American rights in China.

Pointed Hints to Japan.

These developments were followed by more pointed hints to Japan in the Boston speech of Assistant Secretary of State George S. Messersmith, who said that "we stand ready to discuss with other nations having interests in the far east, in accordance with treaty provisions and by the due process of international law, the situation in that part of the world."

"Any revision which may take place," said Messersmith, "must be achieved by due processes of international law, in accordance with treaty provisions, and with due consideration for American rights and interests, rather than by unilateral action on the part of any one power."

This was notice that the Roosevelt administration will make no deal with Japan alone affecting China but will insist on the participation of all the signatories of the nine power pact guaranteeing the integrity of China.

Senators Oppose Attitude.

Senators Borah and Vandenberg took issue with the attitude. "If no agreement is possible," said Vandenberg, "it will then be time enough to talk belligerently. But to permit our treaty relations with Japan to lapse next January without an earnest effort to solve our differences pacifically is to invite major trouble without an attempt to avoid it."

Borah declared: "I notice that our trade with Japan is increasing very decidedly. We are not going to have so much trade on our hands that we can safely throw any of it aside without a very sound reason for doing so."

Borah contended the framing of a new treaty would not require this government to confer tacit sanction on Japan's invasion of China, or on the new economic order Nippon hopes to inaugurate out of the Sino-Japanese war.

Could Be Raised by Japan.

If any political considerations should enter into negotiation of a new treaty, as Japanese spokesmen have indicated would be the case, these should be raised by Japan and not by the United States, Borah said.

Retorting to Vandenberg and Borah, Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, author of the Japanese embargo bill, said he saw "no occasion for acts of appeasement or even expressions of appeasement on behalf of the United States toward Japan."

SAFE CRACKERS ADD INSULT TO VICTIM'S INJURY

Morris Kozak, owner of the Advance Neon Sign company, 2308 Harrison street, was pleased yesterday when he was summoned to the Warren avenue police station. Policemen had found a 1,000 pound safe, which yeggs had lugged from the company second floor office, at Claremont avenue and Van Buren street. Kozak thanked police for finding his safe—it contained $10—and left to get his truck to transport the safe back to his office. Half an hour later he was back. The truck also had been stolen.

TVA'S PLANNING IS INADEQUATE, ENGINEER AVERS

Charges Projects Should Be More Efficient.

Knoxville, Tenn., Nov. 26 [Special].—Carl A. Bock, who resigned yesterday as chief consulting engineer of the Tennessee Valley authority, said today that he quit because TVA is paying less and less attention to basic project planning, consultation, and review, essential to economical construction of dams and maximum efficiency in flood control.

In his letter of resignation to Chairman Harcourt A. Morgan of the TVA, Bock stated his reasons for resigning. In an interview today he amplified these reasons.

Bock asserted that since the removal of Dr. Arthur E. Morgan as TVA chairman last year by President Roosevelt his status in the engineering department has been increasing unsatisfactory. Arthur E. Morgan was officially TVA's chief engineer as well as chairman, but Bock was the active head of the department. When Morgan was ousted Bock was given the title of chief consulting engineer, but, he said today, there has been only meager consultation on dam planning and construction between him and Col. Theodore B. Parker, appointed chief engineer after Morgan's resignation.

Refers to Resignation.

Bock said it is his opinion that TVA could have developed a much more efficient flood control and power project in the Tennessee valley had more time and study been given to the basic factors involved.

"I don't mean that the TVA hasn't done a fine job so far as it has gone," he said, "but I can refer you to my letter of resignation wherein I say: 'Valuable opportunities for improved operating features can be overlooked, or large sums needlessly spent unless such projects are subjected to independent searching analysis.'"

Asked to cite a specific instance in which TVA had wasted money or failed to obtain the best in operating features, Bock said that the question was not one of specific instances, but rather a matter of the whole.

The construction of efficient dams is not just a matter of pouring concrete and watching the structure rise, he asserted.

Consulting Group Organized.

"So many underlying factors control the location, size, design, and supplementary equipment of a dam and contribute to its economic operation and maximum efficiency in power production and water control that each planning step should be rechecked many times," Bock said.

In his capacity as chief consulting engineer Bock has organized a consulting group of nationally known experts. It includes Dr. Charles P. Berkey, consulting geologist of Columbia university; Ozro N. Floyd, consulting engineer, Dallas, Tex.; Dr. W. F. Prouty, geologist at the University of North Carolina, L. F. Harza, a Chicago engineer, and others.

Asked if this group of men is called into frequent consultation by the engineering department of TVA, Bock indicated that consultations had been few and far between.

Bock on Defensive.

Switching to his relationship to TVA since the Arthur E. Morgan ouster, Bock said that he has had no contact with the directorate recently, but that he has been very busy on his own work and has been very much interested in it.

Bock's long association with Arthur E. Morgan in private life, and his close association with and championship of Morgan during the latter's fight with TVA over policy put Bock on the defensive in the organization.

"I probably should have resigned much sooner," he said today, "but because of my interest in the work and the fact that I had been so long on the job, I felt that I owed TVA my services so long as they were of any value."

Bock's resignation from TVA leaves the organization without a consulting engineer and with a chief engineer who has specialized in the construction phases of the project. Chief Engineer Col. Parker was head of the construction division of TVA and, according to Bock, paid no attention to planning or design prior to his promotion. Asked to comment today on Bock's resignation, Parker would say only that he regretted Bock's departure, since Bock had been of invaluable service to the authority.

BOY SCOUT WAIFS OF WAR FIND NEW LIFE IN A CASTLE

BY DANIEL DE LUCE.

SOMLOSZOLLOS, Hungary [Correspondence of the Associated Press].—Within the dank walls of an old castle on the muddy outskirts of this village is one of the strangest Boy Scout camps in history—an encampment of 89 youngsters who have no homes, no families and no country.

Poland was their country.

Each boy has his story of personal tragedy. Each climbed over mountain passes to friendly Hungary a few hours ahead of German or Russian armies last September.

These homeless lads found common inspiration in the fact they had been Boy Scouts. Scattered in a score of semi-internment camps, they petitioned the Hungarian government to collect all refugee Boy Scouts in one shelter where they might study and build something out of their youth.

Government Sympathetic.

The government, headed by Premier Paul Teleki, a veteran Boy Scout executive, was sympathetic and finally the hamlet of Somloszollos, which held title to an abandoned castle built a century ago, offered it to the boys.

Living in the bare, ramshackle castle was like living in the wilderness at first, but the boys turned to and used all their Boy Scout arts to make it habitable.

I visited them on a rainy Sunday when 30 of them—those who had both shoes and overcoats—were marching in trim formation to the village cemetery to lay a wreath on the grave of a Hungarian soldier.

At the bleak castle the youngsters who didn't have enough warm clothing to brave the weather entertained Hungarian chums.

Lad of 14 Was Soldier.

It was a very important day—a Hungarian relief worker and a Polish consular official arrived with stacks of flannel pajamas.

Upstairs three boys, ill with influenza, lay on beds that merely were boards propped up six inches from the floor. The village doctor attended them voluntarily. He said he hoped anxiously there would be money soon to buy real beds and a medicine kit.

Youngest of the boys were a dozen 12 year olds, most of whom had lost their parents in the war. A number of boys in their teens actually had carried rifles in September, doing guard duty.

One smiling tow-haired lad was dubbed "Little Hero." His comrades said he had served in fighting at the front. He isn't quite 14.

Well Ordered Group.

The orderliness and good behavior in the castle would have done honor to an established prep school. Older Scouts gave commands and were obeyed. The boys pitched into their allotted tasks.

There are no books or magazines yet. One boyish dream—a radio—may not be realized for many months. But self-organized classes in language study are under way and there is a determined effort to continue the education of the younger Scouts.

The wife of the village mayor, a plump, jolly woman, is "mama" now to the 12 year olds. She calls them "my boys."

CITIZENS SPURN FATHER DIVINE'S HOUSEWARMING

New Rochelle, N. Y., Nov. 26 [Special].—Officials and citizens of New Rochelle who received engraved invitations to the official opening of Father Divine's newest heaven were not among those present today at housewarming ceremonies in the exclusive Sutton Manor section of the city.

The 15 room Georgian-Colonial mansion on Farragut circle had been completely renovated since Harriet E. Cripe, a white follower of the colored Messiah, bought it for $7,500 last June from the estate of the late George W. Childs, wealthy New York leather dealer.

Today the three story building stood out in gleaming white and its grounds were a masterpiece of the gardener's art. Its present assessed valuation is $36,000.

Divine arrived shortly after noon in his limousine at the head of a motorcade of four other expensive cars containing two dozen white and colored angels and secretaries. The banquet started in the afternoon and lasted until far into the evening.

IRISH PROTEST EIRE'S INCLUSION IN ZONE OF WAR

A resolution protesting the inclusion of Ireland in the combat zone outlined recently by President Roosevelt was sent to Washington yesterday by the American Congress for the Unity and Independence of Ireland. The congress, which is made up of several Irish-American groups, met in the Morrison hotel at a banquet honoring men who died for Irish independence. More than 300 persons attended. Among the speakers were Mayor Kelly, Ald. James J. McDermott [14th], and the Rev. Francis P. Fenton of St. Rita's High school.

553 CHICAGOLAND BOYS RECRUITED BY NAVY IN YEAR

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26 (AP).—The navy disclosed today that 553 of the 14,460 recruits enlisted during the 1939 fiscal year enrolled in Illinois at the Chicago recruiting station. In addition, the Chicago station reported 54 of the nation's 10,050 re-enlistments.

In his annual report to the secretary of the navy, Rear Admiral Chester W. Nimitz said the new recruits were selected from 159,409 applicants, the large number permitting "careful selections and the maintenance of a high standard of recruits."

Of the 9,452 applicants for first enlistment at Chicago 6,945 were rejected for physical defects, 1,954 for other causes.

Admiral Nimitz, chief of the bureau of navigation, said that appropriations for the fiscal year 1939, ended June 30, "allowed an average enlisted strength of 107,550 men, ending the year with 110,100 men."

"With this allowance, it has been possible to maintain the larger ships at 85 per cent of the war complement, the minimum under which these ships can be safely operated," the admiral said.

"Submarines have been maintained at 100 per cent complement, and other types at varying percentages, dependent on the type and duty performed. The average allowance was 85.6 per cent of war complement."

Y.M.C.A. IN GREECE IS TAKEN OVER BY STATE GROUP

ATHENS, Greece, Nov. 26 (AP).—The government sponsored National Youth organization has taken over the American financed Young Men's Christian association, thus achieving a monopoly of the nation's youth movement. All other organizations, including the Boy Scouts, had been taken over previously.

The American legation is engaged in negotiating whether the Y. M. C. A. will be recompensed. It also is seeking to obtain the exemption of American students from the Greek government's requirements that all school children, regardless of nationality, join the youth organization.

The latter takes two full days each week of the students' time.

GERMAN AGENTS MEET DEFEAT IN DRIVE FOR TRADE

Sweden, Rumania Resist Hitler's Demands.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Nov. 26.—Adolf Hitler has ordered intensification of the campaign for increased German trade in southeastern Europe and with neutral neighbors, but the campaign is meeting resistance.

Franz von Papen.

A German delegation which has been working in Sweden returned to Berlin "to obtain new instructions." The delegation headed by Dr. Clodius, trade envoy, has returned from Bucharest, Rumania.

Both chiefs reported that Germany's alliance with soviet Russia had aroused distrust in these two economic partners of Germany and had stiffened the resistance of these countries to German demands.

Von Papen to Report.

Franz von Papen, German ambassador to Turkey, recently reported it might be possible for a German trade commission to negotiate with the Turks but now the project has been dropped and Von Papen himself is planning to return to Berlin next week to report.

German political circles are alarmed by reports from southeastern Europe because they fear that Turkey, Rumania, and Greece are attempting to form a united bloc "that may develop anti-German tendencies." The Balkan countries have hoped it would be possible for them to draw more closely together. Jugo-Slavia believed it had ironed out some of the worst differences between her neighbors, Bulgaria, Hungary, and Rumania, for the purpose of working out a joint policy of smaller states caught between the Germans and Russians.

Negotiations Halted.

But Germany signaled her friend, Hungary, that these negotiations were undesirable and Hungary immediately withdrew. Jugo-Slavia also decided to step more carefully in an effort not to anger its powerful German neighbor. Now Germany suspects that the Rumanians, Turks, and Greeks are trying to escape from her economic leadership.

While the recent cabinet crisis was in progress in Bucharest, Nazis in influential positions could be heard expressing dire warnings that "Rumania had better remember what happened to Poland when she failed to continue to cultivate German friendship. We cannot believe that at this crucial moment in European history Rumania will fail to read the signs on the wall and allow herself to be lured into the French-British camp."

Cotton from Jugo-Slavia.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 26.—The minister of commerce has sanctioned the founding of a company called Jugo-Pamuk for the growing of large quantities of cotton in South Serbia and for its exportation. Among the founders are representatives of the German armaments firm of Krupp. It is understood that 50 per cent of the production is destined for Germany. The company is also entitled to export minerals to Germany and its creation is considered to be closely linked with Germany's attempts to obtain Jugo-Slavia's important minerals.

BRITAIN FIGHTS FOR NEW EUROPE —CHAMBERLAIN

Insists Rule by Force Must Be Ended.

LONDON, Nov. 26 (AP) [via radio].—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain defined Britain's peace aim today as the establishment of a "new Europe," but declared the empire had first a war aim—the defeat of "that aggressive, bullying mentality which seeks to dominate other peoples by force."

In a speech broadcast to the British empire and to the United States he acknowledged continuing British losses at sea, but declared that they had not affected "our overwhelming naval superiority," and expressed "complete confidence in our ultimate victory."

He accused the Germans of ignoring the "considerations of humanity," particularly in laying "a new kind of mine indiscriminately."

Mine Secrets "Known."

"You need have no fears," he said, lifting his voice, "that this attempt will succeed. Already we know the secrets of the magnetic mine, and we shall soon have that mastered as we have already mastered the U-boat."

After defining the Anglo-French war aim as the defeat of the enemy Premier Chamberlain outlined what he called the peace aim:

"Our desire, then, when we have achieved our war aim, would be to establish a new Europe . . . with a new spirit in which the nations . . . will approach their difficulties with good will and mutual tolerance."

TEXT OF SPEECH

Premier Chamberlain's speech follows:

"The last time I broadcast to you—it was on the 3d of September—it was to tell you that we were at war with Germany. The catastrophe which I had striven so hard to prevent had come upon us, thanks to Hitler's unbridled ambition, and there was nothing left for us to do but to set our teeth and with our friends and allies to put a stop to this policy of domination which had so long disturbed the peace of Europe.

"I had always hoped that it might not fall to my lot to have to make that decision, but when the time came I did not and I could not hesitate to make it for I knew that the liberties of all free peoples, including our own, were at stake. And today, after just 12 weeks of war, I am speaking to you again, happily with health and strength unimpaired, and with complete confidence in our ultimate victory.

Promises War's True News.

"Of one thing you can be sure. We will not follow the German example of concealing our own losses from you or inventing enemy losses which do not exist. We told you of the loss of the Courageous, and the Royal Oak, and you have just heard of the sinking of the Royal Gipsy. None of these losses affects our overwhelming naval superiority, and we shall tell you frankly what is happening even when the truth is unpleasant, and we shall never refrain from publishing news except when it would be helpful to the enemy to have it. Up to the present, the war has been carried on in a way very different from what we expected.

"We need not attribute the reluctance of the Germans to begin a great land offensive or to attempt a series of mass attacks from the air upon this country to their humanity. We have plenty of evidence that no considerations of humanity deter them from any form of warfare that they think would bring them some advantage.

New Mines Assailed.

"They must, therefore, have come to the conclusion that at present they would have lost more than they would gain by such attacks, and they have preferred to use methods which they think can be employed without serious loss for themselves.

The latest of these methods, as you all know, is the laying of a new kind of mine indiscriminately in our own waters. It matters nothing to the German government that what they are doing is contrary to international agreement to which they have subscribed.

"It matters nothing to them that they are daily blowing up neutral ships as well as British and thereby drowning or mutilating citizens of countries with which they are not at war. They hope that these barbarous weapons can cut off our own supplies from overseas, and so squeeze or starve us into submission.

Mine Secrets in Hand.

"You need have no fears that this attempt will succeed. Already we know the secrets of the magnetic mine, and we shall soon have that mastered, as we have already mastered the U-boat, and in the meantime, despite some losses, our convoys are still moving steadily in and out of our ports, and they will continue to do so, thanks to the courage and the spirit of the men in our merchant navy and in the warships which escort them.

"It may be that some of you who are listening to me are yourselves serving at sea in his majesty's ships or in the vessels which maintain our supplies from overseas. I would like you to know that we are constantly thinking of you and of the perils of storms and of a ruthless enemy that you are facing day and night. Upon you still has to be borne the brunt of the war, and we cannot be sufficiently grateful to you for the cool and steadfast courage with which you have carried on your tasks. We do not forget that the safety of these islands depends on the untiring watchfulness of our seamen as it has done ever since the days of Queen Elizabeth. Others of my listeners may be serving in the army, some in distant garrisons overseas, some in France, some, again, keeping perpetual vigil over their guns on their home frontiers.

"For you the time for conflict has not yet arrived, but we know that you are cheerfully enduring the monotony and discomfort that inevitably attend the routine of preparation, and that when the day of battle comes you will be ready to meet it as your fathers were before you.

"And as for you who are serving in the air force, our youngest fighting service, you, too, have an important part to play in the defense of the homeland as well as in the defeat of the enemy forces. We have watched with pride and admiration your gallant exploits in your aerial combats in which you have taken part, and we feel confident that you have been more than equal to any demands that may have been made upon you.

"I did not forget that I have tonight the still wider audience and that my voice goes out to all the peoples of the British empire. I wish that I could speak to each and thank them for their support so freely and so swiftly given. The aim of the war is to defend freedom and to establish peace. Those are the two vital principles of our empire, and the empire's unity today has the moral as well as the material strength to win them.

Home Front Encouraged.

"And now I want to speak to those among you who are listening to me from your homes in the towns and villages of Great Britain. Many of you are engaged in one form or another of national service, often at great sacrifice to yourselves. Others are serving your country no less usefully on the land, in mines, and factories, in hospitals, in offices, in your own homes, and in numberless other ways.

"Whatever your work may be, I know well that in greater or less degree the war has interrupted and affected your daily life. Some of you are already mourning the loss of those who were dearest to you. For such grief as yours, no words of mine could pretend to afford consolation. I would only say this, that I know no cause more worthy of the supreme sacrifice than that for which those lives have been given. We must be thankful that so far the war has brought no such casualty list as those which overshadowed the early months of the war of 1914. But there must be few to whom it has not meant anxiety or disturbance of mind, discomfort, material loss, or even severe hardship.

"Husbands and wives have been separated from one another, or from their children. Home arrangements have been upset by having to billet strangers or children accustomed to different ways of living. Businesses have been dislocated, hard earned practices have had to be abandoned, buildings have been commandeered at short notice and at great inconvenience to their owners and occupants.

Sudden Attack Still Feared.

"Heavy taxation has cut into incomes, and imposed severe restrictions upon expenditure. Then, again, there are the daily irritating inconveniences of restrictions of various kinds, not forgetting the blackout and the difficulties and discomforts of traveling. Most of these hardships and inconveniences have been brought about by the necessity of providing against attacks from the air. Some of them may seem now to have been unnecessary since the air raids have not taken place, but if they had come as every one expected and had found us unprepared, you would have rightly blamed the government for its neglect. Even now we cannot assume that the Germans will not change their tactics and make a sudden attack from the air upon this country. We must not therefore rashly dispense with our safeguards, but we are constantly revising the existing restrictions and we shall certainly relax them whenever we feel that we can do so without undue risk to the public safety.

"I do not think I need say more about restrictions which are imposed only in the general interest and which I am sure will be cheerfully borne if they help to bring us victory.

Delay Held Aid to Victory.

"I said a little while ago that this was a different kind of war from what we expected. Perhaps you may sometimes wonder why we ourselves are not attacking the enemy with more vigor. Well, I would remind you that the art of war consists in bringing the greatest possible force to bear at the right place and at the right time. In our case, the place and time will be decided by those who are responsible for the strategy of the allies.

"But, in the meanwhile, we are not losing anything by delay. Time is on our side. Every week that passes by intensifies the pressure upon Germany of the allies' blockade, which is slowly but surely depriving her of those materials which are essential to the successful prosecution of a modern war, and which she cannot produce within her own borders. How different is the position of the allies, who have at their disposal within the empire, or elsewhere, unlimited resources in men and materials. With such advantages they are bound to win in the end, and the only question is how long it will take them to achieve their purpose.

"That brings me to the last point I want to make. What is the purpose for which we are today standing side by side with our French and Polish allies?

"The question has been answered over and over again by myself, by M. Daladier [the French premier], by Lord Halifax [British foreign secretary], and other members of the government. One would think that there could be no doubt about it. But there still are questioners who feel that we have not sufficiently defined our aims.

War Aim Is Victory.

"In my own mind I make a distinction between war aims and peace aims. Our war aims can be stated very shortly. It is to defeat our enemy, and by that I do not merely mean the defeat of the enemy's military forces; I mean the defeat of that aggressive, bullying mentality which seeks continually to dominate other peoples by force, which finds a brutal satisfaction in the persecution and torture of inoffensive citizens, and, in the name of the interests of the state, justifies the repudiation of its own pledged word whenever it finds it convenient.

"If the German people can be convinced that that spirit is as bad for themselves as for the rest of the world they will abandon it. If we can secure that they do abandon it, without bloodshed, so much the better. But abandoned it must be! That is our war aim, and we shall persevere in this struggle until we have attained it.

"When we come to peace aims we are dealing with something to be achieved in conditions we cannot at present foresee. Our definition of them can, therefore, only be in the most general terms, but there can be no harm in declaring the broad lines on which we should desire to found them. Our desire, then, when we have achieved our war aims, would be to establish a new Europe, not new in the sense of tearing up all the old frontiers and redrawing it, maybe, according to the ideas of the victors, but a Europe with a new spirit in which the nations which inhabit it will approach their difficulties with good will and mutual tolerance.

"In such a Europe, fear of aggression will have ceased to exist and such adjustments of boundaries as would be necessary would be threshed out between neighbors sitting on equal terms around a table, with the help of disinterested third parties if it were so desired. In such a Europe, it would be recognized that there can be no lasting peace unless there is a full and constant flow of trade between the nations considered, for only by increased interchange of goods and services can the standard of living be improved.

"In such a Europe each country would have the unfettered right to choose its own form of internal government so long as that government did not pursue an external policy injurious to its neighbors. Lastly, in such a Europe armaments would gradually be dropped as a useless expense, except insofar as they were needed for the preservation of internal law and order.

Hopes for New Germany.

"It is obvious that the establishment of this Utopian Europe which I have briefly sketched out could not be the work of weeks or even months. It would be a continuous process, stretching over many years. Indeed, it would be impossible to set a time limit upon it, for conditions never cease to change, and corresponding adjustments would be required if friction is to be avoided.

"Consequently, you would need some machinery capable of conducting and guiding the development of the new Europe in the right direction. I do not think it necessary, nor indeed is it possible, to specify at this stage the kind of machinery which should be established for this purpose. I merely express the opinion that something of that sort would have to be provided, and I would add my hope that a Germany animated by a new spirit might be among the nations which would take part in its operations.

"There, then, for the present, I leave the peace aims, and once more I would remind you that before we can begin to translate them into action, we have got first to achieve our war aims and to win the war. In this purpose, members of the British commonwealth are united as they never have been before in all our history. Let us then gird up our loins, confident in our own tenacity and resolute in our determination. Let us keep clear before our eyes the necessity that this reign of terror instituted under the present German government should come to an end in order that we may build a new and better Europe.

"We know that in this great struggle we are fighting for the right and against the wrong. Let us then go forward with God's blessing on our arms, and we shall prevail!"

RUMANIA QUESTIONS 662,244 JEWS ABOUT CITIZENSHIP STATUS

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Nov. 26.—The government today published the result of an investigation concerning the citizenship of Jews resident in Rumania. Official figures show that 662,244 Jews were questioned, representing 211,567 families. According to the 1930 census, there were 728,000 Jews in the country. From new figures obtained it was estimated there now are 700,000 Jews in Rumania.

In 1938, official circles declared the number of Jews in Rumania was about 1,500,000 and that about 250,000 of them had no Rumanian citizenship and had come to the country illegally.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

Match Dictator Nations in Rigidity of Control.

PARIS, Nov. 26.—While the daily communiques would seem to indicate a prolonged breathing spell in military activities, there is feverish activity on the economic front. The war in that field is being fought relentlessly and the whole French empire is participating.

In the space of a few months the French economy of finances, administration and production has been transformed from a loose confederation operating under extremely elastic rules to centralized control capable of meeting competition with the totalitarian régimes in every department of trade, credit payments, and coördination.

A Complete Renovation.

Communiques in this economic war appear daily in the official journal in the shape of decrees which tell of the progress of the reorganization. It may be said that France has been renovated from the top to bottom of its economic structure. All classes of French society have coöperated.

Parliament has relinquished most of its prerogatives to the executive branch. The deputies have sat only twice since hostilities were declared and when they reassemble shortly it will be only to note a budget. Premier Edouard Daladier will continue to govern by decree.

Blow to Industry.

At the outset France adopted a system of exchange control which is being perfected now. Strict supervision of exports, imports, and censorship regulation has been established.

When war was declared, French industry virtually was annihilated. Factories were shut, transportation interrupted, communications ceased, and trade itself was at a standstill. The national defense industries were the first revived and still are undergoing reorganization.

The whole French economy came under laws governing the national economy in wartime. Practically all big business in France became war industries, including railroads, shipping, and even agriculture.

In the months to come the economic battle may eclipse in intensity anything seen by armies in the field.

ITALY REDUCES ARMY BY 300,000 MEN FOR WINTER

ROME, Nov. 26 (AP).—Italy today granted "extraordinary winter leave" to a number of army reservists which foreign observers believed would reduce the Italian fighting forces by 300,000 men starting Dec. 1.

Italy is estimated to have about 1,500,000 men under arms at present.

The government said leaves would be granted reservists of the class of 1913 and to some officers and men of the classes of 1902, 1903, 1904, and 1905.

The length of the leaves was not announced, but it was expected they would expire by next March when the army would be back at full strength unless other troops are released.

War Identity Tags Make Fashion Vogue in London

LONDON, Nov. 26 (Special).—One of the most striking ways in which the war has influenced women's dress fashions here is in the vogue for ornaments bearing the wearer's name and address. The style was developed from the identity tag which all soldiers wear. Sometimes the name and address are worked on to a belt in gold thread, or they may be fashioned into a necklace.

LAWS DEMANDED TO ENABLE N. Y. TO CLEAN UP COURTS

Senate Action Stirs Up Protests.

activities had been investigated by federal authorities and officials of the state attorney general's office.

After six weeks of hearings and the expenditure of a quarter of million dollars in taxpayers' money the senators voted on Nov. 16. The demand for Martin's removal was defeated by a margin of 15 votes.

34 Votes Needed.

Thirty-four votes were required for removal, but the senate by a majority of 28 to 19 declined to take the step. Four Democrats, none from Brooklyn, voted for removal along with 15 Republicans. Eighteen Democrats jointed 10 Republicans in the decision that Judge Martin should continue in office.

Martin is a Democrat from Brooklyn, where the "boys stick together" under Democratic Boss Frank V. Kelly, lieutenant in the Roosevelt-Farley political machine in the city and state. Consequently, all seven Democratic senators from Brooklyn voted to keep Martin on the bench.

Some votes against the removal were not swayed by party politics, but reflected the anti-Lehman sentiment in upstate communities. This accounted for most of the Republican support for the judge. It was said there was also a feeling that the governor had gone out of his way to take a swat at Martin, an Irish Catholic.

Lehman Sends Note.

Under the constitution Lehman merely could have entered a formal recommendation asking the removal proceedings be held. Instead he accompanied the recommendation with a strong note stating his belief that: "Judge Martin is not a fit person to be entrusted with the administration of criminal justice." This led to the argument the governor had prejudged the case.

Another factor was the brilliance of the case conducted by Martin W. Littleton, a Republican and the defense lawyer. Littleton adroitly brought out that Martin was gravely ill with diabetes in a hospital, that the incidents included in the charges happened several years ago, and that the defendant lost money rather than enriched himself on his stock transactions.

One senator remarked it was axiomatic in law that it was hard to convict a politician by a jury, and doubly difficult to convict a politician by a jury of politicians.

STUDENTS TO HEAR JUDGE.

Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court will discuss criminal practice and procedure before law students of Loyola university tonight at 28 North Franklin street.

BE PREPARED, IS BASEL'S MOTTO; HIDES ITS RICHES

Banks Ready for Flight; Museums Close.

BY E. R. NODERER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BASEL, Switzerland, Nov. 26.—Basel's wealthier families are looking at their second best pictures, eating with their second best silver and walking on their second best rugs.

The big mansions of this banking, merchant and manufacturing city have been stripped of their art treasures, family heirlooms and other valuables as a precautionary measure since the outbreak of the war. Rugs have been rolled up and silver and pictures packed away and shipped to cities in the interior, far from the German and French borders which skirt the town.

The Swiss are neutral, but this does not prevent them from taking steps which the history of centuries has taught them are advisable. Basel was burned to the ground by the Huns as long ago as 917 and it has had plenty of experience in European wars since.

Art Museums Closed.

Art museums are closed and priceless Holbeins and the works of other prominent painters have been sent to Berne. All Basel banks have made arrangements to move into the interior. Many are paying rent on hotels in Berne and Lucerne into which they can move on a moment's notice. Records and the contents of vaults and safe deposit boxes already have been transferred to less vulnerable sections of the country and much of the gold once held here has been shipped to America.

Banks are closely watching the Swiss Banking corporation, the largest financial house here. It maintains headquarters in Basel but has removed its valuables and made all preparations to leave. When it pulls stakes the others are expected to follow suit.

This is a city of 170,000 population. It has been an active merchant center for centuries and is the wealthiest town in Switzerland.

Tighten Press Control.

Military authorities are tightening control over the press to guard against publication of anything which could be construed as unneutral. Die Weltwoche, a Zurich weekly, was confiscated yesterday after publication of an editorial which implied that Germany never would be able to win the loyalty of the people of former Czecho-Slovakia.

Foreign publications also are being watched closely. Today the German picture magazine, Berliner Illustrierte Zeitung, and the Simplicissimus, of Munich, a satirical political paper, were seized.

ARMY BOMBERS RETURN AFTER HOP TO BRAZIL

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26 (AP).—Six of seven four motored army bombers which left Langley field, Va., Nov. 10 on a good will flight to Brazil landed at Bolling field today after a final nonstop flight of 2,200 miles from Maracaibo, Venezuela. The other plane was forced to land at Jacksonville, Fla., presumably because of minor engine trouble.

The flagship of the fleet, carrying the flight commander, Maj. Gen. Delos C. Emmons, and Col. Sergio Veloso Pedeneiras of the Brazilian army, landed shortly after 4 p. m. [Chicago time] and was followed almost immediately by the five other planes. The bombers left Maracaibo at 5:17 o'clock [Chicago time] this morning.

Emmons said the flyers had to use oxygen today because they flew at 15,000 feet for about eight hours of the journey.

The planes carried 10 Brazilian army officers who will inspect some of the army establishments while in this country.

4 U. S. PRISONERS BEAT 2 GUARDS; FLEE; 3 CAPTURED

Chillicothe, O., Nov. 26 (AP).—One of two Chillicothe federal reformatory guards beaten by four escaping prisoners remained under a physician's care today as a widespread search was pressed for the lone fugitive still at liberty.

The other three were captured last night soon after they overpowered the guards and fled from a building for recalcitrant prisoners dubbed "little Alcatraz."

Acting Warden W. H. Hiatt said Guard E. W. Grundhoeffer is receiving medical attention, altho his injuries are not serious. The other injured guard is Louis Baurle, who suffered face lacerations when knocked unconscious.

Hiatt listed the fugitives as William Powell, 17 years old, of Cheyenne, Wyo., still at liberty; Earl Cox of Miami, Fla., and Robert Johnson of East St. Louis, Ill., each 17, and Perry Moore, 18, of Chattanooga, Tenn. Powell was sentenced for a postal law violation and the others for auto theft.

IDENTIFY 3 POLICE KILLERS AND PALS IN MORE HOLDUPS

Only 1 in 8 Not Accused, and He Admits Robbery.

A number of victims of recent robberies yesterday identified seven of eight young men at a police showup as the bandits who held them up. The eighth, who has confessed one robbery, may go free unless his victim can be found.

Robbery Charges Pile Up.

All three have been identified in previous robbery showups. Yesterday four robberies were added to those charged to Mangano, and five each to those involving Russano and Begani. Sergt. Timothy O'Connell of the newly formed robbery detail said one of Russano's robberies was committed Nov. 16 in Kenosha, Wis.

The other five in the police showup and the number of robberies in which they were identified are: Edward Cozzi, 22, of 2222 Taylor street, eight; Robert Allen, 20, of 1937 North Sawyer avenue, four; Donald Evans, 18, of 3330 Chicago avenue, eight; Wilbur Sotola, 20, of 1630 North Tripp avenue, already on probation for armed robbery, one, and Harry Katz, 19, of 3306 Potomac avenue, none.

Lieut. Kyran Phelan, head of the newly formed robbery detail, said that while Katz had confessed the robbery about two months ago of a colored man at Lake street and Western avenue the victim could not be found. A topcoat and some money were obtained.

Reveal Christmas Fraud.

Lieut. Phelan also said Sotola will have to do without at least one of the presents he counted on for Christmas. It is a watch, taken in a holdup Nov. 5. Sotola, afraid to keep the timepiece for fear his mother would suspect that it had been stolen, gave it to his girl with instructions to tell his mother that she had found it and that she wanted Sotola to have it as a Christmas gift. Phelan said Mrs. Sotola had been keeping the watch for that purpose.

Mangano, Begani, and Russano, who have been indicted for the murder of Policeman Francois, will be arraigned today before Chief Justice John Prystalski of the Criminal court. Assistant State's Attorney Blair Varnes has said he will demand the death penalty.

BLOOMINGTON WOMAN, 93, DIES.

Bloomington, Ill., Nov. 26 (Special).—Funeral services for Miss Caroline Eliel, 93 years old, who died last night, will be held here tomorrow. She was born in Nenderhausen, Germany and came to the United States at the age of 12. She first made her home in Chicago, but for 71 years had lived in Bloomington.

HALT CHRYSLER STRIKE, DEMAND ON DICKINSON

Hoffman Tells Governor to Enforce Law.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26 [Special].—Telling Gov. Luren D. Dickinson that if he would enforce the law the Chrysler strike [the tieup began Oct. 6] would settle itself, Congressman Clare E. Hoffman of Allegan demanded protection today for those who want to work in Chrysler plants.

In a letter to the governor, Hoffman pointed out that in Michigan, as in all other states, a man who has a job has a moral and legal right to work. He reminded the governor that Michigan has a law which punishes those who by force prevent others from going to work.

Hoffman urged the governor to order the attorney general and the prosecuting attorney of Wayne county to punish those who assault men peacefully on their way to work. He referred to an attack last Friday by C. I. O. "flying squadrons" upon 57 Dodge foundry workers. Two policemen and six civilians were injured.

Wants Unafraid Governor.

"What Michigan needs today, as it did in 1937 during the sitdown strikes," Hoffman wrote, "is a governor who is not afraid of the votes which may be influenced by the communists or the labor unions; who knows his duty and has the courage to enforce the laws of the land and to protect men and women in exercising their civil rights—the right to work. I am sure that you are not afraid of any group of voters.

"You bewail the fact that Michigan lacks labor legislation with teeth in it and ask the people to pray for an ending of the strike. Prayer is a wonderful thing, but the old saying that the Lord helps those who help themselves still is true."

Gov. Dickinson at his farm home near Charlotte tonight said he had not received Hoffman's letter, but he remarked that his offer to protect Chrysler workers which was made last week still holds good. He said he was ready and willing to send state police into Detroit if asked for help by the Detroit police deparment or the sheriff of Wayne county.

Believe Police Adequate.

The governor said he believed Detroit police had adequate means and manpower to protect Chrysler workers who want to go back to the plants if they would only do so.

Asked what he was doing about prosecuting those responsible for the attack on Chrysler workers last Friday, Prosecutor Duncan McCrea said he talked with his assistant, William L. Brunner, shortly after the attack. McCrea said Brunner had taken statements from the two policemen who were injured and would take statements from several more who were witnesses to the affair before they would decide whether to ask for warrants.

Attorney General Thomas Read was away from his home in Shelby and not expected to return for several days.

Now It Becomes Strike.

Previously called a labor dispute and a lockout, the Chrysler tieup became a strike yesterday. R. J. Thomas, president of the United Automobile workers formally called a strike as a result of the trouble Friday. Thomas said the company was sponsoring a back-to-work movement and the C. I. O. was determined to prevent it.

Thomas sent a telegram today to K. T. Keller, president of the Chrysler corporation, asking him to make a public announcement that no Chrysler plant would be open tomorrow. Keller did not answer, but a spokesman for the corporation said plants would be open and that any men who appeared for work would get it if there was anything for them to do.

Maintenance forces have been kept in the Chrysler plants since they were closed Oct. 6 after C. I. O. auto workers started a slow-down strike. The Dodge plant, key shop in the Chrysler organization, was closed first and others followed. Closing of Chrysler plants put 58,000 employés out of work. Nearly 100,000 others in allied lines have been thrown out of work because Chrysler could not use the parts and accessories they make.

Company and union representatives will resume their strike negotiations tomorrow with the company still insisting upon assurance that organization of foremen by the C. I. O. will be dropped forever as a condition to settlement of the sole remaining issue—5 cents an hour increase in wages and vacations with pay.

Gives for the Needy

[TRIBUNE Photo.]

Richard Funkhouser, 4 years old, gives his contribution to Eleanor Danielson at State and Washington streets.

The Salvation Army's red caped lassies begin their first full week at their stands at street corners today beside the Christmas kettles. Until Christmas eve their town crier bells will remind the citizens to keep the kettles boiling toward a merry Yuletide for the city's needy.

With the funds collected the army will give parties for some 5,000 boys and girls in different parts of the city, distribute toys to 2,000, and the family welfare division will give 3,000 dinner baskets. Its League of Mercy will take candy to the 4,500 inmates of the Oak Forest infirmary, and doughnuts to the prisoners in the Cook county jail and will give coffee and cake parties for the patients at the Cook County hospital and Municipal Tuberculosis sanitarium.

COMPANY CHIEF GOES ON STRIKE AGAINST STRIKE

East St. Louis, Ill., Nov. 26 [Special].—Because his plant was tied up by a strike after operating 24 hours a day for the last two years, R. L. Dutton, president of the Key company, also has declared a strike—against the union. Dutton left last week for California after telling union leaders he would return when they were ready to go to work.

The principal product of the Key company is a U-shaped valve used in high pressure lines in oil refineries. The company holds a patent on the valve and ships its product all over the world. It employs 375 men. Top wages have been 94½ cents an hour.

Key's contracts with the A. F. of L. unions expired last Oct. 30 and negotiations for new contracts had been under way for three weeks when the machinists walked out last Monday morning. They demand 10 cents an hour increase in pay.

According to Dutton, other unionists in the plant joined the machinists in their demand for 10 cent an hour wage increases, which he says, amount to from 10 to 25 per cent.

BANDITS IN AUTO ESCAPE POLICE IN TWO CHASES

A North avenue police squad early today fired half a dozen shots at three bandit suspects in a chase in Grand avenue from Campbell avenue to Oakley boulevard. The men escaped. Police said they appeared to be the same men who a few minutes earlier had stolen $10 in a tavern robbery at 1024 North Western avenue.

About two hours earlier three men answering their description were fired upon six times by a Maxwell street police squad in an automobile chase in Halsted street, near Polk street. By a daring maneuver this car escaped by going over the curb, swinging completely around, and dashing back past the pursuing police.

SHOULDER STRAIN PUTS KING VIDOR IN CITY HOSPITAL

King Vidor, motion picture director, entered the Michael Reese hospital yesterday for treatment of a shoulder strain. The injury is not serious, but Vidor probably will remain in the hospital two or three days, his doctors said. It was not disclosed how he had suffered the strain.

Vidor has been in motion picture work since 1914 when, a strict amateur, he took pictures of troop movements in Mexico. Later he went to New York, and eventually to Hollywood.

A GOOD FELLOW'S VOW: NONE SHALL FIND CITY LONELY

A Pastor Gives the Text: Spread Yule Cheer!

BY PHILIP MAXWELL.

Great cities, to many persons the loneliest places on earth, offer a vast field for Good Fellow developments, Dr. John Timothy Stone, president of the Presbyterian Theological seminary, said last night. He spoke over WGN and was the first of a series of speakers this season who will help promote the 31st annual Good Fellow campaign to bring food, toys, and candy to unfortunate families at Christmastide.

"Great cities are supposed to be social centers," said Dr. Stone. "But many friendless persons find them very lonely. Therefore, every resource of ingenuity and every proper form of effort must be utilized to spread Yuletide cheer to all. No one can estimate what a Christmas basket may mean to a home, to old people and to children on Christmas day.

Reflects Spirit of Christ.

"The spirit of the Man of Nazareth, Jesus Himself, is carried out in this manner of giving cheer, for the Bible says 'He went about doing good.' And, when His disciples sent away the multitude, famished and weary, Jesus distributed them around and said to His disciples, 'Give ye them to eat.'"

The second radio talk will be delivered by George Halas, owner of the Bears, a professional football team, Dec. 5 at 6:15 p. m. on Bob Elson's Sports Review.

Chicago organizations which will discuss Good Fellow plans this week include three Young Men's Christian association units, the Chicago and North Central Kiwanis clubs, the South Shore Chamber of Commerce, the Edgewood Community club, and the Allerton Hotel forum.

Organizations Meet Today.

Two organizational meetings for carrying on the work will be held in room 815 of Tribune tower today and tomorrow. At 3 o'clock this afternoon heads of more than 50 commercial and industrial groups will meet. Tomorrow at the same hour presidents of about 50 women's clubs will discuss plans to enlarge the campaign so that hundreds of additional children may be taken care of this Christmas.

Membership in the Good Fellows may be obtained by filling in the Good Fellow coupon which accompanies this story and sending it to the headquarters at 1 South Dearborn street.

40TH INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK EXPOSITION WILL OPEN SATURDAY

Shipments of prize stock and farm crops from 41 states, four Canadian provinces, Australia and Argentina, are on the way to Chicago for exhibition at the 40th annual International Live Stock exposition which opens at the International Amphitheater Saturday.

The show will last eight days. More than 13,000 head of prize animals will appear in the judging arena. More than 5,000 samples of hay, grain, and small seeds will be exhibited in the International Hay and Grain exposition, to be held in conjunction with the stock show.

For the first time in its history the exposition was compelled to refuse entries. This was because the floor space had already been assigned, according to B. H. Heide, general manager. The excess entries resulted from the cancellation of other stock shows in Canada due to the war. The admitted entries will include some 3,700 fat cattle, 1,280 feeder cattle, 910 hogs, 1,360 lambs, and 605 draft horses. The national 4-H clubs will hold their annual congress at the same time.

CHICAGO AIRPORT PLANNING NO NEW HANGAR BUILDING

City officials said yesterday no additional hangars are to be constructed soon at the Chicago airport. The need of hangars for large planes was cited Saturday by Capt. E. V. Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Air Lines, in connection with the lines' expansion program.

Oscar Hewitt, commissioner of public works, said two applications to the Public Works administration for funds with which to erect larger hangars have been rejected. Ald. John J. Grealis [44th], chairman of the committee on aviation and recreation, said the only building now planned is a new waiting room at the north end of the field. This will be erected only if provision is made for it in the 1940 city budget, he said.

EIGHTY FLEE APARTMENT FIRE.

Eighty Negro residents of a four story apartment building at 417 Bowen avenue fled early yesterday when fire started in the first floor hall. Damage totaled $500.

SEEK TO SPEED MUNICIPAL COURT LAW'S REVISION

County and City Call for Special Session Action.

Cook county officials joined city council members yesterday in demanding that Gov. Horner include bills to change the Municipal court act in his call for the forthcoming special session of the legislature.

The county does not want to pay part of the cost of the city court, and the city wants some control over court expenditures.

"The county is humpbacked from carrying the load," said Clayton F. Smith, president of the county board. "If the legislature would pass a bill eliminating the county's liability for court expenses, I believe the people would approve the change in a referendum, as they would be required to do.

Helpless, Says Smith.

"We in county government are helpless in this Municipal court situation. We have no voice in it. Arrests are made on state charges, and altho we are assessed the costs we have nothing to say. Obviously it is unfair to residents of Cook county outside Chicago who have no contact with the Municipal court."

County charitable services last year called for 28 per cent more money than was obtained from tax collections, Smith said. Only penalties on back taxes and certain fees have staved off bankruptcy, in view of the payments called for by the Municipal court, he said.

The county board is attempting to find means of paying a judgment of $3,200,000 obtained by the city for cost of state cases tried in the city court.

Law Termed Unjust.

Either the total must be paid in 10 annual instalments or a loan must be obtained to permit payment of $2,000,000 in a lump settlement, said H. Wallace Caldwell of Oak Park, a board member.

"The law is unjust and should be altered without delay," he said. "The system is an unfortunate error and ought to be rectified by amendment at the special session of the general assembly."

Smith and Caldwell also said legislation should be sought to give the county some control over expenditures by the board of election commissioners. The county collects approximately $900,000 for the election board, while the board requested $1,200,000, which was trimmed to $1,600,000.

MAYOR ANSWERS STATE ON TAVERN LAW VIOLATIONS

Mayor Kelly replied yesterday to an announcement by the state liquor control commission that it has summoned 800 Cook county tavern owners to a mass hearing Wednesday for alleged violation of the law requiring that interiors be visible to passersby.

"If they have any evidence that the law is being violated in Chicago, and send it to the city liquor commission, we will see that there is absolute compliance with the act," the mayor said. He said this would be the "normal procedure."

State Senator Harold G. Ward, chairman of the city commission, said the state had no cause to abridge the city's "home rule" rights. Most Chicago taverns have food dispensers' licenses, he said, and the "clear view" provision specifically exempts restaurants as well as clubs and hotels.

Arthur S. Smith of Bloomington, chairman of the state commission, would not comment other than to say he is certain that the tavern owners will appear for the hearing in the La Salle hotel.

Harold D. Smith.

Warm Springs, Ga., Nov. 26.—President Roosevelt is preparing to step into the middle of the New Deal family row over slashes in departmental estimates necessitated by his determination to limit the deficit next year to 2 billion dollars. He has summoned Budget Director Harold D. Smith, who has been wielding the blue pencil on budgetary estimates of regular departments and alphabetical units, to the little White House for a report. He will arrive by plane tomorrow.

Smith is the storm center of the quarrel. On one hand he has the President demanding slashes thruout the national fiscal setup, except for national defense. On the other are irate department heads screaming that they cannot function on the pruned estimates.

More Serious than Usual.

The annual budget making period always makes the director of the budget very unpopular with the tax spenders. But this year—Smith's first in the office—the row has assumed serious proportions because Mr. Roosevelt is making his first attempt to stem the flow of easy money, altho he has been promising budget balancing off and on for seven years.

This year Mr. Roosevelt does not promise the budget will be balanced, but he hopes that the annual deficit can be brought down to approximately two billion dollars. The current budget deficit will run over three billion dollars, according to treasury estimates.

The military establishment has been exempted from the general schedule of cuts because of the European war. Mr. Roosevelt disclosed that he will increase army and navy appropriation estimates by 500 million dollars to bring a new peace time high of 2 billion 250 millions for defense.

New Taxes for Protection.

It is possible this increase may not be reflected in the deficit, because President Roosevelt turned the attention of the nation to consideration of a defense tax to meet it. He received immediate favorable reaction from Georgia congressmen, who made it clear that congress will be called upon to decide the question of paying for the rising costs of the military establishment by increased taxes.

Mr. Roosevelt is counting on increased revenues, which have followed the recent industrial upswing, as well as budgetary cuts to help achieve his objectives. It is his aim to hold the budget for the 1941 fiscal year, which begins next July 1, to 9 billion dollars.

Will Offer Olive Branch.

In his conference with Smith tomorrow, the President will offer suggestions for mollifying department heads without yielding to their pleading for more money. Altho Smith is new to his present job, he has had experience in the field. He was director of the budget for the state of Michigan when Attorney General Frank Murphy was governor of that state.

Awaiting Smith's arrival, Mr. Roosevelt continued to enjoy his brief vacation here. He attended services in the chapel of the infantile paralysis colony which he established.

In the afternoon the President went to the camp of the marines stationed here to guard him during his visit. A guard mount and drill was staged for the commander in chief by Lieut. Col. Charles Brooks, commander of the detail of 61 leathernecks.

KILLED IN CAR CRASH.

Battle Creek, Mich., Nov. 26 [Special].—Frederick W. Biebinger, 44 years old, of Kalamazoo, was injured fatally early today when his car swerved off U. S. Highway 12, east of Battle Creek, and struck a tree.

Leaves Plane to Chase Hat; Ship Follows, Cracks Up

Dayton, O., Nov. 26 (AP).—The wind carried away C. E. Iylers' hat as he made ready to climb into the plane he owns at Dayton Municipal airport today. He left the ship, its motor idling, and gave chase. The plane followed, all on its own, rising nearly 3 feet and crashing into an obstruction pole and the boundary fence. Iylers returned home to Indianapolis with another pilot tonight, leaving the wreckage behind.

Short Trips in Airplanes Cheaper Than Taxicabs

New York, Nov. 26 [Special].—Airplanes now are cheaper than taxicabs, provided you take the new Newark-North Beach airport flight. The service is expected to start Dec. 2. TWA lines announced today they had applied to Washington for permission to collect $2 for the 10 minute one way hop, or $3.60 for the round trip. The rate, lowest air tariff ever offered, will apply to TWA and other air line connections.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike for another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other."—From the Farewell Address.

THE REPUBLICAN PARTY IN ILLINOIS.

There are at present four leading Republican candidates in Illinois who will run in the primaries, either for the nomination for governor or for United States senator. They are Otis Glenn, formerly United States senator and a defeated candidate for reëlection in 1932; Richard Lyons, who was his party's candidate for the United States senate in 1938; Wayland Brooks, who was the party candidate for governor in 1936, and Dwight Green, who was the candidate for mayor in the city election this spring. The present intention of Green, Brooks, and Lyons is to seek the nomination for governor.

All four of these Republicans have had their party's indorsement. They have all been defeated, but in conditions which did not discredit their ability or their future possibilities as strong popular candidates. The Republican party is coming back in Illinois, altho this state did not swing far enough in the last general elections to change the balance of power as completely as in such neighboring states as Wisconsin, Michigan, Ohio, and Minnesota. The trend, however, was indicated in the return of a Republican majority in the state house of representatives. State Republicans have reason to believe that with their strongest ticket and with party unity they can carry Illinois in the national election and make it again a Republican state, giving its electoral vote to the Republican candidate for President.

For this campaign the state Republicans will need their best ticket. In judging the qualifications of a candidate it is good politics to score him not only for such essentials as ability, intelligence, and honesty, but also for his vote getting strength. There is no theoretical yardstick by which it may be preascertained which man in given conditions, at any certain time, will gain the largest following. That test of his ability is made in a primary campaign and is found in the vote given him.

The way to determine the strongest candidates is in the direct trial of an open primary. For this purpose a large field has its disadvantages. Even a three-cornered contest is not as decisive in what its voting will show as a contest in which two men oppose each other.

It would be a desirable thing if the Republican candidates could prearrange the competition so that two are entered against each other for the senate and two for the governorship. Then a spirited campaign would show which of the two rivals for each office made the best impression on the Republican voters and proved himself to be the stronger man for the following election. The campaign would create an active political organization and would advertise the successful contenders all over the state. Such an arrangement for the primary campaign is so desirable and has so much to recommend it that Republican voters will hope that its wisdom will appeal to their candidates and convince them that it is the best political tactic in preparing for Republican success in this state next year.

THE THIRD STEP?

The British are withdrawing most of their troops from North China. Now it is reported the French are doing likewise. Both have asked the Americans, it is understood, to protect their interests. The American government will keep its troops where they are and apparently with larger responsibilities.

The undesirability of keeping American soldiers in China was apparent before the British and French decided to pull out. The presence of troops in areas occupied and controled by the Japanese would increase the probability of incidents disturbing to peaceful relations without serving any useful purpose. The Japanese are responsible for the preservation of order in the occupied Chinese ports and cities as much as they are in Tokio.

Our government pretends to be desirous and determined to keep Americans out of the European war zones and equally determined to keep American troops in Asiatic war areas. American ships must not enter belligerent ports or trade in dangerous waters, and American citizens will not be permitted on the boats of warring nations, but American soldiers, too few to be of any military use in a serious event, are kept in zones which an invading army is occupying, in spite of the friction which naturally comes from such contacts.

Now apparently the greater folly is to be committed of not only keeping these soldiers where they are but of taking over some of the police work done by British and French troops, and possibly also taking over the disputes which Great Britain and France have had with Japan. These disputes have been more serious than the controversies in which the United States was involved with Japan in China.

The policy of the American government in China has been secretive, illuminated only now and then by events. The United States is the only nation to which the British have given the right to use the naval base at Singapore and that is a right for which we have no purposes in our own interest. The attempt of our administration to make a naval air base at Guam was defeated, but the undertaking caused speculation as to the reasons behind it. The abrupt cancellation of scheduled events of the fleet in the Atlantic and its precipitate return to the Pacific was the subject of reflection at the time.

There are reports of increased military activities in the Philippines, for what purpose few people can know. Anything done in the strengthening of Hawaii is, of course, within the soundest of defense policies, but the American arm is reaching far beyond that and the people are left to guess at the purposes. Have we now a new guardianship of imperial interests in North China?

Opponents of the repeal of the arms embargo called it one step toward war. The attempt to evade another part of the neutrality act by transferring American shipping to the flag of Panama was called another step. Is this assumption of new responsibilities in the danger zones of China to be regarded as a third?

MONOPOLY IN THE ARMY AND NAVY.

In the early decades of the 19th century American colleges were devoted almost wholly to the training of clergymen. If the government wanted technical education for officers of the army and navy it had to provide it itself. West Point and Annapolis were thus a necessity.

The academies can no longer make that claim. In nonmilitary subjects, both classical and technical, they are surpassed by any number of public and private universities. And, contrary to a rather general opinion, it is the nonmilitary subjects that form the most important part of their curricula. Officers get the bulk of their military education after graduation in the excellent service schools.

The wisdom of continuing the service academies in their present status of undergraduate colleges is open to serious question. The best thing that can be said for them is that they do train the officer corps of the services, of which their graduates have a virtual monopoly in the navy and control, at least, in the army, in a common way of thinking.

Valuable as this common approach may be, it is achieved at too low a level of thought for the good of the services. With the increasing technical demands of modern warfare the deficiencies of the present service educational system are increasingly apparent. The navy builds topheavy destroyers. The army seems unable to harness its procurement demands to the industrial resources of the nation.

The deficiencies are inescapable so long as the academies retain their monopolies. However carefully their cadets and midshipmen are selected, the selection takes place at the high school age. A group of a few hundred boys each year is expected to furnish all the leadership of our national defense. Genius does not appear in groups of a hundred. The genius is one man in a hundred thousand, and his qualities are not likely to be apparent at the age of 18.

Massachusetts Institute of Technology is a great engineering school, but if the General Motors corporation hired none but M. I. T. graduates in its technical departments the quality of its cars would suffer within a few years. The University of Illinois has a fine chemistry department, but if the du Pont corporation hired only Illinois graduates, and was forced to find a place for every Illinois graduate in chemistry, its present great research organization would soon be overexpensive and unproductive. Yet these circumstances parallel exactly what the army and navy are doing.

The service academies also seem to be needlessly expensive. The state of Virginia has spent for the maintenance of the Virginia Military Institute during a whole century only a little more than the government spends each year on West Point. The expenses of a cadet at V. M. I., including the cost of military instruction met by the government, are only a little more than a third the cost of educating a cadet at West Point. Yet a V. M. I. man, Gen. Marshall, is the present boss of all the West Pointers in the army.

The army and navy should pick their officers by competitive examination, not at the high school stage but after the candidates have completed a college education. West Point and Annapolis could then be turned into postgraduate schools to give the military and naval instruction and the specialized technical training not offered by civilian institutions. The result would be a far more efficient officer corps and a considerable reduction in expense to taxpayers.

A SOUND APPOINTMENT.

By appointment of the Supreme court, Henry P. Chandler of Chicago is to become the first administrative director of the United States courts. The selection was an admirable one. The office is new and it is, therefore, doubly important that its first occupant establish sound routines and traditions. Mr. Chandler is distinguished for integrity, fairness, and devotion to the public service. A better man for the position could not have been found for, in addition to his other qualifications, Mr. Chandler has had a wide experience of practice in the federal courts. Chicagoans, and particularly the Chicago bar, may well take pride in the fact that the Supreme court came to Chicago to find the man best suited to fill this important post.

Editorial of the Day

GEORGIA'S SEERS.

[Nashville Tennessean.]

Once again, after nearly a hundred years, interest is centered on gold in the mines of Dahlonega, Ga., from whence the original prospectors rushed to the inviting west.

But this time news of a rich vein in Calhoun mine, said to assay $60,000 a ton, brings surprisingly little excitement. The state has not gone wild and the private owners, posting armed guards at the entrance of their mine, make deliberate preparations for digging up the precious metal.

One thing to be expected is a flurry in gold mining stocks, always good for a profit to promoters in the past, and the public should be warned to examine such offerings with care. If there were gold good enough for all comers in Georgia the days of the 49ers might be revived, but, due to experience, this has become a skeptical country.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

PICKING UP LOOSE ENDS.

Apologies to Maurice Evans of the full length "Hamlet": We thought he pronounced "caviare" as if the "e" had a French accent, but it turns out that he was speaking the word as spelled in the First Folio—"caviarie." You should remember the line in Hamlet's first scene with the players: "It was caviare to the general."

Correction of recent remarks about an ancient song, "Take me back to that dear old Chicago town": The comedian's name was Dave Lewis, not Joe. . . . No one seems to remember what became of him, although he helped to found the La Salle theater school of musical shows.

Memo. for research: Find the house in Chicago where Frank Norris was born. The author of "The Octopus," "The Pit," and "McTeague" was a fairly important figure in the history of the American novel, and the literary sharps are still writing about him. He was born here in 1870, son of Benjamin Franklin and Gertrude G. [Doggett] Norris, and lived here until he was of high school age, when the family moved to San Francisco. But there are no local Norris legends.

Footnote to our recent researches into Sherlock Holmes lore: Vincent Starrett, who has hobbied in Sherlockiana for years, is about to publish a book called "Baker Street Irregularities." He knows more about this subject than A. Conan Doyle; he has collected the first editions; he owns William Gillette's original manuscript of the play; and his book will be delightful reading.

THE LIGHTS OF LONDON.

The shining towers that pierce our midnight sky
Stir in my heart a poignant wonderment.
How would it be if our bright streets should lie
With darkness blotting out their transient
But kind, familiar glow? What guiding light,
What compensating radiance fills the shades
That wrap your streets when swiftly falling night
Holds you, and the last gold of sunset fades?
We cannot tell. But yet it might well be
That faith has set a lantern for men's feet;
That, in the midnight watches, they can see
Hope's fadeless gleam, lighting the darkest street.
Men may see heaven through the strongest bars!
Men walk your darkened streets . . . and see the stars!

A Fellow of Infinite Jest.

What play has been seen by the greatest number of people during the last 50 years? Please do not say "Tobacco Road," for the right answer is "Charley's Aunt," which after its long runs and many revivals became the amateur's delight.

So it is interesting to note that the actor who had the principal rôle in "Charley's Aunt" during its American heyday [1893 and later; revival, 1906-'08] died recently in Hollywood, aged 83. He was Etienne Girardot. He was an excellent actor, but his identification with the farcical antics of Lord Fancourt Babberly in "Charley's Aunt" kept him submerged for many years. He did not recover from this blight until he was 77 years old, when he scored a hit as a religious fanatic in "Twentieth Century." [Not seen in Chicago.] The movies, however, kept him in funds.

The Revival of "Oh, Johnny, Oh."

Regarding the song, "Oh, Johnny, Oh" [Nov. 21]: The revival is spontaneous, not "manufactured," as so many song hits are. Here's how it happened: "Johnny" was enjoying the peaceful somnolence that eventually settles over all great "songs that were" when a diminutive crooner named Bonnie Baker, with Orrin Tucker's orchestra, chose the song as one peculiarly fitting her singing mannerisms. For some time past Miss Baker has been stirring 'em up with the number on theater dates. But it was not until she "made" the song for a record company that it began to get renewed attention and become an almost overnight sensation. . . . And, who was the most surprised party in the whole proceedings? Fred Forster, the publisher of the song. D. Facto.

AUNT'S SEWING TABLE.

Strange that chairs and tables should remain
When they who chose and loved them are long dead.
Her sewing table stands beside my bed.

That table holds her touch most lovingly.
In opening the drawers I seem to feel
Her hand instead of bare mahogany.

The Late Blooming Witch Hazel.

Overhead belated geese are winging southward; a few frostbitten roses and chrysanthemums hang from brown stems. The gardener, weary after digging hundreds of holes for bulbs, carrying bushels of mulch and raking millions of leaves, has a feeling of frustration, thinking how much more he could have done had he more space, more time and more money, and is sustained only by a vision of the beauty that will greet him after many months of waiting, if all goes well with his plants.

It is this moment, when all else has succumbed to the cold and gloom of winter, that, in the shade of the huge wayfaring tree [Viburnum Lantana], which yet retains most of its leaves, and on whose dark blue berries the chattering sparrows feast each evening, the witch hazel chooses to burst into bloom. Why so late? The few bees that still stumble about are too weak to help with its pollination. Let the botanist solve this mystery.

The nature lover knows only that there is a happy glow in his heart at seeing Hamamelis Virginica unfurl its strange yellow tassels; not very showy, 'tis true, but the best it can do, and all there is now in the way of flowers blooming in the open. Gayceile.

A METAMORPHOSIS.

Eleanor, once a Holm girl,
As everybody knows,
To Art was more than mermaid—
Now she's mighty like a Rose.

OVERCOMING THE HANDICAP OF SPASTIC PARALYSIS.

THERE are occasions—fortunately, not numerous—when nature seems to be unkind. For example, during the progress of labor some injury to the infant's brain may occur. Repair is out of the question—at least with our present state of knowledge. On the other hand, the growing child possesses great powers of adaptation.

Parents who are confronted with a case of spastic paralysis must recognize that the problem is one of adjustment and training. As the word "spastic" implies, these patients exhibit movements which are jerky [spasmodic] and in which there is marked lack of coördination. As the little one essays to use his limbs he must make a great effort. Then when the response comes, the hand or the foot may go out of control.

The extremities appear to be on the go constantly, altho the symptoms subside during sleep. Sometimes the powerful groups of muscles overcome the weaker opposite sets and thus the limbs may be drawn into deformed, grotesque postures. In walking, the typical "scissors gait" may be employed. Occasionally the feet are pulled into the tiptoe position with the knees bent and the tendons on the back of the legs taut. The parts of the body supplied by the nerves from the damaged area lose their ordinary power to reply, and seem to decide on a behavior of their own. Thus erratic motions are explained.

Let us assume that the orthopedic surgeon has done all that he can and that his aid has been invaluable. What comes next? Naturally, reëducation. This means an attempt to persuade normal brain cells to take up the functions of those that have been lost.

Many of these youngsters are bright and quick, altho in the early years of life they will not sit, talk or walk as will others of the same age. While there may be some mental change involved it should be assumed at the outset that the victim can think and reason.

Perhaps braces have been utilized. If so, an attempt should be made to so strengthen the affected regions that the appliances can be discarded after a while. Special shoes may be required and, as early as possible, a schedule including exercise and massage should be instituted.

The rôle that the mother is to play is quite important, as it is her job to help make the tot independent within the home. Number one on the list is to teach relaxation, and a great deal of patience will be required to inculcate the lesson that simple routine movements may be executed without excitement or anxiety. The whole theme is NOT to "try hard" as this slows up action and increases tremors. Taking plenty of time to obey a given command is half the battle.

Of great assistance is rhythm, counting slowly, and repeating the maneuver over and over. Thus, unneeded muscles will be quiet while those that contract will do so in an orderly manner. The instruction must be repeated "let yourself go" and all are urged to acquire the same feeling they have when dropping off to sleep.

Within a few weeks it should be possible to go thru the relaxing episodes almost automatically—lying down as well as sitting up. In this connection, a tub or a pool partially filled will be helpful. Because of the buoyancy of the water, exercises may be performed with less fatigue. Then the repetition of the tasks—day after day, week after week—will finally bring success.

As soon as this first stage has been passed the child should be asked to stand with support—with the feet slightly apart, the arms hanging loosely. Knowing that help is near, he should be encouraged to take a step, placing each foot squarely on the floor deliberately and calmly. A chair or some other object to which he can hold may be advisable at first. Gradually the process will become less fearsome, and with confidence advancement will follow.

Speech re-training may well be left until body control has been developed fairly well. Here again the structures of the throat must be induced to relax. Gentle massage of the neck, shoulders, and face for 20 to 30 minutes should precede pronunciation.

CRACKED SKIN.

O. K. writes: What causes the skin on the palms of the hands to crack open?

REPLY.

Of the many conditions which may be responsible, the most common are ringworm or eczema. Sensitivity to some irritant with which you come in contact should be considered.

FIVE, OR FOUR AND ONE?

J. S. writes: Do we have five fingers or four fingers and a thumb?

REPLY.

Take your choice. The Oxford dictionary says we have five fingers on each hand. In common parlance, however, we speak of the thumb and four fingers.

THE WORLD WAR 25 YEARS AGO

[From Tribune Files.]

Nov. 27, 1914.

[122d day of world war; 88th day of present war.]

SHERNESS, England.—The British battleship Bulwark was destroyed by a terrific explosion as it lay off here. There were only 14 survivors of the crew of 700 or 800 men who were aboard. Naval experts believed the disaster was due to an accident in the magazine.

LONDON.—Earl Kitchener, speaking in the house of lords, said the Russians had defeated the Germans with the heaviest losses suffered by the latter up to that time. Allied losses had been heavy but slight compared to those of the enemy, he said.

BERLIN.—Reports from Berne said that the French losses up to Nov. 1 were 130,000 men killed, 370,000 wounded, and 167,000 missing. It was officially denied that Germans were losing to Russians in East Prussia.

ROME.—Nationals of hostile countries resident in Jerusalem have been arrested and are being kept in concentration camps. Their houses have been looted by Turkish soldiers.

AN ICONOCLAST.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—I noted recently a letter in your column about the rubber stamp legislator who is a shining example of loyalty [for a price] to any man elevated to the presidency for a few fleeting years and soon forgotten, unless he can maneuver the United States into war, still dominates the minds of otherwise intelligent people. The people may have a hazy idea that the legislator is a dishonest self-seeker, but the idea is not sufficiently ingrained in their souls to resist the political sophistries daily blaring from the loud speaker.

The old English woman who a few days ago shouted, "Hypocrites," at the solemn frauds posing before the tomb of the unknown soldier in a London square will awaken a few thinking people to the understanding that the tomb was not erected as a tribute to the hapless boy who gave his life as a pawn to the belief that force will further the cause of the great Jew who said, "Put up thy sword. The way of life I have presented will never be made acceptable to men by force of arms."

A toast to the gallant old lady who had the moral courage to expose the pious hypocrites. A BREAKER OF IDOLS.

ADVICE TO PETRILLO.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—I believe the musicians' union is definitely wrong in its handling of the high school band situation. As a member of the park board, Petrillo should prove himself as worthy of office by promoting the interests of these amateurs at all public functions. He would make the public think a lot better of him by doing so and could do a lot of good for the youngsters. The union should sponsor a yearly contest between amateur bands and offer cups and medals to the winners. [A Petrillo cup wouldn't sound bad.]

The musician has a hard and thankless job, and no one wishes to put any union musicians out of work. But the parks and streets are public property and the parents of these boys help to pay for them.

No public spirited American would try to deny them the use of same as long as they are not receiving wages for their work. A FORMER AMATEUR MUSICIAN.

SHE'S BEGUN TO SHINE.

Chicago, Nov. 22.—Thanks for printing Dr. Crane's Horse Sense Quiz. It's helped me to overcome an inferiority complex I've had for years.

I've always considered myself a punk conversationalist; never could understand politics, and sports just doesn't seem to interest me. When I went to school I flunked in languages, science, and literature, and had a tough time getting thru anything else except the three Rs.

Since I've left school I can't seem to get any further than clerking in a grocery store, but when it comes to your Horse Sense Quiz I've hit 100 per cent every time. And in our own friendly competition some of my more intelligent friends haven't been able to equal my average.

Don't let them get too hard or I'll probably have to go back to my old hat. GEORGIAROSE.

FOR "THE QUARANTINE BRIDGE."

Chicago, Nov. 24.—While we are wondering what name to give the Michigan avenue bridge, why not consider giving the Outer drive bridge a more consistent title? Perhaps this already has been done by the President.

Obviously the structure should be called the Quarantine Bridge. And at the dedication the guests of honor should be Hitler, Mussolini, and Stalin. But they must be frisked before taking their seats. L. J. K.

NAVAJOS AND HOPIS IN NEED.

Chicago, Nov. 24.—The gaunt specter of starvation today stalks the footsteps of a large proportion of the Navajo, Hopi, and other Pueblo Indians of New Mexico and Arizona and to a greater and less degree many tribes of the northern plains. Drouth more severe in the southwest than at any time in the last 50 years threatens the lives of hundreds of families who have, because of soil erosion and other factors, been eking out a precarious living. Failure of crops has jeopardized Indian lives and what is almost as vital for the future, the lives of thousands of cattle and sheep. Some Indian families are entirely without food.

The Indian commissioner, Mr. John Collier, says that the predicament of the Indians in drouth-stricken areas is peculiarly desperate because in many cases the Indians live at a bare subsistence level in normal times. Also local agencies mistakenly assume that Indians are somehow supported by the government. Nothing could be further from the truth. Indians must stand on their own feet in spite of local discriminations that often work severe hardships. The public should help. [MRS.] RUTH WHEATLEY.

METHOD OF PICKING JUDGES.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—I noted a letter by Dean Edward T. Lee, which suggests a change in our system of electing judges, which has some merits, but since our judges are now practically all appointed by the politicians and the voters have nothing really to say, I have the following suggestion:

The lawyers of Cook county should recommend 100 names of their group and send them to the governor. The governor should appoint 20 judges out of that group for a period of 10 years. The people should have the right by petition to remove any judge, at any time, after one year in office should he prove unsatisfactory.

I feel that thru this system judges would have no obligations other than to the people. J. R. SELMAN.

OUR OLD AGE PENSION.

Olney, Ill., Nov. 22.—I see Gov. Horner will call a special session to increase old age pensions. Very fine, Mr. Horner! But do you know the present old age pension law is rotten? Old age pensions should, at least, be given to anybody with less than $500 a year income. Our young men are playing with the shovels while the old ones are doing the hard work. S. H.

THINKS KERMIT'S NEGLECTED.

Chicago, Nov. 25.—Why all the silence on the part of the press—beyond the merest mention—regarding the fact that Kermit Roosevelt, son of the late Theodore Roosevelt, has not only accepted a commission in the British army but has become a British subject?

Can you imagine what indignation would be shouted if any of the Franklin Roosevelt branch pulled such a trick? AMERICAN.

A BACK DOOR RACKET.

Chicago, Nov. 23.—I have learned a lesson and hope others will profit thereby. In September a man came to my door with a hard luck story, begging for magazine subscriptions. I gave him 60 cash for one year's subscription to Liberty magazine. Now Macfadden Publications write me they can find no record of my subscription. MRS. T. WOLFF.

EARNING IN THE HOME.

Wallace, Mich., Nov. 23.—Would it be possible to have a small corner in your paper to help people to earn money in the home by asking those who have done it to send in their own ideas and their methods of practical help that have proved a success? A. D.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

SHARE IN ESTATE.

Chicago, Nov. 22 [Legal Friend of the People].—About 18 years ago my father died leaving a will for seven children. The will was in probate. He left us each $10,000. About three years before I was of age the [1] administrator died and we found out that he spent the money of the estate.

2. We obtained a lawyer and the result was that I received $2,400 instead of the $10,000. I was young at the time and did not think anything of it.

3. The administrator was under bond. What I want to find out is:

4. If he was bonded should not the bonding company make good for what he spent?

5. If so, can I do anything about it now?

6. If so, how can I go about this? This happened in the state of Illinois. The estate is not closed yet.

MRS. F. K.

1. The personal representative named in a will is called an executor rather than an administrator. An administrator would be under bond but an executor named in a will would ordinarily not be under bond since most wills expressly excuse the furnishing of a bond.

2. The lawyer was in a better position to advise you than we are.

3. This seems somewhat unusual in view of the fact that there was a will.

4. Your first step should be to look up the facts in the office of the clerk.

5 and 6. See 4.

ADOPTION.

Evanston, Ill., Nov. 22 [Legal Friend of the People].—We desire [with the mother's approval] to adopt a little girl who has boarded in our home for a year and a half.

1. How can I go about this?

2. Would the fact that my husband makes but $25 per week be a bar to the adoption? My father lives with us and has a pension of $100 per month. Both my husband's and my father's money go to the maintenance of the home. We have a little girl of 6 years of our own. [Both of the children, my own and the child we wish to adopt, are beautifully healthy.]

3. Would the child's father, who deserted the mother prior to the child's birth, have to sign adoption papers? The parents are not divorced, and we do not know the father's whereabouts.

4. What would be the steps in this adoption?

5. What would the fees be?

MRS. N. O.

1. Proceedings in the County court would be necessary for which you should presumably employ an attorney.

2. A social worker would inspect the home to determine its fitness. The amount of your husband's income would be considered with other facts.

3. No.

4. See 1.

5. Depends largely on the attorney whom you employ.

Bodily Well-Being at Its Peak

YOU will probably never experience more of the feeling of bodily well-being, realized as such at the time, than you'll feel in a mineral bath at The Homestead's well-conducted private Spa.

In these sparkling tonic waters, utilized at their source, is made understandable and convincing the basic reason for all the fountain-of-youth legends which have arisen for centuries.

And a full fortnight's experience of their storied efficacy can be yours, any time before March 15th, for as little as $115—which special rate includes all living expenses at The Homestead for the period.

There's nothing new about this offer but the lowered price; the results the Spa gets are well known, well authenticated.

U. S. JURY RENEWS QUIZ OF GAMBLER INCOMES TODAY

Report Capone Syndicate Is Target of Probe.

BY JAMES DOHERTY.

William J. Campbell, United States attorney, kept secret yesterday the major facts about the grand jury investigation that is to begin this morning. All that was announced officially was that it is a resumption of the inquiry into incomes from syndicate gambling.

Campbell declined to name the person or persons against whom indictments might be sought. The prosecutor permitted the announcement that William Johnson, reputed head of Chicago's gambling syndicate, will be available for questioning.

Associate Under Indictment.

In the September session a federal grand jury winged William R. Skidmore, Johnson's pal and the man said to handle the gambling payoff, but subpena servers could not find Johnson. At the same time the government had two other grand juries in session investigating the extent of the M. L. Annenberg race news service.

Campbell intimated that the government is not thru asking questions about Skidmore's income, and that after him comes Dennis Cooney, the 1st ward café man.

Capone Gang Suggested.

There was considerable speculation in political circles whether Campbell's investigation was to affect only gambling with political strings—such as supplied by Johnson, Skidmore, and Cooney—or the kind that is backed by the muscle.

There was a belief that Campbell's main objective was the breaking up of the Capone syndicate—the muscle boys.

The breaking up of the Annenberg wire service, which supplied racing news to bookies thruout the country, is said to have given the Capone syndicate a long sought opportunity. If the gang could start where Annenberg left off, it might control horse racing all over the country, it was suggested. Campbell is said to be determined to prevent any such result of his investigations.

QUIZ IN BURNING OF DANCE HALL IS PLANNED TODAY

Sheriff Lester Edinger of McHenry county said yesterday several persons will be questioned today in connection with the destruction early Saturday of a Fox River Grove dance hall by six arsonists. Edinger will be assisted by Frank E. Doherty, chief deputy state fire marshal; Donald A. Wicks, assistant state's attorney, and Deputy Sheriff Paul Bertram, a former chief deputy state fire marshal. Edinger said Edward Cernocky, one of the owners, would be questioned again today. The dance hall, known as Louis' Crystal ballroom, was guarded by a night watchman and the village fire chief. The two were kidnaped by the hoodlums and released after the fire was started. Damage was estimated at $20,000. The pavilion was insured for $25,000.

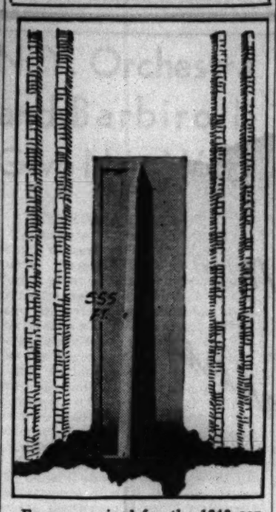
OPEN ANNENBERG FIGHT TODAY ON U. S. INDICTMENTS

Arguments to quash the federal indictments against M. L. Annenberg, Philadelphia publisher and New Deal critic, will be heard today by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson. Annenberg and nineteen of his associates are accused of income tax evasion, conducting a lottery, perjury, and conspiracy to bribe a government witness. The arguments will be based on the plea that the indictments are faulty. One of the intricate points of law backing the plea is that the June grand jury was empowered only to take up the alleged income tax evasion.

Lawyer Faces Court Today After Row in Hotel Buffet

Robert E. Romano, well known defense lawyer in criminal cases, will appear in the Chicago avenue court today to defend himself on a charge of disorderly conduct. He was arrested early yesterday after a quarrel with another man in the buffet lounge of the Drake hotel. Romano is 33 years old and lives at 902 South Ashland avenue.

Ship Census Blanks



Forms required for the 1940 census would make four stacks one and one-half times as tall as the Washington monument.

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26 (AP).—Getting into practice for next year's titanic task of counting the population, some one at the census bureau figured out today that:

The census forms, if stacked one on another, would be six times as high as the Washington monument. [Actually they will be stacked in 56 mail cars.] Employés in 665 offices in the field will mail 27,000,000 envelopes. Forty million questionnaires will be printed.

The bureau announced that the first carload of supplies left for the west coast today. Eight more carloads needed in the business and manufacturers censuses will be sent by Dec. 3. Material for the censuses of population, agriculture, and housing will be shipped between Jan. 15 and Feb. 15.

4 MORE BLAZES SPUR WAUKEGAN FIREBUG SEARCH

Citizens Aroused; Join Police in Hunt.

Waukegan authorities yesterday spurred their search for a firebug after four more fires were set early in the morning. Fourteen fires have been set in Waukegan since Sept. 22 and have caused damage estimated at more than $45,000.

Mayor Mancel Talcott said last night that the city is aroused. The congregation of the First Congregational church, which was burned a week ago yesterday, has volunteered its aid, as have many other citizens.

Talcott said residents were afraid to leave their homes unguarded at night and that there were insufficient police to establish night patrols.

One of the fires which were set yesterday was in the Trinity Lutheran church, Oak and Liberty streets. The attempt to burn the church was discovered by the Rev. Arthur E. Enquist when he arrived to open the building. A basement window had been forced open and leaves had been piled on the sill and ignited. The blaze had burned itself out without setting fire to the structure.

Sept. 22, 9:31 p. m.—M. H. Hussey Lumber company, Clayton and Sand streets; $4,500 damage.

Oct. 8, 2:50 a. m.—P. R. Simmons granary, Market and Water streets; $75.

Oct. 8, 3:49 a. m.—Spero Motor Sales, 415 South Genessee street; $2,000.

Oct. 22, 12:33 a. m.—Gordon Junk company, Market and Water; $10.

Oct. 22, 1:53 a. m.—Ferry's Furniture Repair shop, 98 West Madison street; no damage.

Oct. 22, 1:56 a. m.—Hussey Lumber company; $15,500.

Oct. 22, 2:48 a. m.—James O'Shea residence, 448 North Genessee; $50.

Nov. 5, time unknown—North school, 410 Franklin street; $15.

Nov. 9, 2:11 a. m.—Vacant house, 809 North County street; $800.

Nov. 19, 12:48 a. m.—First Congregational church, Grand avenue and Utica street; $22,325.

Nov. 26, time unknown — Trinity Lutheran church, Oak and Liberty streets; slight damage.

Nov. 26, 12:07 a. m.—Bicycle repair shop, 904 South Genessee; no damage.

Nov. 26, 12:30 a. m.—National Envelope company, 10th and Genessee; no damage.

Nov. 26, 12:59 a. m. — Lake County Manufacturing and Jobbing company, 660 South Genessee; $100.

Authorities fear that the firebug may start a disastrous blaze in the business district.

BOARD PUTS END TO FREE LUNCHES IN ELGIN SCHOOL

Fears Program Will Make WPAers of Pupils.

Members of the Elgin school board say they may be old fashioned, but they believe school children should be taught self-reliance and not encouraged to grow up with the idea the government owes them a living.

For this reason there will be no more free government lunches in the Edward H. Abbott Junior High school, starting today. The school board voted, 4 to 3, last week to discontinue serving food furnished by the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation.

Lunches Served One Month.

The free lunches were inaugurated a month ago as an experiment sponsored by the Parent-Teacher association and the FSCC. Each day the students were given a tasty dish prepared by the domestic science classes and a WPA cook.

"Some of the board members thought it wasn't proper to accept surplus food from the government," C. Roy Dougherty, president of the school board, said. "They thought it was un-American and would give the school children the idea that the government owed them a living.

"Some members even said it would make WPAers out of the children. They pointed out that there is too much stress these days on government help."

Plan Low Cost Cafeteria.

Dougherty said the board is considering a plan to operate a low cost cafeteria in the school to provide light lunches to the pupils.

Mrs. Alma C. Tobin, president of the school's Parent-Teacher association, protested the board's action. She said the government food provided lunches for needy and under privileged children. She said that from 100 to 150 of the school's 400 pupils availed themselves of the free lunches.

"All of the students were entitled to the lunches," she said. "There was no singling out of the rich from the poor. We felt the free lunches were a fine thing. Besides, it cost the school board nothing."

Urge Rescinding of Ban.

Mrs. Tobin said the association would ask the board to rescind its action and permit the lunches to be served. She pointed out the board has accepted government aid thru the PWA to build school additions.

Members of the board who voted against the government lunches are Vincent Coleman, investment business; Charles Flora, plastering contractor; Mrs. Harold Pearsall and Dr. O. C. Prideaux, dentist. Those who voted for the lunches are Ray G. Geister, lumber dealer; Burt J. Phillips, automobile accessories, and James M. Stewart, an official of the Elgin Softener corporation. Dougherty is an employé of the Milwaukee road.

Relief officials said approximately 350 schools thruout the state are receiving food from the FSCC. This includes Chicago schools where free lunches are furnished to needy children.

Gov. Bricker Resists Demand to Boost Ohio's Relief Outlay

Columbus, O., Nov. 26 [Special].—Efforts of politicians and professional relief workers to force the state to make larger relief payments to Ohio cities are meeting firm resistance from Gov. John W. Bricker.

Committed to a policy of no new taxes, and limited by the state's constitution to a 1 per cent property tax levy for general state purposes, the governor refused to increase relief appropriations beyond 10 million dollars annually in making his 1939-'40 budget. The state, whose relief funds are obtained from a 3 per cent sales tax, matches whatever relief funds the cities appropriate.

The legislature last year provided methods by which the cities could obtain more money for relief. These included a limited increase in property tax; diversion of automobile license fees, inheritance taxes, and delinquent tax bonds, and transfer of income from public owned utilities.

$500,000 Increase Provided.

Gov. Bricker and his cabinet believe that with the state appropriation, and the means provided by the legislature the cities should be well able to care for their relief needs. For this reason the state administration looks upon the so-called relief crises in Toledo and Cleveland as attempts to coerce the governor and legislature into providing more money.

The state relief program provides for spending $500,000 a month more for relief in November and December than was spent in September and October. The diversion of automobile license fees for relief purposes has been attacked and a decision of the Ohio Supreme court is awaited before these funds can be released.

Voters in many large cities, notably Toledo, defeated local relief bond issues by large majorities. Only Dayton and Portsmouth passed the levies, and since have found the income adequate for their needs. Cincinnati, Columbus, Youngstown, Arkron, Canton, Alliance, and Massillon have had no difficulty in meeting relief needs.

Burton Attacks Bricker.

Some of these cities, however, have joined Mayor Harold Burton of Cleveland in his demand for a special session of the legislature. Burton chose a recent convention session of the Ohio Chamber of Commerce, with about 1,000 business men present, to attack Gov. Bricker's relief program.

The governor sat thru Burton's attack and then replied with a sharp rebuke, putting Cleveland's relief situation squarely upon the shoulders of Burton and the city council. Cleveland did not submit a bond issue proposal.

Toledo has been forced to close its public schools until after the new year because voters turned down a special levy for school purposes. Delay in diversion of auto license fees also has left the city without money to carry its former relief load of 20,000 cases.

Toledo Drops 10,000 Cases.

Toledo dropped 10,000 relief cases Sept. 15 and expected a repetition of the food riots and depredations which occurred two years ago. Instead, hundreds who had been on relief for long periods got jobs. Churches are helping hundreds more, and others have gotten aid from relatives and friends.

City Manager George N. Schoonmaker, encouraged by this showing of enterprise, said today that he believes relief expenses can be cut at least one-third in Toledo.

A survey of 51 Toledo industries last month showed 19,320 persons had jobs. This is 666 more than a year ago in the same industries. At least 3,500 Toledo workers are idle now because the plants in which they are employed are feeling a backwash from the Chrysler strike in Detroit. Conclusion of the Chrysler strike would send these workers back to their jobs at once.

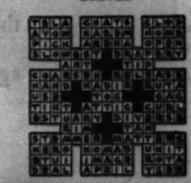
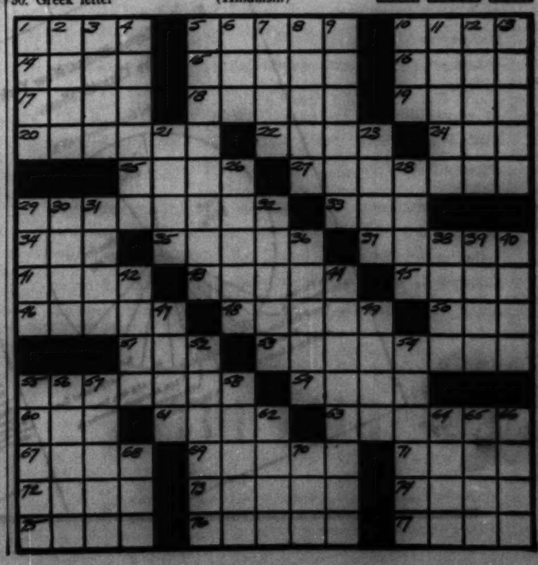
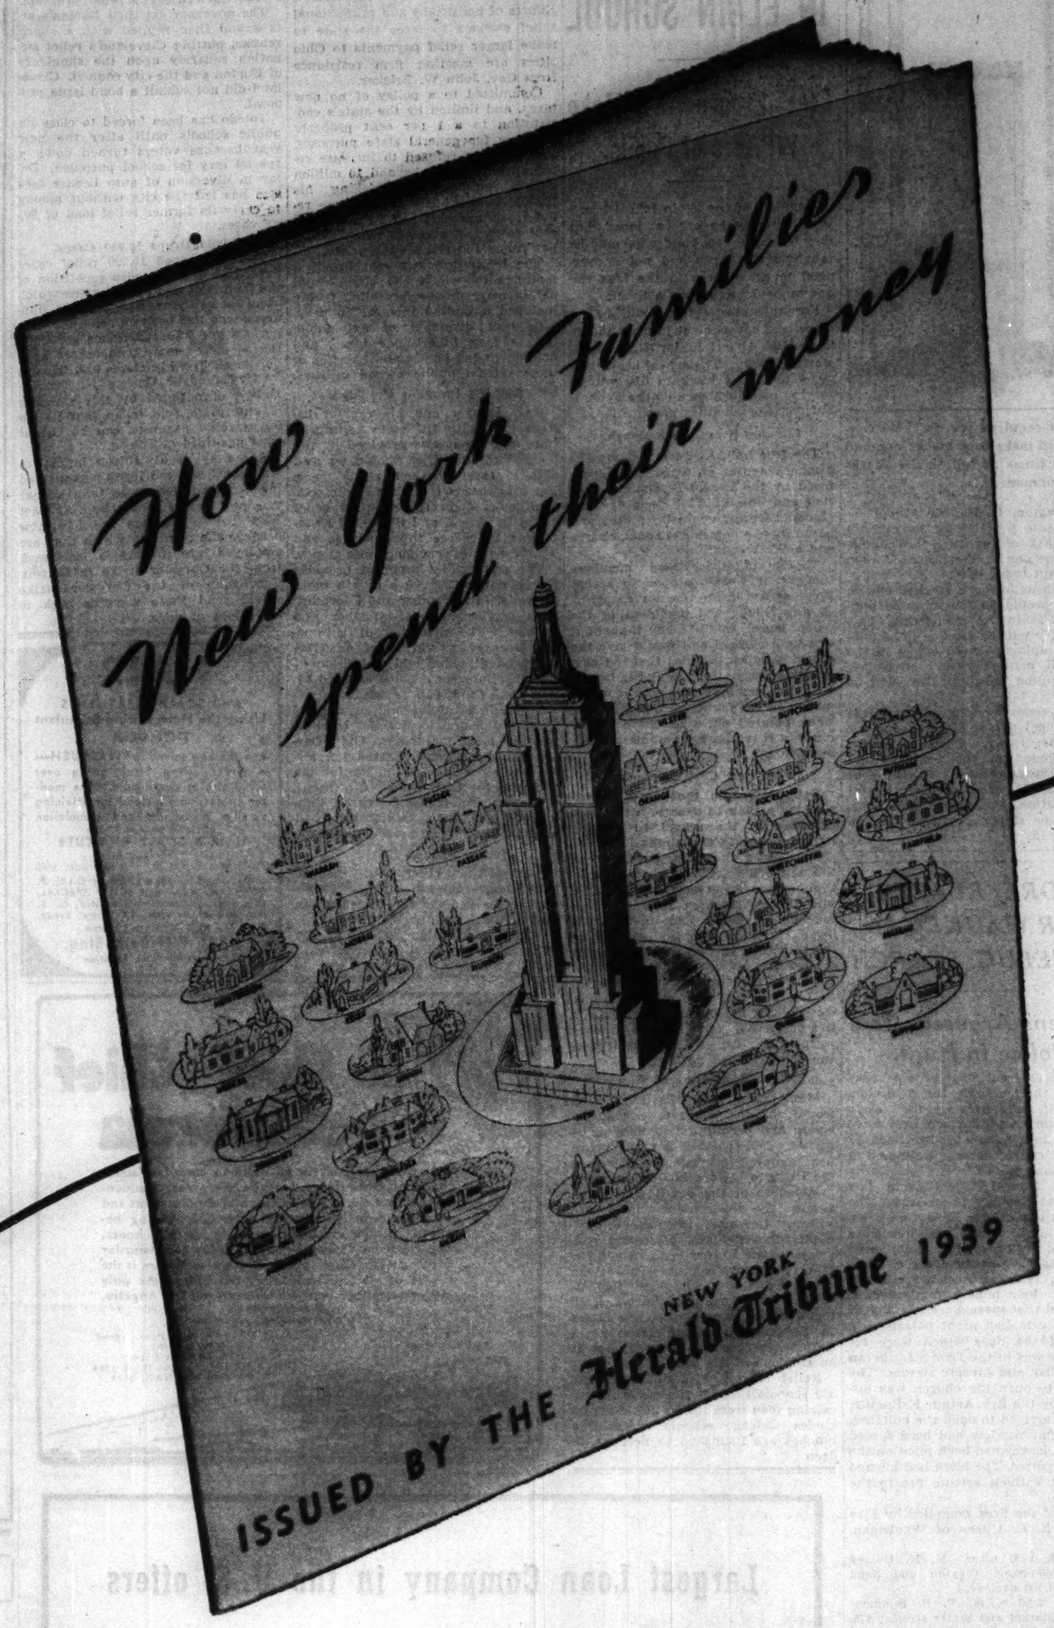
SATURDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED







What do New York families spend for food, clothing, housing, home equipment, transportation, and other major items?

New light is thrown on these perennially important queries by the New York Herald Tribune pamphlet shown here. It is based on the widely discussed "Urban Study of Consumer Purchases." That study was made by the U. S. Bureau of Labor Statistics and other federal agencies in 1936; released in detail in 1938. It was projected by Curtis Publishing Company, with government aid; and is now related, by the Herald Tribune, to the entire New York Market.

Families are grouped not by neighborhoods or wealth, but by expenditure. Of all families surveyed, the top-spending half pays out nearly twice as much as the bottom half on food; four times as much on home furnishings and equipment. The top quarter spends four times as much as the bottom quarter on tobacco; nine times as much on amusements and recreation. The whole study gives further proof of the value, to advertisers, of the middle-income-and-upward families with whom the Herald Tribune is closely identified, both in New York City and in its Suburbs.

Agencies and advertisers may get copies of the pamphlet — while our limited supply lasts — by using coupon.

Rose Clad Girl Comes Back in 'Moulin Rouge'

"A NIGHT AT THE MOULIN ROUGE."

Revue in two acts and 22 episodes. Designed and staged by Jean Le Seyeux. Dances and ensembles composed by Natalie Komarova. Music and lyrics by George Komaroff. Sketches by Jimmy Savage. Presented in the Grand Opera house, Sunday evening, Nov. 26, 1939.

THE PLAYERS.

BY CECIL SMITH.

"A Night at the Moulin Rouge" is one of those extraordinary pieces which a drama reviewer must approach in gingerly fashion if he wants to avoid sticking his neck out. If the raucous enjoyment of the first night audience is any indication, it may turn out to be a great box office success, just as Olsen and Johnson's mad nonsense called "Hellzapoppin'" did in New York, where it is still running after more than a year.

"A Night at the Moulin Rouge" is partly a pale imitation of "Hellzapoppin'," by which I mean that it is a roundup of oldtime vaudevillians, familiar thru their regular activity at the Palace before the death of vaudeville there. The show has good talent scattered all the way thru, and on occasion it even has good material. Nobody appears too often; Helen Morgan appears only once, in a potpourri of her well thumbed repertoire; Ada Leonard is to be seen—quite thoroly—twice; Stan Kavanagh puts in only one appearance, with his magnificent juggling, his mute address, and his antic mien.

The burden of the show is carried by the noisy, tumbling Slate brothers, by a diversity of dancers and dance teams, and by "les girls." These last are of two classifications—the stately show girls, in the mode of the "Scandals" and "Vanities" of an earlier day, and the routine chorines.

Lest you derive the false impression that "A Night at the Moulin Rouge" is merely a succession of vaudeville skits and dances, let me hasten to disabuse you. The production is lousy with production numbers, garishly but obviously economically costumed and set. These production numbers hark back to a day when color harmony and intellectual effort were both unknown elements in the musical theater.

If you like to see chorines imitating the waves of the sea and holding sea gulls aloft, this is the show for you. If you think "A Garden of Roses" is a stimulating subject for a pink ensemble, with show girls clad as the Marshal Foch rose, the Rose of Picardy, et al, you will burn up the sidewalk to the Grand Opera house box office.

The best I can say for the spectacular elements of "A Night at the Moulin Rouge" is that they carry a dim suggestion of the Follies Bergére tradition, and that they will arouse nostalgia in some spectators for the decors and ideology of the musical shows of a generation ago. Personally I could not decide whether to be carried away by such a historic sense or simply to admit that I found its lush pretense rather revolting.

From time to time, of course, the human body is revealed in all its stark wonderfulness. Both Miss Leonard and Jewel Layton offer their undecorned figures upon the altar of art. Miss Layton has an odd habit of popping up wearing nothing but a tinsel butterfly, or perhaps a candid camera.

Sharon De Vries' use of her body is considerably more amusing. She is a riotously funny girl when she contorts herself all over a grotesque adagio dance. In fact, she is good nearly all the time, even when she sings "Kiss Me Again" with a full supply of corollary antics.

Next to Mr. Kavanagh [a true trouper if there ever was one] and Miss De Vries, the most entertaining members of the cast are the Slate Brothers, whose humor is mostly either lewd or epicene, and Buster Shaver with his attractive midgets, Olive and George.

Performance of Musical 'Little Women' Postponed

The performance of Mrs. Eleanor Everest Freer's musical adaptation of Louisa M. Alcott's "Little Women," scheduled for tomorrow night at the Civic theater, has been postponed until a later date, the Chicago City Opera committee under whose sponsorship the opera will be given, announced yesterday.

LOVE-A-BYE TIME.

Jocelyn rocks in her rock-a-bye chair,
Mothering Dolly and Theodore Bear.
The clock is tick-tocking
In tune with her rocking,
Tick-tock, 7 o'clock, rock, rock.
With sand in her eyes
She sings lullabies.

Rock-a-bye, Bear, you're a sleepyhead!

(Love-a-bye, Jocelyn, daughter so fair,

Russian Composer.

A 75 year old man with fading blue eyes and a short blond-gray beard sat at a piano in the David Dushkin school in Winnetka the other evening and played a program of his own compositions and songs, with Maria Kurenko singing them, to an appreciative audience. He was Alexander Gretchaninoff, famous Russian composer, once a refugee to Paris, now a second time refugee from war.

Gretchaninoff's choir music is world famous and Russian school boys know it and his Over the Steppes as well as their A-B-C's. Chaliapin sang his songs in Paris, and Prince Alexis Obolensky, now appearing in Leave It to Me under the name of Alexis Bolan, sang his Credo in Carnegie hall, New York. Stokowski visited Gretchaninoff in Paris last summer and asked to play his Fifth Symphony. It was played by the Philadelphia Symphony orchestra this autumn, while the composer was on the ocean.

Yesterday Composer Gretchaninoff had the pleasure of greeting two white Russians who had known and loved his music in Russia—Col. George Voevodsky and Prince Obelensky, brother officers in the late czar's regiment, the Chevalier Guards. During the first world war the two had played and sung Gretchaninoff's choir music many times in chapels filled with soldiers. Yesterday the three were together at the Voevodsky home in Libertyville.

About Flagstad.

Kirsten Flagstad sings Tannhäuser with the opera this evening. . . . You might like to know, as you see her in the robes of the saintly Elizabeth, that the great Wagnerian soprano has a sense of humor. Remember the satire on Die Walküre in Nancy Hamilton's One for the Money, which played in Chicago early in the year, in which Miss Hamilton explained the plot to a dinner companion, and demonstrated Flagstad's singing of Brünnhilde's Ho-yo-to-ho song, calling the Valkyries, with a silver dish cover as a shield? Miss Flagstad heard about the takeoff of one of her greatest rôles, went around to see the play, enjoyed the satire immensely, and went back stage to see Miss Hamilton afterward.

Community Fund Drive Reaches 60 Per Cent Mark

A. H. Mellinger, general chairman, announced yesterday that the Community Fund campaign has received $42,000 from the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, exclusive of employé-executive subscriptions not yet completed. Further subscriptions, according to Mark A. Brown, chairman of the industrial division, have pushed the 1939 campaign to 60 per cent of its $3,611,000 goal.

N. Y. Orchestra and Barbirolli Give New Work

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Yesterday's Auditorium theater benefit concert for the Children's Memorial hospital, played by New York's great Philharmonic-Symphony orchestra, served to introduce to Chicago an unfamiliar conductor, John Barbirolli, and a new work, Weinberger's variations and fugue on "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree."

Mr. Barbirolli, now in his third year as conductor, turns out to be a modest, serious young fellow who uses with skill and restraint the magnificent musical instrument which good fortune has put into his hands.

His skill was apparent yesterday in the general solidity and vigor of the performance of such standard works as the Beethoven Seventh symphony and Berlioz's "Roman Carnival" overture. This means that meters were straightforward and tone colorings suitable, and that the conductor's rhythmic drive was sufficient to put life into the performance but not to distort it out of all semblance to the composer's intention.

And this leads neatly over into the subject of Mr. Barbirolli's restraint, for he is not a virtuoso conductor in the evil sense of the term. He was satisfied to let phrases seem to seek their own contours rather than to be bent into "interesting" shapes. He was satisfied, too, to define his orchestral colorings clearly without insisting that the continuity of the music be broken to allow the audience to drown itself in some wayside pool of sound.

Mr. Barbirolli's platform manner is quite restrained. Very seldom does he make gestures or assume attitudes which could possibly be construed as directed to the audience rather than to the orchestra. And even if such a construction should be correct, this is no capital crime as long as the music is let more or less alone.

Jaromir Weinberger's new work, the variations and fugue on "Under the Spreading Chestnut Tree," has something of the virtuosity, the humor, and the healthy, out-of-doors quality of the familiar polka and fugue from his "Schwanda." By the use of elaborate musical devices which do not obtrude themselves unduly he transmutes the little tune into a variety of shapes, most of them suggestive of some phase of English life, literature, or history. There are "The Madrigalists," "The Black Lady of the Sonnets," "The Highlanders"—and even a musical delineation of the conversation of two characters out of "Pickwick Papers."

The fugue with which the work concludes is as stunning a demonstration as the corresponding piece in "Schwanda" of how a supposedly rigid form may become in the hands of genius an expression of a godlike gayety and freedom.

Besides the two nineteenth century works and the Weinberger novelty the program held only one other piece—Elgar's admirably written introduction and allegro for string quartet and string orchestra. Messrs. Piastro, Barozzi, Kurthy, and Schuster made up the string quartet. A capacity audience applauded enthusiastically thruout the afternoon.

UNUSUAL PIANO ITEMS

Helen Levine, pianist, gave more than usual interest to her solo recital in Kimball hall yesterday afternoon by presenting some little played items from the northeast of Europe. After she had made a substantial beginning with works by Brahms and Beethoven she turned to a group of short pieces by Miaskowsky, Scriabine, Liadoff Reblkoff. After these she played—for the first time in Chicago, as far as I know—Jan Sibelius' "Kyllikki," a three movement suite drawing its title from the name of a sorceress in the Kalevala, the great Finnish national epic poem.

The suite, composed in 1904, is not one of the composer's outstanding works, tho it is quite as good as the lesser Sibelius items our orchestral conductors are digging out these days. In content and manner it is strongly reminiscent of both the First and Second symphonies, which preceded it in the composer's output. It is effectively written for the piano, tho some passages remain rather dourly and grumpily down in the lower register of the instrument.

Miss Levine played the suite effectively and with good musical grasp. Her tone is big and full, and has only the disadvantage of never diminishing to a wholly satisfying pianissimo.

Good Morning!

KIND: Aviation drama.

DIRECTION: So so.

SETS, SCENERY, PHOTOGRAPHY: Satisfactory.

DIALOG: Scarcely adult.

STORY: Scenes are laid at a lonely airport somewhere in Alaska. Foreign legion sort of place that serves as refuge for flyers with black marks against their records. Hither comes "Loop" Gillan, supposed to have bailed out of a plane during an accident, leaving his passengers to crash. . . . Hither also comes the man really guilty—one Ralph Perry, who, unknown to the world at large, had taken Gillan's run on the day of the catastrophe.

Fate at last permits the despised Gillan to wring a confession from Perry and right himself in the eyes of the world. . . . Also to win the heart of the girl who had been the boss' darling before ye handsome hero put in an appearance. . . . Not much of a yarn.

AUDIENCE APPEAL: Little for the choosy.

Miss Gertrude Wassermann to Wed Professor

BY JUDITH CASS.

ROMANTIC news of particular interest in Winnetka and in University of Chicago circles is revealed today with the announcement from Prof. and Mrs. Friedrich Wassermann of the engagement of their daughter, Gertrude, to Edwin S. Fetcher Jr., the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin S. Fetcher of Winnetka.

Young Mr. Fetcher and his future father-in-law both are on the faculty at the University of Chicago, the former in the department of physiology. Miss Wassermann was born in Munich, Germany, and educated there and in Switzerland. She is continuing her studies at the university.

Mr. Fetcher is a graduate of Harvard and received his doctor of philosophy degree at Chicago. No date has been set for the wedding.

Mrs. Adam W. Beidler's Granddaughter to Wed.

Old friends of the Beidler family will be interested to learn of the approaching marriage on Dec. 2 in Atlanta, Ga., of Miss Louise Sciple, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Murphy Sciple, to Jay Powers Glenn. The mother of the bride-to-be is the former Miss Louise Beidler of Chicago. Her mother, Mrs. Adam Warner Beidler of the Drake hotel, will go south for the wedding.

Mr. Glenn is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Fisk Glenn, also of Atlanta. The wedding will take place in All Saints' Episcopal church. After a wedding trip, Mr. Glenn and his bride will move into a new home at 24 Collier road, Atlanta.

Alfred I. Barton, Manager of Miami Beach Club, Weds.

Of interest to every Chicagoan who ever has enjoyed himself at the exclusive Surf club in Miami Beach is the announcement of the marriage of the vice president and managing director of the club, Alfred I. Barton. Mr. Barton and Mrs. Sallie Gibbs Jones of New York and Surfside were married on Nov. 15 in New York, where Mr. Barton lives when he is not in Miami Beach. Mr. and Mrs. Barton will be at home after Dec. 1 at the Park Lane in New York.

John B. Drake will be receiving his friends at St. Luke's hospital for the next two or three weeks at least. Mr. Drake was knocked down by an automobile at Wabash avenue and Madison street on Friday. One of his legs was broken in two places and he was badly shaken, but he is in good spirits and has started on the long road to recovery.

Bonbon Pink Makes Hit as Winter Color

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Staging a surprise entrance, dresses and accessories of bonbon pink made fashion headlines right in the midst of the annual flurry of Christmas shopping.

Delectable concoctions of soft velvet, duvetyn grosgrain, or satin ribbon make the flattering hats, some with matching ascots, some with belts, and some easily teamed with gloves of that lovely shell pink glow.

Twists and huge swirls of the velvet are used for the high altitude hats that highlight a dark winter costume. Neat little bellboy models without the chin straps are more tailored affairs, and the dashing bow tied turbans somehow or other achieve a new and telling flattery for any headline.

Those deceptively simple looking one-piece dresses of thin wool, the daytime uniforms of the well dressed woman, are particularly effective in this shade of pink. They'll glow with telling flattery under long fur coats and short fur jackets as well as under fur trimmed fabric coats—with black furs, especially, with all shades of brown furs, and with steel or platinum gray pelts.

One-piece dresses designed for afternoon wear or more dress parade occasions are matched with some simple two-piece suits also in the same delectable tint of pink. Such suits boast the double row of buttons down the form revealing jacket, a short skirt either circular in cut or flared with gores or inset with fine plaitings. The necklines are high enough so that the duet can be worn as a dress.

Costume accessories also in pink are exceptionally refreshing, for the shade isn't the routine in-between tone of dusty rose, but an authentic tea rose pink, flattering to every complexion. Tiny turbans, small skull caps tied with huge double bows, snappy little pill boxes are the best of the headline charmers for all dark winter coats and suits.

Soft glowing velvets, felts, grosgrain or satin ribbon and some of the soft chiffon thin woolens have been used with some eye catching results in these midseason toppers. Belts, bags, gloves, blouses, and even new handkerchiefs come in this feminine and new fashion shade.

Danger on the Border

By FREDERICK R. BECHDOLT

[Copyright: 1939: By Frederick R. Bechdolt]

SYNOPSIS.

Leonard speeds west by car after finding that the sample of ore sent to him by his sick friend, Dillon, is rich in gold. In Copper City he picks up two strange companions, Mrs. Sebastian, who owns a Mexican roadhouse, and Lolita Mestres, who claims to be a line jumper. They leave just after the pay car of the Golconda mine. In a lonely spot they come upon the car—all occupants murdered and the three holdup men still on the scene. They chase Leonard's car with a machine gun. Mestres drops tacks in the road and stops their pursuit. He recognizes one bandit as the mine's paymaster. Paul Collins, a crooked local assayer, tests Dillon's ore, and gives him a false report. He enlists the aid of another rascal, Kent, to cheat Dillon. Dillon breaks the sad news to Pat, an orphaned girl who owns an old hotel, and who had staked him; then goes off to collect his tools. Arriving at Pat's hotel Leonard doesn't get a chance to ask her about Dillon. He sees her slip out in the night with a gun. Distrusting Kent, Collins sends two hirelings to follow Dillon and locate his claim. Kent, suspicious, puts Pancho, an old watchman, on the trail. Taylor, the Golconda's paymaster, arranges with Kent to have Leonard blamed for his crime. In Collins' office Pat finds the correct report on Dillon's ore, but Kent and Collins discover her there. Kent kidnaps the girl in his car—her old Chinese servant clings to the spare tire. Leonard goes to see Mrs. Sebastian and walks into a trap set to capture him. Mestres is hobnobbing with one of the bandits and Mrs. Sebastian pretends not to know him.

INSTALMENT XIII.

A NARROW ESCAPE.

Leonard stepped into the room beyond. There was a single light burning and the air was laden with the smell of talcum powder. He noticed a huge bed with a bright pink counterpane, a crucifix on the wall, a dresser whose top was strewn with various toilet paraphernalia, a chair with several pink garments draped over its back, and he knew that he was in the sacred precincts of his respectable lady passenger's sleeping chamber.

He passed on through another door, and as he crossed the threshold a knob rattled loudly behind him. He had, he told himself, a minute's grace before the men who were seeking him smashed thru the flimsy barrier which held them back. It was dark in the third room, but the smell of garlic made his heart leap. This, then, would be the kitchen and there was sure to be a back door. It was the alley that he yearned for.

Leonard crossed the kitchen in darkness. He gripped the knob of the alley door, he turned it, swung the door open.

Leonard was in the alley, on either side of him, blank adobe walls, a little blacker than the surrounding darkness, before him, still a good two hundred yards away, a rectangle of dim light, that would be an open street.

He was swinging into full stride, bent low, invisible to any one in front, but—he knew this well—plainly outlined to any one behind him. A burst of voices told him that the men back there were emerging from the door which he had left. He whipped a glance over his shoulder just in time to see a thin red jet lick the blackness of the night. He heard the slug whine in ricochet from the wall beside him, and the report of the carbine. When he turned his eyes ahead, a man was running into the mouth of the alley They had him from both sides.

Leonard dodged into the deeper shadows beside the building walls. He had slackened his pace and such small sound as he made was drowned in the clatter of the pursuers. His arm went out and his hand glided along the rough, sun-dried bricks. Suddenly the slight pressure beneath his fingers ceased: They were groping at the empty air. He dived into a narrow space between two of the low, flat-roofed houses.

The lane was not much more than a yard wide, it ended in blackness and his progress was hindered by heaps of rubbish. He passed a faint blur of orange light and his hand slid along glass windowpanes, a drawn shade hid what lay within, the sound of voices came from behind it. A moment later he fetched up against a blank wall. The place was a cul-de-sac. He stood there for a second or two and it was in his mind that he might be able to climb to one of the flat roofs, but the projections of the weather-worn mud bricks were too slight to give him any footing. He turned and started back in the direction from which he had come.

As he advanced, the sound of the voices which he had heard within the house grew louder. Once his foot struck a tin can and the noise left him limp for an instant, he swore softly and crept on. The footsteps of his pursuers were audible now, they were drawing closer. But they were no longer running. Evidently they were sure they had him bottled up.

He stood before the window. It was a woman's voice within and she was angry. "I saw you with her this afternoon." There was no doubt as to that anger, she was, Leonard told himself, working herself up, she was near the breaking point. He saw a brighter streak of light at his waist level, his fingers found the bottom of the sash, he felt the stick that propped it open.

"She is a hussy, I tell you. She is——" The border Spanish is admirably suited to invective, the voice behind the shade was taking full advantage of all the opportunities which Aztecs and Mayas and Indians and Spaniards had supplied through jealous generations. Leonard raised the sash swiftly and the tirade ceased in mid-syllable. He thrust his leg across the sill, the shade gave back before him as he climbed into the room. He lowered the sash and stood aside, letting the curtain flutter into its place.

They were poor people, he thanked his stars for this as he took in the two of them and their surroundings. The woman was standing with her clenched fists pressed against her hips, her arms akimbo. She was a strapping creature, she was still young, but her youth was passing and hard work had taken its toll. There was passion in her bold face and there were lines which told a pathetic story of patient endurance.

The man was sitting on the bed, and he, too, was young, his thin features were pinched by apprehension. He hardly glanced at the newcomer, it was as if the latter's entrance had brought relief to him. His eyes were on his wife and they were uneasy. She was starting to speak again, when Leonard took off his sun helmet and bowed.

"It is," he said in Spanish, "that the constabulary are seeking me. I ask your help." He was watching her face. Her lips had closed to a thin red line, the man on the bed stirred and started to rise. Leonard thrust his hand into his pocket and brought out his billfold, he saw her eyes grow wider as he produced a $20 note. He went on swiftly.

"They have mistaken me for another whom they are hunting and I do not know any one in this place. I am not a thief. Senora, you can see this for yourself. But if they find me——" He threw forth his arms in a wide gesture, it brought the banknote under her eyes and they became luminous with a sudden hunger.

"If your husband were to open the back door and if he were to tell them that he had heard me——" he pointed toward the low ceiling, "——up there on the roof. That he had come out and seen me as I dropped off into the street beyond."

The man was rising from the bed and Leonard glanced at him, his face was lighting as with a great relief. The woman's fingers closed on the note. She nodded toward an inner room. Leonard stepped beyond the door and found himself in darkness. He heard the two of them talking swiftly in undertones, a moment the alley door opened and he listened to the buzz of voices The door banged shut and some time later there was silence. Leonard stepped back into the bedroom. The woman was standing as he had left her.

"They are gone," she told him. "And my husband, he has gone with them." She smiled. "To show them the way you fled."

He removed his helmet and he bowed. He thanked her.

The street at which the alley ended lay at right angles to the one before the house which he had just left, and it was by the latter thorofare that his fictitious escape had been made. The noise of the hunt had ceased, he kept to the shadow of the adobe walls as he made his way toward the open flat lands where the two custom houses stood, one on either side of the boundary. Save for a moth-eaten cat on some dubious errand, he was the only one abroad in this part of the village.

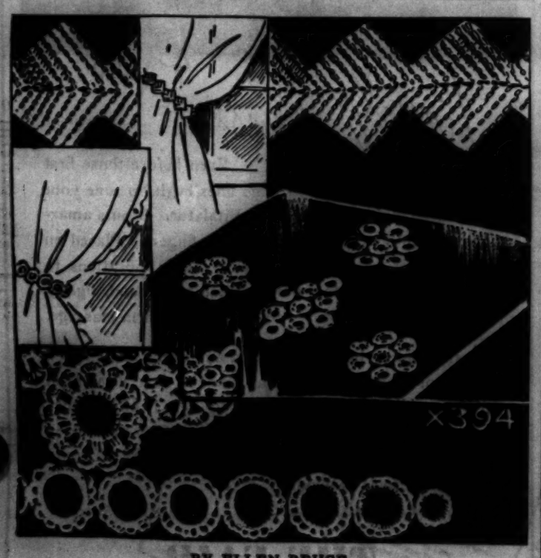
Crocheted Kitchen Items

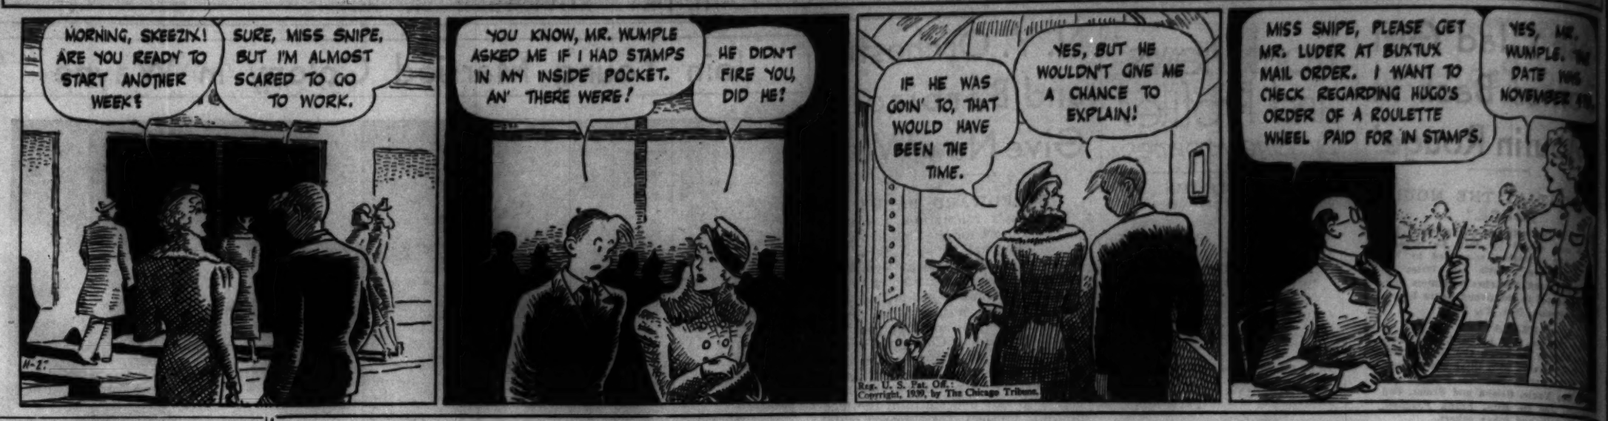


BY ELLEN BRUCE.

Crocheted curtain tie-backs and hot plate mats made around white bone rings create ideal gifts. Tie-backs matching the contrasting figures in draperies create an effective bit of decoration for the home. The crocheted hot plate mats are dainty to look at, simple to make and, most of all, utilitarian. They may be crocheted in any shape or size desired.

For instructions in crocheting the tie-backs and hot plate mats, No. X-394, send 20 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth Avenue, New York City.

GASOLINE ALLEY—CHECK AND DOUBLE CHECK



WINNIE WINKLE, THE BREADWINNER: Sherlock Dymopolus

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

"Dear Mr. Culbertson: My partner and I have had quite an argument about a hand we recently played at rubber bridge. I claim that the bidding was very "fancy" and each of us insists that the other had too little confidence in his partner. We would like to have your opinion on the matter. Here is the hand:

"South, dealer.

♥ K 10
♦ A K Q J 10 3

WEST
♠ K 10 7
♥ A Q J 7 4 3

EAST
♠ J 9 8
♥ 9 6 5 2
♦ 8 5 4 2

SOUTH
♣ K Q J 10 7 5 2

"The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 club	1 heart	2 no trump	Pass
3 spades	Pass	3 no trump	Pass
5 clubs	Pass	5 diamonds	Pass
6 clubs	Pass	Pass	Pass

"As you will notice, there is no play for six clubs. West opened the ace of hearts and continued the suit 1, sitting South, won the second heart trick with dummy's king and led trumps. I later managed to discard the spade losers on dummy's diamonds, but the opponents' two aces were too much for my slam bid.

"Our argument is about the bidding. I insist that North should have bid his diamonds like a normal human being instead of monkeying around with a no trump bid for which he had only a flimsy heart stopper and no spade stopper at all. But even if North's no trump bidding can be condoned I think that he should have left my five club bid undisturbed. After all, he never had supported my clubs, and I had jumped to five nevertheless. He had no reason to suppose that the hand would play better at five diamonds than five clubs, nor could he reasonably assume that I would realize the strength of his diamond suit and pass at five diamonds.

"North, on the other hand, maintains stoutly that his no trump bidding was fully justified and that I should have trusted him when he bid five diamonds. He claims that he knew my clubs needed no support and that his bid of five diamonds in such a situation showed a diamond suit which was certain to be at least as good as my clubs and probably better. His contention is that I should have passed five diamonds instead of going on to six clubs.

"Who is right?

"R. B., New Jersey."

I am afraid that North is right all the way thru. During the early rounds of bidding North cannot be blamed for thinking that three no trump will be easier to make than five diamonds. His bids of two and three no trump, while "fancy," are by no means unsound. After your jump to five clubs North is justified in going to five diamonds if he can rely on you to trust his judgment and bidding skill. For if you have confidence in North you must realize that he knows how strong your club suit is. If he goes to five diamonds in spite of that knowledge, he must be credited with enough sense to know what he is doing. The bid of five diamonds hardly can be taken as a cue bid or an invitation to a slam, in view of North's decidedly unslamish bidding up to that point. I must admit that the bidding can be read only by a good player, but from the tone of your letter I assume that you are precisely that. [Incidentally, however, you should have rebid your seven card club suit before mentioning a four card spade suit.]

As a matter of fact, the result fully justifies North's bid of five diamonds. Against a normal heart opening lead from East, North will have no difficulty in winning 11 tricks. But South's five club contract is unmakable against normal, sound defense. If West opens the ace of hearts and switches to a diamond South cannot take more than one discard at once, and if he does not run the diamonds then he never will be able to return to dummy later on. South will therefore lose a spade and a club, in addition to the heart ace.

ceremony will take place at 4:30 o'clock in the Church of the Holy Comforter in Kenilworth, with a reception following at the Kenilworth home of Mr. and Mrs. Davis. The other details will follow closely those arranged for the postponed ceremony. Mrs. Davis and Miss Davis recently returned from a holiday in Arizona where Miss Davis completed her convalescence.

Miss Betty Sue Cantrelle will have seven attendants when she is married to Nelson Thomasson III. on Dec. 9. Miss Karen Gardner will be the maid of honor. The bridesmaids include three former classmates of the bride at the Fairmount school, Miss Betty Kehoe of Toledo, O.; Miss Janet Brandes of Cleveland, and Miss Jane Bream of Pittsburgh; Miss Barbara Willson, Miss Denyse Root, and Miss Patty O'Neill.

Gardiner Thomasson will be his brother's best man. Ushering will be another brother, Norton; Thomas L. Moore of Richmond, Va.; Robert Wolff, Jack Graham, J. de Navarre Macomb Jr., Peter Prindiville, and Ernest Eversz.

Princeton Triangle Club Here 36th Time Dec. 28.

The news that the Yale Glee clubs have canceled their Christmas tour and so won't come to Chicago for a performance on Dec. 23 probably is disappointing to Yale alumni. The alumni of three other universities planning Christmas concerts here are cheered considerably by the withdrawal, however, for there won't be so much competition in selling tickets.

The Princeton Triangle club is the only eastern dramatic club that has played in Chicago almost consecutively for the last 36 years, consequently its annual revue is accepted as one of the events of the holiday season that can't be overlooked by either the debutante or subdebutante crowds. The Triangle will play on Dec. 28 in the Civic Opera house.

The Cornell Musical clubs, now coming to Chicago on a third visit in seven years, will be heard in a revue Dec. 27 in the grand ballroom at the Drake hotel. The University of Pennsylvania's Mask and Wig club will be the attraction at the Civic Opera house on Jan. 3.

It was Uri B. Grannis, then president of the Triangle, who brought the glee club to Chicago for its first appearance in 1903. The tour was made at Easter time then, and for the next few years following, for it took longer to get the show together. William A. Cremin, Arthur MacGregor Wood, and Charles Fitzmorris Jr. are the Chicago committee for the club's 51st offering, "Any Moment Now."

Mrs. Clive Runnels Will Give Dinner for Sons.

Mrs. Clive Runnels is giving a large "young" dinner party before the Triangle. She will entertain for her teen age sons, John, who attends the Thacher school, and Clive Jr., who is at Concord academy.

Proceeds from the Cornell club's show "In the Red" will go into the regional alumni scholarship fund. After the performance the ballroom will be cleared and the cast and audience will dance.

Pennsylvania alumni will give a supper-dance at the Palmer House after the Mask and Wig's performance of "Great Guns," its 52d annual production. The Cornell organization will be on its 42d annual Christmas tour.

Yale alumni are planning to receive the newly appointed director of alumni relations this week. He is Ogden Miller, class of 1930, of New Haven. Kent S. Clow and Gilbert Scribner are giving a luncheon at the Chicago club on Thursday for Mr. Miller. The Chicago Yale club will give a luncheon for him on Friday at the Palmer House.

Petit Lundi to Be Given at the Goodman Today.

Mr. and Mrs. Ambrose C. Cramer Jr. returned home on Friday from a short vacation in Pass Christian, Miss., and New Orleans, La., in order that Mrs. Cramer might attend the final rehearsal of the Petit Lundi which is to be presented at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Goodman Studio theater. Mrs. Cramer, Mrs. Philip Maher, Capt. W. H. Waters, and Georges Cauuet will interpret Georges Feydeau's one act comedy, "Feu la Mere de Madame." Mrs. T. W. Badger has designed the scenery for the play.

Also on the program will be Mrs. Byron Harvey Jr., who will present "Monologues."

Among those who will have luncheons before the performance are Mrs. Thomas Hinde, Mrs. Laird Bell, Mrs. John Andrews King, Mrs. H. Orr Perkins, Mrs. Alden Swift, Mrs. William Burry Jr., Mrs. Adlai E. Stevenson, and Mrs. Louise T. Bovingdon.

The British consul general, Lewis Bernays, and Mrs. Bernays, have cards out for an at home today from 4:30 until 7 o'clock. Mr. and Mrs. Bernays and their three sons live at 3000 Lake View avenue.

The annual Christmas book tea of the Harris schools will be held from 1 until 5 o'clock tomorrow afternoon. Twenty per cent of the proceeds will go into the school's library fund. Mrs. Clement Studebaker, Mrs. Scott J. Lew Jr., Mrs. Dwight [illegible], Mrs. Addison Hoof, and Mrs. Paul Gerhard Jr. are some of the mothers of students on the tea committee.

The Antiquarian Society of the Art Institute will be at home on Tuesday afternoon, Dec. 5, from 3:30 until 5 o'clock in Gallery H-16 of the institute. The occasion will celebrate the opening of the new Allerton wing and will give the Antiquarians and their guests a chance to meet the curator of decorative arts and of industrial arts, Meyric R. Rogers, and Mrs. Rogers.

D.A.R. President General Guest at Luncheon Today

Illinois Daughters of the American Revolution will give a luncheon for Mrs. Henry M. Robert Jr. of Washington, D. C., president general of the national society, today at the Stevens hotel. Mrs. Robert is making a 13,000 mile tour, visiting chapters thruout the country.

Couple Wed on 30th Nuptial Anniversary of Parents of Both

The 30th wedding anniversary of both the bride's and the bridegroom's parents was also the wedding date of Miss Marijo Hollahan and Edward Schneider, who were married last Saturday. She is a daughter of the James J. Hollahans of 6433 Glenwood avenue, and he is a son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter P. Schneider of 1407 Sherwin avenue.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. James Moore at 10:30 o'clock in the morning in St. Ignatius church. The bride, who carried a delicate lace handkerchief which belonged to her paternal grandmother, the late Mrs. J. A. Hollahan, was attended by her five sisters, the Misses Catherine, Rose, Dorothy, Helen, Louise and Patricia. Mrs. Melville P. Steinfels was matron of honor. Dr. Edward X. Crowley Jr. was best man.

After the ceremony there was a reception at the Edgewater Beach hotel. Mr. Schneider and his bride will make their home at 6419 Greenview avenue.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Frederick Speed of Asheville, N. C., and Evanston announce the marriage on Nov. 18 of their daughter, Margaret Clare, to Stoddard Johnston Young. The ceremony took place in Lexington, Ky., at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. Ormond McGlong. After a wedding trip thru the south Mr. Young and his bride will be at home in North Middletown, Ky.

From Charles City, Ia., comes the announcement of the marriage on last Thursday of Miss Dorothy Miller, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alvin L. Miller, to Lawrence H. Haarvig Jr. Mr. Haarvig and his bride will be at home in Highland Park, where his parents live.

Your Stars ★ Today ★

By WYNN

Monday, Nov. 27.

We have with us today a rough set of challenges to the emotions. We can control them if we want to—the difficulty is in wanting to. Be particularly just, unselfish, and fair in the afternoon.

Your Year Ahead.

Your year ahead, if today is your anniversary, is promising, so push plans in personal ways, earn and collect; but from May 8 on watch health, avoid exposure, and go slow with inferiors. Danger: Aug. 25-Sept. 5, 1940.

Tomorrow.

Routine the morning; best part of the day is in evening.

You can now get your 1940 individual interpretation for your own personal date plus the balance of this year. Every important period is indicated for you, according to the laws of astrology. Send 10 cents to Wynn, Tribune Astrologer, 288 Fifth Avenue, New York City. Write plainly your name, date of birth, and address.

Mount Carmel Card Party Wednesday to Help Gym

Parishioners of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church will give their annual card party and dance at 8:30 o'clock on Wednesday evening to raise a fund for a new gymnasium. Mrs. John L. Kellogg, general chairman, is assisted by Mrs. Joseph P. Savage. In charge of the prizes are Mrs. Harry Reynolds and Mrs. Robert P. Minton. Mrs. James Bowens Jr. is card chairman, with Mrs. Virginia Carroll as co-chairman. Other members of the committees are Mrs. Christine Kiessling, Miss Mary Clarke, Mrs. Harry Colman, Mrs. Harry Smedley, Mrs. J. A. Lomax, and Mrs. Ray Yorke.

Bacon and eggs can be an excellent breakfast or a poor one, depending upon [1] how the bacon is cooked and [2] how the eggs are prepared.

Broiling is the most satisfactory cooking method for bacon. Broiling may be done in the broiling oven, in a skillet, or in any of the many kinds of special bacon cookers on the market. Commercial bacon cookers provide for draining away the fat which cooks out of the bacon, leaving the meat crisp. A rack takes care of this problem in the broiling oven. With a skillet, it must be done by hand. It is important that fat be spooned out of the cooking pan at intervals, or the meat will be greasily fried instead of crisply broiled. To leave the bacon stewing in its own grease is to ruin the breakfast.

It is important, too, that low heat be used. If bacon cooks rapidly, at a high temperature, it will curl and scorch at the edges. For flat, crisp slices, do not crowd the pan, use low heat, and drain off the fat as it accumulates.

Bacon may be baked on a rack over a dripping pan, too. Oven bacon is dry enough and crisp enough to eat with the fingers. Here again the temperature must be watched. Moderate temperature, 350 degrees, is right.

I have heard that bacon cooked in deep hot fat is delicious, but this method seems too troublesome to be recommended as standard practice for breakfast purposes. I've never tried it that way myself, because such good results may be obtained by quicker, simpler methods.

Low or moderate heat is best for eggs, too, no matter how they are cooked. Fried eggs are the most popular accompaniment of bacon. Eggs may be fried greasy or not so, hard or tender, perfectly shaped or strung out all over the pan.

This is the egg frying method I prefer: Remove all but a tablespoon of the bacon fat from the skillet. Break eggs, one at a time, into the hot fat, manipulating the skillet so that the white does not spread out over a large area. Leave room between the eggs, so that each has a distinct shape of its own, not one determined by intermingling whites which must be cut apart with a spatula. When all the eggs are in the pan, reduce heat, cover the pan, and cook gently until the whites are firm and the yolks are just filmed over. The eggs now are ready to serve, unless there is some one in the family who demands hard cooked yolks, in which case eggs for that individual may be turned or allowed to continue cooking until the yolk is firm. Season eggs with salt and pepper just before carrying them to the table.

A very small amount of fat and a tablespoon or two of cream in the skillet produce a tender, nongreasy egg.

Cooking bacon and eggs must be watched carefully, if they are to become appetizing breakfast food. Unwatched bacon can sizzle itself greasy or scorched, and eggs, forgotten for a minute, can become too hard, even tough of texture.

Fashionable Simple Lines

WOMAN'S AND MISS' DRESS.

The simple lines that always are fashionable and practical are employed in this daytime dress for informal social occasions and office wear. The neckline may have a narrow standup collar with bow for finish, or the collar may be contrasting and detachable for laundering. Twin pockets may grace the bodice or not, as you choose. The button arrangement also is optional, and sleeves may be long or short. Crêpe and sheer woolen are the best materials to use for this ultraplain model.

Style No. 3040 is designed for sizes 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

For 15 cents buy the fall and winter Chicago Tribune book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to the New York address above.

N. Y. Junior Leaguer Will Become Bride of Charles M. Judd

The engagement of Miss Jean Farson, daughter of Mrs. William Farson of 830 Park avenue, New York, and Edgartown, Mass., and the late Mr. Farson, to Charles Moseley Judd, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Judd of Oak Park, has been announced by her mother.

Miss Farson is a graduate of Vassar college and a member of the Junior league.

Mr. Judd was graduated last year from the Sheffield scientific school at Yale, where he was a member of St. Elmo. He is in business in Woodstock, Ill.

Of interest in Chicago because of the young man's many friends here is the announcement which was made in Greenwich, Conn., of the engagement of Miss Monnie Douglass to William Clifford Messinger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Raymond Messinger of Milwaukee. Miss Douglass is the daughter of Mrs. Raymond Treadwell Fish and of Joseph Underhill Douglass of Arlington, Va. She was graduated from Rosemary hall and is a sophomore at Vassar college.

Mr. Messinger is a graduate of the Hill school and of Yale university.

At a tea on Saturday afternoon W. Cloyd Pool of Evanston announced the engagement of his daughter, Rita, to William A. Cornish of McAlester, Okla. Miss Pool was graduated from the Marywood school and from Northwestern university. Her fiancé, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melven Cornish of McAlester, attended the University of Oklahoma and received a law degree from Cumberland university.

Daily Habits of Grooming Bring Reward

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

It takes just a moment to rinse out soiled underclothing and stockings at night before retiring. If the dress you've worn that day has a small rip, a spot, or needs clean shields, five minutes of work will put your dress back in wearable condition. Perhaps your nails need a little filing, or the polish on one nail needs to be taken off and new lacquer applied.

If there's a hole or a run in your stocking, a stitch in time is expedient. Shoes with rundown heels, or in need of a shine, can spell an otherwise neat appearance. Put them aside for quick grabbing the next morning on your way to the office so you can leave them at the shoemaker's for delivery to you that evening.

These are just a few suggestions for you to follow. Every woman has her own personal grooming problems. Whatever they are, tho, don't you think it's a splendid idea to keep yourself in first class condition, so you'll be ready at a moment's notice to go any place? Even a week-end engagement will not find you making last minute preparations in a frenzy of haste, if you'll make a habit of keeping yourself so well groomed, and your clothes in such spick and span condition that all you'll have to do is to pack your suitcase, put on your hat, and off you go!

THRU THE LOOKING GLASS

When you have played too hard or worked too hard you're in the perfect mood to appreciate the novel bath preparations that are so popular in New York—the "hangover" and the "pick-me-up" twins.

Their chief claim to fame is that they brace you up so. They're billed as quick absorbers for the tattered nerves after too much cavorting or too much nervous tension.

They're amusingly packaged and make the gayest kind of a gift—but for heaven's sake send your maiden aunt the pick-me-up instead of the hangover variety.

These come in miniature Rhine wine bottles wrapped in silver paper. About a third of a split poured in the warm water is sufficient to clear the hazy brain and soothe the shrieking nerves. There's ammonia in the liquid, you see.

The ammonia base of the hangover bath is camouflaged considerably by the scent of violet. In the pick-me-up the bright, spicy scent of carnation predominates.

You'll find these in a couple of shops. They make amusing and really practical gifts for men as well as for women. The violet and carnation scents are no drawback to masculine approval.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Scoring records and the Cardinals' line were shattered yesterday in Wrigley field, where the Bears completed their regular National Football league schedule in a contest that amounted to little more than a good scrimmage for the playoff the Bears hope to engage in two weeks hence.

The score was 48 to 7, and gave the Bears a record of eight victories against three defeats administered by Green Bay, Detroit, and New York. It was the Cardinals' tenth whipping in 11 starts and also closed their season. The triumph left the Bears clinging to a mathematical chance of qualifying for the championship playoff.

Lions Are Bears' Last Hope.

Whether they succeed depends upon the Green Bay Packers-Lions game in Detroit next Sunday. A Green Bay defeat would tie the Bears and Packers for first place in the western division, necessitating a playoff for the title, from where the winner will go into the league playoff against the eastern division winner to play for the right to represent the National league in THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE All-Star game next summer. A Green Bay victory or a tie game next week would give the Packers undisputed possession of the title.

Little can be said for yesterday's game from the football standpoint, but statistically, it was of historical importance. The Bears' 48 points represented the largest score piled up in the league this season and increased their league record to 298 points for 11 games, 75 more than the previous record set by Green Bay in 1938.

Manders Takes Scoring Lead.

Total gains of 402 yards enabled the Bears to better their own league record, established this year, of having gained more than 400 yards in six games. Their gains for the season are 3,988 yards, 238 more than they stepped off in 1934 to set a league record for 13 games, and 787 more than Green Bay made in establishing the record for eleven games in 1937.

Jack Manders took the all-time scoring record from Ken Strong, New York veteran, by scoring two of the Bears' seven touchdowns and adding three points after touchdowns. His 11 points for the day gave him a lifetime total of 346, eight more than Strong, who has a chance to regain the lead next week when Washington and New York close their seasons in the game that will decide the eastern division championship.

The Cardinals had no defense for the crushing charges of Gary Famiglietti, a third string full back, who came into his own yesterday for the first time with a demonstration that reminded old Bears back for the third annual homecoming of Bronko Nagurski. Neither did the Cards have a defense for the Bears' passing attack. And offensively they were no more potent than the junior teams that cavort between halves.

Goldberg Gets No Help.

Marshall Goldberg strived to make an impression at the outset and was just successful enough to indicate he can play big league football if given a modicum of support. But, as the game wore on, the Cardinals wore out and by the finish, all semblance of a contest had fled.

The Cardinals' touchdown came on the last play of the game. A forward pass, Bert Johnson to Bill Smith, had gained 19 yards, developed into a lateral by Smith that was knocked down by Billy Patterson, the Bears' rookie half back. Milt Popovich, vet-

You looked around the room and you saw bald headed guys, and gray haired guys of middle age, mainly, and you found it hard to believe you were sitting around with some of football's one-time greatest — All-Americans from the name schools, and some others who scarcely were heard of until they got into the professional game.

It probably was football's most unusual homecoming, the homecoming of the alumni of the Chicago Bears. They met in the Chicago Athletic association last night as guests of the owner-coach of the Bears, George Halas, who used to play with most of them when he was the owner-coach, left end of the Bears. He is one of the practically bald headed guys now.

But They Could Play!

About 20 of the Halas U. alumni could make it. Many of them, like Red Grange and Bronko Nagurski, for instance, had to send regrets. You heard all of them reminisce about their playing days with the Bears, and you heard a couple of the present day Bears—Bernie Masterson and Jack Manders—tell how tremendously the Halas boys of today are pulling for the Green Bay Packers to get licked next Sunday so the 1939 Bears will have a shot at the east-west division playoff for the national championship.

You'd never think, looking at 'em now, that those bald headed and gray haired guys once could play football, many of them like nobody else has ever played it before or since. Well, maybe one or two others of the present era could play it like they played it, but you'd never hear these bald headed guys and gray haired guys admit it. And, looking at them now, you got to wondering just what they were doing, now that their football days have ended.

Paddy Driscoll Was There.

Up there at the speakers' table was Paddy Driscoll, the fabulous and incredible Paddy of Northwestern, of the Chicago Cardinals and the Bears. Paddy now is the coach of Marquette. And you get to thinking that, just the other day, you read where Ralph Kercheval of the Brooklyn Dodgers, Phil Martinovich of the Detroit Lions, and Ward Cuff of the New York Giants hold the pro league record of making three field goals in one game. Paddy, one of the bald headed guys, kicked four against Columbus back in 1925 and his team, the Cardinals, won by 19 to 9. All of Paddy's were drop kicks.

Also seated at the speakers' table was big Ed Healey, out of Dartmouth and Rock Island. He played eight years with the Bears and is still called by Halas the greatest tackle, past or present, college or pro, that he's ever seen. Ed, who still looks as tho he could play 60 minutes of football, is now a prosperous builders' supply salesman in South Bend, Ind.

PACKERS BARELY HOLD LEAD; BEAT CLEVELAND, 7-6

Cleveland, O., Nov. 26 (AP).—The Green Bay Packers scored a touchdown in the last two minutes today to offset Parker Hall's record breaking passing and defeat the Cleveland Rams, 7 to 6, before 30,690 spectators, largest crowd ever to attend a National Football league game in Cleveland.

A place kick for the extra point by Paul Engebretsen, former Northwestern guard, gave the Packers the decision that assured them of a tie for the western division title. Green Bay leads the Chicago Bears, who have completed their schedule, by one-half game and needs only a victory over the Detroit Lions next week to take the section championship.

Earlier in the season the Rams scored a surprise victory in Green Bay, 27 to 24.

Hall Betters Baugh's Record.

Hall, all-American half back from Mississippi, almost upset the Packers again as he connected on fourteen passes to run his 1939 string to 90, cracking the league record of 81 completions in a single season, set by Washington's Sammy Baugh in 1937. Hall tossed 29 passes today. He has attempted 184 to date.

Hall flipped Cleveland's touchdown pass, a gain of eighteen yards, to Jim Benton, early in the third period. Vic Spadaccini's try for the extra point was low.

The Packers threatened consistently thruout the last half with their powerful running game, but finally had to turn to the air for their touchdown. It came on Cecil Isbell's toss to Joe Laws, also from the 18 yard line. The former Iowa star caught the ball in the end zone unmolested.

Score on 48 Yard Drive.

The Rams moved forty-eight yards for their touchdown, entirely on Hall's sizzling passes. Most of his tosses were short, Cleveland picking up 151 yards thru the air.

Green Bay twice advanced to the 4 yard line, once on a sixty-seven yard drive. Until the touchdown heave, however, their passes were ineffective deep in Cleveland territory.

TRICKERY ADDS A FINAL TOUCH TO BIG TEN SEASON

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Ohio State is the undisputed champion of the Western conference for the first time since 1920. But the manner in which Ohio State achieved this honor—aided by Northwestern's tie with Iowa—is fuel for a winter of conversation in Columbus. Ohio State, off to a 14 point lead against Michigan in the climactic battle of the campaign, faltered and finally failed before the Wolverines' smart play, 21 to 14.

Ohio State was outguessed. A trick play not only permitted Tom Harmon to tie the score in the third period, but another, a fake place kick on fourth down, sent Fred Trosko racing twenty-three yards around Ohio's right end for the winning score. Ohio State fumbled away opportunities, losing the ball four times after seven misplays, but Ohio State scarcely can blame defeat on these, since Michigan's errors in the opening period, a fumble by Trosko and then an intercepted pass which was thrown by Trosko, led to the Bucks' two touchdowns.

Old Tricks Work.

None of the thousands of Michigan partisans was happier over the Wolverines' victory than Fielding Yost, who watched the brilliant Michigan rally from the press box. When Yost was leaving he still was talking on the theme that the old tricks are the best tricks. Michigan had to trick Ohio State's burly line to win, for a straight running attack was not adequate support for Harmon's superlative passing.

The tying touchdown was a matter of sending Harmon around end without protection. It was first down on the Buckeyes' 16 yard line, a nineteen yard pass from Harmon to Joe Rogers having put the ball in that position. Supporting backs and linemen, pulling out, swept to their left as the ball was passed back to Forest Evashevski. Harmon, in the deep back field position, started to his left, but after three steps, reversed and, taking a lateral deep from Evashevski, Tom sprinted around Ohio's defensive left end for the touchdown.

Play Carefully Screened.

The play was carefully screened and completed because Ohio's left end, Frank Clair, sliced in and beat Harmon to the spot. Harmon's speed. Harmon not only was the greatest player on the field, but he also was the fastest.

Michigan's winning touchdown in the last 50 seconds probably was dic-

Officials—Norman Lamport and Rabbit McVeigh.

Detroit, Mich., Nov. 26 [Special].—The Chicago Blackhawks had a difficult time making Detroit's Red Wings accept defeat tonight in a National Hockey league match, but finally triumphed, 4 to 2, after the Wings twice had come from behind to tie the score. The Hawks never trailed, but it was not until the final period that they could make a lead hold up in the face of vigorous play by the Detroiters.

A slim crowd of 5,497 saw Joffre Desilets lead a speedy attack which raised the Chicagoans within a point of the third place Wings in the league standings. Desilets scored the first two Chicago goals, but they were matched by Gus Giesbrecht and Carl Liscombe to send the teams into the third period deadlocked at 2-all. Johnny Gottselig broke the tie at 11:58 and Cully Dahlstrom assured the Hawk triumph with another goal 23 seconds before the game ended.

Hawks Press Attack.

Desilets beat Goalie Thompson ten seconds after the first face-off, getting a short pass on right wing from Dahlstrom and blasting a low drive into the Detroit net.

Geisebrecht got in on Karakas after stealing the puck on right wing, but was off balance and his shot was wide as he fell into the goal. Allen, Cunningham, and Hergesheimer finally took the play from the Wings, but Thompson turned back the assault.

Play slowed for the first six minutes of the second period. But when Smith was penalized for tripping, Detroit put on a power play and tied the score at 7:25, Cecil Dillon taking a pass from Bruneteau, carrying the puck behind the goal and slipping it out to Giesebrecht, who drove it home. The Hawks got a chance when Bowman was penalized for interference, and took a 2 to 1 lead when Desilets fired a looping shot from the blue line that dipped under Thompson's glove into the nets at 10:59.

High Sticking at Boards.

Referee Lamport drew a round of boos when the crowd thought Allen should have been penalized for some high sticking at the boards. Dillon and Ken Kilrea combined on a play that forced Karakas into a fast save. With 37 seconds to go in the second period Desilets was sent off the ice for interference, but the Hawks held.

The Hawks still were shorthanded as the third period opened, and Liscombe tied the score at 1:27 just as Desilets left the penalty box. Dillon and Giesebrecht snaked the puck out of a scramble to set up Liscombe's 30 foot drive. Gottselig picked up a loose puck and put Chicago back into the lead at 11:58 with a high shot which was allowed despite Goalie Thompson's heated protest that the puck bounced off Dahlstrom.

The Red Wings spent the remainder of the period in fast but ineffective rushes, and with 23 seconds to play Dahlstrom broke away to beat Thompson and clinch victory for the Chicagoans.

OLD TIME STARS OF BEARS HAVE A HOMECOMING

They Are Bald and Gray, but How They Could Play!

with the Bears after he left Notre Dame, and who was even better in his day than Mel Hein is today [in the opinion of Halas] is a loop gymnasium owner. George isn't one of the bald headed guys, or gray haired guys, but he's added a few pounds.

Then there was Earl Britton, who did a lot of the blocking which shook Red Grange loose on those touchdown runs at Illinois. Earl is a service station owner in Elgin. And Laurie Walquist, another Illinois half back star, who was good enough to last for 11 years with the Bears. He is a Chicago salesman. Still another old Illini on hand was Joe Sternaman, who needs no introduction. He is a Chicago business man. Dick Stahlman, a guard from Georgetown, is a Chicago policeman.

Remember Tarzan Taylor?

John Sisk, the Big Train from Marquette, was there displaying his graying locks and reporting insurance business good in Milwaukee. George Corbett, who came up to the pros from John Millikin university at Decatur, Ill., also is prospering in the insurance business in Decatur. Tarzan Taylor, a rough and tough guard from Ohio State when the Buckeyes went to the Rose Bowl nearly 17 years ago, is assistant coach at Marquette. He was even rougher and tougher in his guard play for the Bears.

Don Murry, who came up to the Bears from Wisconsin, is a manufacturers' agent with headquarters in Chicago. Jake Lanum, Illinois half back and one of the three original Bears present—Driscoll and Halas were the others—works at an oil refinery in East Chicago. Jim McMillen, Illinois guard who is a gentleman farmer near Antioch between wrestling engagements, sports a cauliflower ear that he didn't get with the Illini or Bears.

Litzenich Attends.

Oscar Knop, old Illinois full back, still has plenty of blond hair, but Duke Hanny, now superintendent of parks in Aurora, is one of the bald headed guys. He came from Indiana university to play end for the Bears.

The youthful appearing Joe Litzenich, termed the best punter the Bears ever had, is a St. Louis business man. He is a product of St. Louis university. Packey Nelson, a guard from Illinois, was there also, and so was Luke Johnsos, Northwestern's great end who is now one of the Bears' assistant coaches.

JUVENILE RIDING EVENT TO DRAW WINNING HORSES

First and second place winners at the summer horse shows thruout the Chicago area will vie for the grand championship among juvenile riders as a highlight of the International Live Stock exposition's horse show, which opens Saturday and continues for eight days in the stockyards amphitheater.

The event, sponsored by the Town and Country Equestrian association, of which Herbert J. Lorber is president, is restricted to boys and girls not more than 18 years old.

Winners of the Hinsdale, Fort Sheridan, South Shore Country club, Lake Forest, Town and Country, and other outdoor shows during the year will compete for the title.

eran Cardinal back, picked up the ball and ran sixty yards for the touchdown. The entire play gained eighty yards and was as ludicrous as it was productive.

The Bears received the opening kickoff and immediately convinced the 16,055 shivering spectators that this would be a game to watch but hardly one to cheer. They moved 64 yards in seven plays, but were deprived of a score when Bernie Masterson's fourth down pass from the 8 yard line fell incomplete in the end zone for a touchback.

Early in the second period, after Joe Maniaci, Sid Luckman, and Bob MacLeod had moved into the back field with Ray Nolting, the Bears scored on a seventy-four yard march, started in the preceding quarter. Nolting's six yard sprint thru a gaping hole in the right side of the Cardinals' line was good for the touchdown. Joe Stydahar kicked the extra point.

By this time the Bears seemed so certain of the outcome that the Cardinals were able to move forty-five yards down the field on Jack Robbins' passes to the 17 yard line before they were stopped. Robbins fumbled Luckman's punt out of bounds on the 11 yard line, and on the next play fumbled Ki Aldrich's second bad pass from center. Frank Sullivan, Bear guard, recovered on the 6 yard line.

Luckman Starts Pitching.

A fumble in the Bear back field lost ten yards, but Luckman and MacLeod teamed on a pass to get back the ten and five more for the second touchdown. Manders missed the extra point.

The Bears were content to end the half with the 13 to 0 margin, but the first time they got the ball in the third quarter, Famiglietti, knocking down tacklers and running over them, moved it up twelve yards to the 33 yard line, and on the next play Luckman passed to John Siegal, rookie end, for the touchdown. The maneuver was so simple that the Bears must have been ashamed to count it. Manders again added the extra point.

Frank Patrick, who spent most of the afternoon picking himself up from where Famiglietti deposited him, passed into Luckman's hands a few minutes later and Sid raced straight up the field thirty-three yards for a touchdown without being touched, escorted or greatly rushed. Manders' second extra point made it 27 to 0.

Seven More Points for Manders.

Four plays later the Bears had another touchdown, their second in a row without making a first down. Manders intercepted Robbins' second down pass and returned twenty-one yards to the 29 yard line and then took Patterson's second down pass for a touchdown. Manders also kicked the extra point.

There was no more scoring until the middle of the fourth period, when Robbins' three incomplete passes and Popovich's 11 yard punt gave the Bears the ball on the Cardinals' 35. Patterson passed to Les McDonald, who lateraled to Famiglietti, but the twenty-nine yard gain was held to four yards when McDonald's lateral was ruled forward, and the Bears penalized five yards.

Sherman Runs 68 Yards.

Sollis Sherman, former Maroon star, who has been heard from very little all year, came in and passed thirty yards to McDonald, who was pulled down on the 1 foot line by Popovich. Manders' jab at the line went for the touchdown.

The comic relief was getting better all the time, and when Patterson fumbled the ball from center, then placed it poorly, Manders kicked it into the line. Patterson recovered it as it bounded back and ran over for the extra point.

The score was now 41 to 0, but before the man in the scoreboard could put up the numbers Sherman intercepted a pass by Eddie Wheeler and returned sixty-eight yards for another touchdown. Famiglietti, who had not scored and had been called back on five good gains, was elected to strive for the honor of making the 48th point. He responded with an expert job of place kicking.

Cards Score by Moonlight.

Then, just as the moon showed its face over the center field bleachers the Cardinals and Patterson combined in the eighty yard maneuver that prevented the Cardinals from being shut out. The statistics:

Giants Whip Dodgers, 28-7, to Stay in Tie

New York, Nov. 26 (AP).—Fighting to maintain their tie for the eastern division lead and the chance to defend their National Football league championship in the playoffs, the New York Giants today defeated the Brooklyn Dodgers, 28 to 7.

The Giants and Dodgers battled on even terms thru a scoreless first period, but New York scored in the second and never lost control, altho the Dodgers led in first downs, 14 to 9.

New York's first touchdown developed from Tuffy Leemans' seventy-nine yard run with an intercepted pass to the Brooklyn 11. Then Leonard [Feets] Barnum shot a pass to Jim Lee Howell in the end zone. Howell also took a pass deep in the end zone for the final touchdown just five seconds before the game ended.

Score After Fumble.

Jiggs Kline recovered a fumble on the Brooklyn 24 in the third period and New York was given a first down on the 15 for pass interference. Then Ward Cuff ripped off five yards and Kink Richards went ten more for the score.

The Dodgers got their tally in the fourth period after Ace Parker intercepted a pass and ran twenty-nine yards to his 40. Parker's passing and Pug Manders' running quickly covered the sixty yards to the Giants' goal. The Giants then scored when a forty-four yard pass from Leemans to Howell brought a first down on the Dodger 10 and Leemans went over from the 2.

PIRATES BEAT EAGLES

Pittsburgh, Pa., Nov. 26 (AP).—The Pittsburgh Pirates of the National Football league gained their first victory in 17 starts by defeating the Philadelphia Eagles today, 24 to 12. In its 16 previous games Pittsburgh had lost 15 and tied one.

The Pirates achieved their long-sought victory by taking a commanding lead, then bottling up little Davey O'Brien, the Eagles' sensational passer, who nevertheless put on almost a one man show.

Pittsburgh's ends charged fast on O'Brien and numerous times smothered him for losses before he could locate a pass receiver. Nevertheless little Davey, who played the entire game excepting a few minutes of the fourth period, completed 14 out of 25 aerials for 150 yards, and scored a touchdown from the 1 yard line in the third period. His twenty-six yard run in the fourth quarter led to another touchdown.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

Where Answered.

The Answers.

Albert Stool, 5050 Sheridan road, music publisher—Sid Luckman, the quarter back of the Chicago Bears, is my favorite pro player. He is a triple threat artist, good at passing, kicking, or running with the ball. But the main reason I like him is his generalship on the field. He's tops among the nation's smartest quarter backs.

Arthur Thonander, 5236 Lind avenue, salesman—Eggs Manske, the former Northwestern university star who now is an end on the Bears, is tops among professional players. I like him for his uncanny ability to diagnose enemy plays, for the speed which makes him one of the fastest ends in the business, and for his skill as a pass receiver.

Logan Miller, 1917 Oakdale avenue, paper salesman—My favorite player is Bill Osmanski, full back of the Bears. I think he is the hardest driving back I have seen in seven years of watching pro games. I believe he even tops Bronko Nagurski, the powerhouse among full backs.

Chris Varelas, 839 West Polk street, clerk—Ken Strong, the full back of the New York Giants, is tops with me. He's one of the most versatile players I have ever seen, can do most anything and do it well. But his specialty is booting field goals.

Joseph Rito, 829 Cabrini street, chauffeur—Parker Hall, a back field star of the Cleveland Rams, is my favorite among professional football players. At passing and running he can't be beaten, and he always plays a heads up game of football. And, more than that, he's a real 60 minute man. He goes the whole game every time.

FOR THE 1 MAN IN 7 WHO SHAVES EVERY DAY

A Special Shave Cream—It's Not a Soap, Needs No Brush!

Daily shaving leaves many men's faces raw and sensitive. Yet, because of his business and social status, one out of every 7 men must shave every day.

To meet this condition, Williams has now developed GLIDER—a special cream for daily shavers. With no soap base, it's a complete departure from ordinary shave creams. No brush. No lather. Not sticky or greasy.

A superabundance of moisture is contained in this rich cream. It won't dry on your face. Applied with the fingers, it quickly softens each whisker. A protective layer is formed over which your razor glides. Off comes each hair at the base without scraping. Like a cold cream, Glider helps keep your skin smooth all day. Glider is the result of nearly 100 years' experience in making fine shaving preparations.

The Packers started their score-producing drive from their own 41 yard line. Isbell's toss to Carl Mulleneaux for forty-one yards carried the ball deep into the Rams' territory. Two plays later the former Purdue half back connected on the scoring toss to Laws.

The Packers rolled up 212 yards from scrimmage to 51 for the Rams and held a 15 to 12 margin in first downs. Green Bay added 17 yards by completing 11 out of 29 passes, Don Hutson grabbing only two.

Manhattans and Spartas Win in Tuneups, 2 to 0

Sparta defeated the Nickeloids, 2 to 0, and the Manhattans triumphed over the Kickers by the same score yesterday in tuneup battles for national soccer challenge cup competition.

Altho both won by the same margin, the games ran to different extremes. Sparta came thru only after a tense struggle, leading 1 to 0 at the half and getting a second goal only by way of a penalty kick. Manhatton, on the other hand, was in control of its contest most of the way and used a number of reserves in its lineup.

REDSKINS KNOCK DETROIT OUT OF TITLE RACE, 31-7

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26 (AP).—The Washington Redskins' [illegible] attack today routed Detroit, 31 to 7, [illegible] defeat eliminated the Lions from the National football league race.

The Redskins continued in a tie with the New York Giants for first place in the eastern division. The Giants, who won from Brooklyn today, meet the Redskins in New York next Sunday.

Three of Washington's four touchdowns came on passes—two by Frank Filchock and the third by Sam Baugh. Ed Justice scored the other touchdown after picking up a teammate's fumble. Bob Masterson booted a field goal in the final period for three more points.

Ryan Scores for Lions.

The Lions scored their lone touchdown in the second period against the Redskins' second team. Kent Ryan scored from the 3 yard line. It was the second team, however, that played havoc with the Lions in the fourth quarter.

Dick Todd intercepted Dwight Sloan's pass on the Lions' 38 and ran it to the 20. The Redskins drove to the 14, and there Masterson kicked his field goal. In the final three minutes Jimmy Johnston intercepted Darrell Tully's pass on the Redskins' 38 and ran it back to the Lions' 24, where Baugh heaved a touchdown pass to Wayne Millner. Baugh crossed up the Lions on the extra point by faking a placement and then passing to Johnston in the end zone.

Malone Scores on Pass.

The Redskins struck first in the opening period when Filchock shot a pass to Charlie Malone on the Lions' 24. Malone then raced over for the touchdown.

In the third period the Redskins took the ball on their 35 and Filchock passed them up the field to Detroit's 30. When the Lions stiffened, he faded to his 42 and passed to Millner in the end zone. With a minute to go in that period, Filchock broke thru center from his own 32 to Detroit's 43 and lateraled to Vic Carroll who fumbled. But Justice scooped up the ball and ran for the touchdown.

TRADE-INS FROM AUTO SHOW SALES GIVE BUYERS CHOICE OF LARGE SELECTION

If you are thinking of buying a used car, now is the time to do it. Dealers' sales floors are filled with cars taken in trade during the auto show. Values are high, while prices and terms are most attractive.

To get a line on the best values available, turn to the used automobiles for sale columns of the Tribune want ad section. Scores of automobiles are described for your choice. No matter what price you want to pay, you are sure to find a good buy. Your old car may be the only down payment required.

Because want ad users get better results from the Tribune, they place more total want advertising in The Tribune than in all other Chicago newspapers combined.

FENGER'S GRIFFIN DISTURBS MOUNT CARMEL COACH

Only the Weather Bothers Promoters of Game.

BY JAMES SEGRETI.

Charles Palmer, coach of Fenger's Public School league champions, is smiling; Wally Fromhart, coach of Mount Carmel's Catholic league titleholders is moaning a blues song, and officials of Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund are armed with tickets and weather charts as the final week's preparations begin for the presentation of the eighth annual city prep championship game in Soldiers' field Saturday afternoon.

Fromhart, former University of Notre Dame quarter back, and his assistant, Fred Mundee, shuddered in their press box seats last Saturday afternoon as they watched Donald [Flash] Griffin, Fenger's great quarter back, and his associates rout Schurz, 47 to 0. Fromhart and Mundee took copious notes, but they were filed in the nearest wastebasket when Griffin began to run and pass all over Soldiers' field.

Is There Anything He Can't Do?

"Is there anything Mr. Griffin can't do?" asked Fromhart after the 185 pound quarter back had scored three touchdowns and passed eighteen yards for another.

Several problems confront Fromhart and Mundee. They admit Griffin, star of Fenger's 13 to 0 victory over Mount Carmel last year, is greatly improved. In addition, two of the Mount Carmel ball carriers are ailing, Francis Meakim with a charley horse and Bob Quinn with a heavy cold.

However, Fromhart will be greeted with a pleasant sight when he gathers his group of 37 players on Mount Carmel's practice field for a long workout this afternoon. Johnny Andretich, who, with Meakim forms the Mount Carmel Touchdown Twin combination which defeated St. Ignatius, 27 to 0, two weeks ago, will be present. He has contributed sensational runs in workouts during the last week and is capable of playing every minute against Fenger.

No Rest for Fenger Eleven.

There will be no rest for the Fenger eleven, which is undefeated and untied in 22 games, has scored 284 points in its last eight games and has not been scored upon in its last seven contests. Coach Palmer, who scouted the Mount Carmel-St. Ignatius game, has ordered a workout for this afternoon and does not anticipate such easy pickings as Schurz in Saturday's charity battle.

Barnet Hodes, secretary of Chicago's Own Christmas Benefit fund, took a quick glance at the till yesterday and announced that there is $25,000 therein. With the weather man's coöperation a crowd of 80,000 will see the game, Hodes said.

Receipts $100,000 in 1938.

Receipts for the 1938 game were $100,000 and the total amount since the interleague series was inaugurated by Mayor Kelly in 1934 reached $450,000. The money from the football game along with receipts from the Night of Stars stage show, its companion event, are used to purchase shoes and clothing for Chicago's underprivileged children.

The Catholic league never has triumphed in the game since Mayor Kelly's series started. In the first intercollegiate game Lindblom defeated Leo of the Catholic league, 6 to 0. The same teams met in 1935, with Lindblom again winning by the same score. Austin and Fenwick battled to a 19 to 19 tie in 1936 and Bill De Correvont led Austin to a 26 to 0 victory over Leo in 1937.

Toronto Loses to Americans, 2-1; 1st Defeat

New York, Nov. 26 (AP).—The New York Americans brought an end to two streaks tonight, beating Toronto Maple Leafs, 2 to 1, in an overtime game for their first victory of the National Hockey league season and the Leafs' first defeat after five triumphs and a tie. More than 12,000 saw the game.

The Americans, who lost their sixth straight to the Leafs in Toronto Saturday, held a 1 to 0 lead until Sweeney Schriner tied the game with only nine seconds to play. After little more than a minute of overtime, Eddie Wiseman scored after Tommy Anderson and Johnny Sorrell set up the play near the Leafs' net.

Lorne Carr put the Americans ahead the first time, scoring early in the third period. Lineups:

BRUINS, 2; RANGERS, 2

Boston, Mass., Nov. 26 (AP).—Boston's Bruins and the New York Rangers battled to a 2 to 2 deadlock in a roughly played overtime contest before 13,000 tonight in the Boston garden.

Eddie Shore of Boston scored his first goal of the current National Hockey league season in the third period.

Herb Cain, the Bruins' third line wing, rammed the first Boston goal past Kerr in the second period, and was credited with an assist on Shore's tally, giving Boston a 2 to 1 lead, which the Bruins enjoyed for less than two minutes. The Rangers knotted the count with a tally by Clint Smith.

New York opened the scoring in the second period on Bryan Hextall's solo flight. Cain evened matters in the same period after assists by Shore and Jackson. Lineups:

tated by Coach Fritz Crisler. At least Crisler sent in Bob Ingalls for Evashevski at quarter back preceding the fourth down maneuver. Michigan had the ball on Ohio's 23 yard line and goal to go, the first down on the series having been started on the Bucks' 6 yard line. Michigan had lost yardage by penalty for time out and two cross field runs by Harmon from which passes did not develop.

Catch Ohioans Off Guard.

Preparations were made for a field goal with Trosko kneeling to hold and Harmon ready to kick, thus putting Ohio State off guard, since a successful kick would mean defeat for the Buckeyes. But Ingalls had delivered other instructions. Previously, on Trosko's fourth down punts, Ohio had sent eight men charging thru. This provided the setup, for again eight Buckeyes charged in, hoping to block Harmon's kick. Instead Trosko sprinted around Ohio State's right end and down the east sideline for victory.

In its march to the Big Ten title Ohio State defeated Minnesota and Northwestern, major rivals, and also scored victories over Indiana, Illinois, and Chicago. But losses to Michigan and Cornell, undefeated leader in the east, leave Buckeye fans with a bitter after season taste.

The outstanding achievement of the Big Ten season was Iowa's rise from eighth in 1938 to second place. Northwestern prevented the Hawkeyes from tying for the championship, but quite likely, in view of the Wildcats' opportunities that narrowly failed of victory in the final period and the rigors of the campaign, Iowa is more than satisfied.

The Hawks defeated Notre Dame and then added Minnesota to a list of Big Ten victims that included Indiana, Wisconsin, and Purdue. No such record has been achieved in this football generation and hero of that charge is Nile Kinnick.

Purdue, with only one defeat, finished third in the standings by nosing out Indiana, 7 to 6, but Iowa, also beaten once, had a better percentage. Purdue also defeated Northwestern and played tie games with Minnesota and Wisconsin. Northwestern and Michigan tied for fourth, a position that the Wildcats earned after a dubious start. Illinois, by trampling Chicago, 46 to 0, in its final game, led the second division of the Big Ten in which Minnesota landed for the first time since 1930, when the Gophers finished seventh. They were half in and half out of the lower bracket in 1932, sharing fifth and sixth places.

Wisconsin's failure to win a Big Ten game was the second startling development of the season, for the Badgers' power and performance merited better results. But Wisconsin's ill luck never was shaken off, the Gophers administering coup de grace Saturday, 23 to 6.

Irish Great in Defeat.

Notre Dame played its best game of the year against Southern California, but failed to gain a tie when the try for the point after the second Irish touchdown missed the target. Then trailing, 13 to 12, Notre Dame was vulnerable to pressure and eventually lost, 20 to 12.

Notre Dame could have played a different style of attack had either point after touchdown been made. The Irish were superior in the air but outrushed on the ground. Notre Dame led in first downs, 14 to 12, and in net yardage, 271 to 246, which accurately indicates the equality of the teams just as the score tells the thrills in this intersectional rivalry.

Notre Dame's completion of 11 passes in 20 attempts, a fine record, was marred by three interceptions. Saturday's best passing record was made by Michigan's Harmon, who completed 12 in 18 attempts. Michigan's other two passes were thrown by Trosko.

Notre Dame finished the year with seven victories and two defeats, a better record than many predicted in September. The Irish have lost only 11 games since Elmer Layden took charge in 1934 and only three in the last two years.

Al Noto Will Be at Home in Stadium Ring

BY HOWARD BARRY.

For the last couple of years followers of amateur boxing have perked up in expectation of action whenever they've seen Al Noto's name on the program. They've come to expect fast footwork and hard hitting in every Noto bout whether Al wins or loses. When the crowd gathers in the Stadium Wednesday night for the finals of the Catholic Youth organization's boxing tournament they will find Al's name on the program again. This time he'll be fighting Harold Dade for the C. Y. O. flyweight championship.

The Stadium ring is a familiar place to young Mr. Noto. Some of his most spectacular bouts have been waged there during Golden Gloves tournaments. It was in the Stadium that he went all the way to the finals last winter only to lose a hairline decision to Vic Saccoia of Detroit in the final. Later he evened that score by beating Saccoia in one of the preliminary bouts of the international Golden Gloves show in the same ring.

Learns Under Brother Johnny.

Al, who learned to box under the supervision of his brother, Johnny, who was a well known amateur fighter several years ago, has been showing steady improvement in recent seasons. He is confident that this is the year when he'll go all the way to the top and dominate Chicago's flyweight division. If he wins the C. Y. O. title Wednesday night it will be a convincing demonstration of ability because this tournament has been tougher than ever this year. It drew 1,126 entrants, among whom were so many good fighters that only two out of six of last year's champions have been able to reach the finals.

Noto combines hitting power with boxing ability in such proportions that he can go thru dozens of rough and tumble matches without getting hurt. There are many hard hitters who haven't enough ring generalship to protect themselves under pressure and there are many ring generals who protect themselves so well that they never get around to do any hitting against the other fellow. Al, however, can do both things at once and that's the reason every one likes to see him fight.

Born in Italy.

Al was born in Italy, but his parents brought him to this country when he was 7 years old. He now lives on the west side. Tho he likes to box, he doesn't plan to make a career out of it. His big interest is sketching. Among his prized possessions are drawings he made of his brother Johnny in various fighting poses.

Al won a C. Y. O. title in the novice division soon after he started boxing, but if he wins Wednesday night it will be his first open division championship.

MOZART, LAWNDALE TIE.

Mozart A. C. and Lawndale battled to a scoreless tie in Weber park yesterday in an attempt to decide the championship of the Greater Chicago Football league. Next Sunday both teams will meet again.

Busy Night Ahead

Al Noto. Harold Dade.

Boxing fans who like speed and punch are looking forward to meeting these two flyweights in C.Y.O. finals Wednesday.

Cincinnati's Late Score Beats Kenosha Cards, 10-7

Kenosha, Wis., Nov. 26 (AP).—Two completed forward passes in the last minute and 45 seconds of play gave the Cincinnati Bengals a 10 to 7 victory over the Kenosha Cardinals in an American Pro Football league game today. Trailing, 7 to 3, the Bengals advanced twenty-six yards to Kenosha's 7 yard line when interference was ruled on the first pass play. On the next play Pat Howlett passed to Popp for the touchdown.

Once Upon a Time.

Once upon a time we were such close friends
Who snatched at every intimate hour or two
To be together—what fun to walk with you
And talk with you. We were without pretense—
How well our minds dovetailed on books and art;
How well we'd quote at random from the bards,
Listen to music's thrilling, poignant shards
Of melody that quivered to the heart.
How much we shared, what fun we had in all,
At looking back brings it into review—
The books and art, the music gay and blue,
And friendly talk for hours that did not pall.
Once upon a time we were such close friends,
We little dreamed that even friendship ends.

RICHARDS LEADS ALL THE WAY TO WIN MIDGET RACE

Taking the lead from Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis on the first turn, Ray Richards of Chicago went ahead to lead all the way and win the 40 lap main event midget auto race last night at the 124th Field Artillery armory. His time was 9 minutes and 1 second. MacQuinn, who battled with Duke Nalon of Chicago for 39 laps, was second; Nalon was third; Wally Zale of Chicago was fourth, and Ted Duncan, Chicago, was fifth.

Lello Victory String Faces Test Tonight

Pete Lello, who has seven consecutive victories to his credit, tonight will learn whether he merits consideration as one of the best lightweights in the country in a 10 round bout against Emil Joseph of Pittsburgh in Marigold Gardens, Broadway and Grace street. The survivor will be in line for matches with Henry Armstrong, Lou Ambers, Sammy Angott, and Davey Day, leaders in the division.

Because of the excellent form he has displayed in conquering Bobby McIntyre, Billy Hodges, and Lew Jenkins this year, Lello is expected to make Joseph his 38th victim in 45 fights. Emil, who has never received more than $500 for a contest, hopes to reach the big money class at the expense of Lello.

In a secondary feature of four rounds Booker Beckwith, 1938 Chicago intercity Golden Gloves middleweight winner, will meet Charley Banks. Beckwith knocked out Johnny Trotter in his first pro start in the same arena last Oct. 23. In a previous Marigold appearance Banks held Luther Brent to a four round draw.

Other matches will bring together Eddie Camp and Ralph Chong, Jake Lebovitz and Emil Schulman, and Ralph Guarjado and George Kontopolis. Schulman will be after revenge, Lebovitz scoring a four round knockout over him in an earlier meeting. The Camp-Chong match is set for five rounds; the others for four.

Lem Franklin, Cleveland heavyweight, will reach town today for a 10 round match against Bob Nestell in White City Friday. Nestell replaces Eddie Simms. The latter reported by long distance phone that he was suffering from a cold.

Both fighters scored one round knockouts in their last White City appearances. Nestell's victim was Tom Kenneally, former C. Y. O. title holder, and Franklin stopped Perk Daniels.

ALL'S FORGIVEN—YALE WINS THE ONE THAT COUNTS

New Haven, Conn., Nov. 26 (AP).—The Yale football team, verbally lashed by Coach Ducky Pond three weeks ago as "the worst he ever coached, was the toast of the campus today, shortcomings of the past wiped out by a 20 to 7 victory over Harvard. The triumph gave the Elis a season's record of three victories, four defeats, and one tie—nothing to cheer about in most leagues.

But they're funny that way at Yale. They like, of course, to win as many games as possible, but the season's climax with Harvard is the only one that really counts. Pond was as pleased at his team's reversal of form as the man whose mongrel pup turned out to be a blue-ribbon winner.

THRONGS ATTEND FINAL JUDGING AT 29TH DOG SHOW

Hertzville Historian Again Triumphs.

More than 1,000 pure bred dogs from all sections of the country attracted throngs of Chicagoland fanciers to the Coliseum yesterday and last night as the 29th annual dog show of the Western Specialty Clubs association was concluded. Show officials reported that the attendance was well ahead of last year's figures, many fanciers crowding around the show rings to see specimens of the 24 breeds which were exhibited.

Champion Hertzville Historian, a collie owned by the Hertzville kennels of Thomas Halpin and C. J. Cassleman, Chicago, was selected as the best of its breed to continue a sensational string of victories. Previous to yesterday's judging Historian had been selected as best of its breed, best of its variety group, and best dog of all breeds in three straight shows. Summaries:

DR. WYNEKOOP'S SON KILLS MAN IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Label Manufacturer's Car Hits Aged Pedestrian.

Owen Brennan, 70 years old, 520 North Wells street, a plumber, died yesterday in the Mother Cabrini hospital of injuries suffered when he was struck by an automobile at La Salle street and Grand avenue last Tuesday.

The driver was Walker Wynekoop, 35, of 238 Woodlawn avenue, Glencoe, a label manufacturer. He is a son of Dr. Alice Wynekoop, who is serving a 25 year term for the murder of her daughter-in-law, Rheta Wynekoop.

School Inmate, 12, Killed.

Hugh O'Neil, 12 years old, an inmate of St. Mary's Training school in Des Plaines, died shortly after being hit by an automobile yesterday at Rand and River roads, near Des Plaines. The driver, Milton Snoeyenbos, 39, of Menominie, Wis., was ordered to appear at the inquest today in St. Francis hospital, Evanston, where the boy died. The youth was the son of Mrs. Mary O'Neil, 3744 Ellis avenue, Chicago.

Mrs. Gunda Iversen, 75, of 1938 North Fairfield avenue, was fatally injured in a collision of two cars at Touhy and Crawford avenues, in Lincolnwood. She died in St. Francis hospital. Her daughter, Mrs. Undine Perkins, 42, was slightly hurt. They were in a car driven by the latter's husband, Clarence Perkins, when it collided with a machine operated by Frank Beard Jr., 33, of 5333 Winthrop avenue.

A man 67 years old, believed from a card in his pocket to have been Mike Koretski, a casual, died last night in the county hospital of injuries incurred early yesterday when he was struck by an automobile at Randolph and Loomis streets. The driver was Hugo Coberg, 20, of 1742 North Troy street.

Collision Fatal to Driver.

Gene Willand, 32, of 3711 North Cicero avenue, died in County hospital of injuries suffered an hour before when his car collided with that of Albert Sherman, 36, of 5935 Manton avenue, at Washington and Sacramento boulevards. Sherman's car in turn collided with that of Milton Weinstein, 28, 1238 South Albany avenue, but neither driver was hurt.

Ben Avant, 42 years old, colored, 1822 Washington street, Gary, died early today in the county hospital of a skull fracture suffered yesterday when his automobile struck a safety island at South Chicago and Keefe avenues. His companion, James Peoples, 27, colored, who lives at the Gary address, also suffered a skull fracture and is in the county hospital.

In the 24 hours ending yesterday at 4 p. m. Cook county was without an automobile death. At that time 791 persons had been killed by automobiles in the county since Jan. 1. Of these 611 were killed in Chicago where 20,151 were injured in the same period.

Ex-Judge Casey Robbed by Two Youthful Bandits

Edward B. Casey, a former judge of the Municipal court, was held up by two young bandits last night and robbed of 35 cents and two packages of cigarets. He was returning to his home at 2058 Fargo avenue when he was stopped by the pair at Damen and Birchwood avenues. He described them as about 17 years old. An hour later two robbers, believed to be the same ones, held up Julius Long, 7427 North Clark street, at Honoré street and Rogers avenue, and robbed him of 40 cents.

Two Aviators Are Killed as Planes Collide in Air

Huntington, W. Va., Nov. 26 (AP).—Two men were killed today at the Huntington-Ironton-Chesapeake airport when their plane collided in mid-air with another as they were coming in for a landing. They were identified as J. C. Robrock of Huntington, Ind., and Clark B. [Chris] Matthews of Marietta, O., a mechanic at the airport. The collision occurred about 400 feet in the air with a plane piloted by Dr. H. E. Guthrie of Huntington. Dr. Guthrie was unhurt and landed his plane safely.

9 Hurt When Pennsylvania Road's Senator Jumps Rails

Providence, R. I., Nov. 26 (AP).—Five cars of The Senator, the Pennsylvania railroad's Boston to Washington express, were derailed at a switch in the yards outside the Providence station today, injuring nine persons. Railroad officials blamed a broken axle of a coach. Several dining car employés suffered burns.

Fire Starting in Theater Destroys 3 Buildings

Warsaw, Ky., Nov. 27, Monday (AP).—Fire starting in a motion picture theater destroyed three buildings in this Ohio river town of 800 early today, causing damage estimated at $40,000. Patrons of the theater escaped and no one was hurt. Fire companies of three nearby towns were called.

M. F. GALLAGHER, LIBRARIAN AND LAWYER, IS DEAD

Michael Francis Gallagher, prominent lawyer and nationally known librarian, died last night in his home at 2751 South Deere Park drive, Highland Park. He was 65 years old and had been ill a year.

Mr. Gallagher, a native of Sterling, Ill., was a member of the law firm of Gallagher, Rinaker, Wilkinson & Hall, 231 South La Salle street, and a specialist on corporate law. In 1934 he wrote a book called "Government Rules Industry," showing constitutional issues involved under the NRA dictatorship. He was professor on constitutional and corporate law at the John Marshall law school for four years.

Mr. Gallagher was a trustee of the Carnegie Library Foundation, a trustee and former president of the Illinois Library association, and a trustee of the American Library association and the Highland Park library board. A daughter, Mrs. Garrigue Butland, and a son, David Gallagher, a law student at Yale, survive. Funeral arrangements will be announced today.

BARTENDER SHOT AND KILLED BY COUSIN IN AURORA

John Arthur Reed, 33 years old, 928 Charles street, Aurora, a bartender, was shot and killed yesterday by his cousin, William R. Meeker, 404 Ridgeway avenue, Aurora, foreman in an Aurora factory. Police were unable to learn whether the shooting occurred outside the Ridgeway tavern in Aurora, where Reed worked, or in front of his cousin's home half a block away. Meeker admitted going home for a gun after quarreling with Reed in the tavern. Meeker was charged with murder. Police held the tavern owner, Carl Richmond, and a patron, John Plum, 169 Middle avenue, Aurora, as witnesses, and padlocked the tavern.

DR. EFFERDING DIES; PHYSICIAN, LEGION LEADER

Dr. F. Victor Efferding, a physician with offices in the Merchandise Mart, died yesterday in Henrotin hospital. He was 42 years old. Dr. Efferding had practiced in Chicago since 1926. He formerly was house physician at the Brevoort hotel. Dr. Efferding was a past commander of Federal post, No. 437, of the American Legion. Surviving are his widow, Edythe, 900 North Michigan avenue, and two children by a former marriage, Floyd, 11 years old, and Patricia, 10. Funeral services will be held in the chapel at 7659 Jeffery avenue tomorrow at 11 a. m. Burial will be in Dubuque, Ia.

Charlottesville, Va., Nov. 26 (AP).—Prof. and Mrs. Giuseppe A. Borgese, devoting a week-end of their honeymoon to sightseeing in the Blue Ridge mountains, planned to return to Washington tomorrow. Prof. Borgese, 57 years old, of the faculty of the University of Chicago, married the former Elizabeth Veronika Mann, 21, youngest daughter of Thomas Mann, author and self-exile from Germany, in the chapel of Princeton university last Thursday. The couple met a year ago and agree it was "love at sight."

HAROLD SELTZER DIES; WPA HEAD IN CITY 3 YEARS

Harold K. Seltzer.

Harold K. Seltzer, for the last three years Chicago director of the Work Projects administration, died yesterday in St. Luke's hospital. He entered the hospital two weeks ago suffering from severe headaches which sometimes lasted as long as 10 days. A brain tumor was disclosed. His wife, Ivy, and daughter Miriam, a student at Frances Shimer School for Girls, were at his bedside when he died.

Mr. Seltzer, who was 40 years old, came here from a post as program director for the Tulsa [Okla.] Y. M. C. A. to work as a field man for the Illinois Emergency Relief commission. He became assistant director of WPA under Maj. A. R. Lord, and when the latter was named assistant state director, succeeded to the post of Chicago director.

Mr. Seltzer, at the peak of WPA activity, had 124,000 men under his direction. The present rolls carry 61,000. Three months ago, when the state districts were reorganized, his direction was extended to include all of Cook county, in addition to the city. V. A. Anderson, assistant director, has been in charge during his illness. Mr. Seltzer lived at 432 Park avenue, Glen Ellyn.

ASK GOVERNMENT HEALTH PROGRAM ON A HUGE SCALE

Washington, D. C., Nov. 27 (AP).—Asserting that society has to pay the bill for the waste in human efficiency caused by ill health, the American Youth commission today recommended a federal financed public health program of a scale never before attempted in this country.

The commission, headed by Owen D. Young, is a private organization of business men, educators, and others. It was formed in 1935 by the American Council of Education.

The health recommendation followed a commission proposal last week that the federal government undertake a special public works program to reduce unemployment among persons under 25 years of age.

An adequate health program, the report said, would necessitate financial support from the federal government.

WALLACE'S FARM POLICIES RAPPED BY BROOKHART

The farm policies of Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace will be a vital issue in the next session of congress, Smith W. Brookhart, former United States senator from Iowa, asserted yesterday. Brookhart addressed members of the Little Business Men's League of Chicago in the Hotel Sherman.

Brookhart charged that Wallace's methods of crop control have caused deplorable conditions in agriculture and unemployment. He said the McAdoo-Eicher bill for price fixing and surplus control, now on the senate calendar, is the only farm relief bill ever offered which does not place a huge tax on the government treasury.

LOOP SPEAKEASY OPERATOR WHO SLEW WIFE DIES

A. Robert Raymun, who shot and killed his wife, Leola, in the City Hall Square hotel in 1933 and later was acquitted on a charge of murder, was found dead of a heart attack last night in a rooming house at 69 West Ohio street. Matthew Harr, a pensioned war veteran, discovered the body. He said Raymun came to his room at 3 a. m. intoxicated and asked to sleep there. Harr then went out and did not return until evening.

Raymun, whose real name was Alfred R. Raynum, according to army discharge papers he carried, was a former University of Minnesota student who became the owner of three loop speakeasies during prohibition. Detectives Robert J. McCarthy and William H. Schroll said that Raymun, who was 41 years old, last lived in a hotel at 347 North Clark street.

Police Stop Truck Driver—for Which He's Thankful

Joseph Messinger of Whiting, Ind., thought he was in for trouble yesterday when a police squad stopped his gasoline-laden trailer truck at South Chicago avenue and 79th street. But before he could speak the policemen shouted that the rear of his cab was on fire. Firemen, quickly summoned, extinguished the flames before they reached the 6,450 gallons of gasoline carried on the trailer.

ITALY LIFTS BAN ON GASOLINE AS RESERVE RISES

ROME, Nov. 26 (AP).—The Italian government announced today gasoline will be available in limited quantities for private automobiles and motorcycles beginning Dec. 8. Operation of private automobiles was halted at the outbreak of the European war to save gasoline. A ministry announcement said fuel reserves now have reached a "satisfactory level." Motorists will be allowed eight gallons monthly for their cars.

Close Stations on Sundays.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Nov. 26.—Jugo-Slav motorists in a few days will be restricted from buying gasoline for their cars over the week-end. From Saturday evening to Monday morning Saturday evening to Monday gasoline stations will be closed to all except doctors and government officials.

Dr. L. J. Stabler, Southern California U. Dean, Dies

Los Angeles, Cal., Nov. 26 (AP).—Dr. Laird J. Stabler, 74 years old, dean of the college of pharmacy at the University of Southern California, died today of a heart attack. He had been connected with the university for 45 years. Dr. Stabler was a pioneer in the development of a cracking process for the refinement of gasoline. He also was credited with important discoveries in manufacturing carbon briquettes as fuel, making lubricating oil from petroleum, and in bleaching English walnuts.

C. Y. FREEMAN IS EXPECTED TO HEAD EDISON CO.

Counsel Is Likely to Succeed Simpson.

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

Charles Yoe Freeman, Chicago attorney, will be chosen to succeed James Simpson as chairman of the Commonwealth Edison company, it was forecast last night. Mr. Simpson died Saturday.

Freeman is general counsel of the Edison company, a post to which he was appointed by Chairman Simpson. He was also the ranking executive officer of the company under Mr. Simpson, directing the management of the properties in the absence of the chairman. He is 61 years old.

Directors of the company would not discuss their plans yesterday. Persons familiar with the company's affairs, however, regarded the selection of Freeman as certain.

Next Meeting Dec. 7.

The next meeting of the Edison board is scheduled for Dec. 7. It was believed that an earlier meeting might be called to fill the vacancy resulting from Mr. Simpson's death.

Walter J. Cummings, chairman of the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company and a member of the Edison board, left yesterday for New York. It was not expected that the board would meet until his return later this week. Cummings, it is believed, will confer with representatives of the New York banks regarding the selection of the new chairman. The eastern banks are important stockholders in the company.

Company's Counsel Since 1937.

Freeman has been general counsel of Edison since 1937. He has maintained his connection with the law firm of Wilson & McIlvaine since his appointment to the post, but has given most of his time to the company's affairs.

Freeman has been practicing law in Chicago since 1902. He joined Wilson & McIlvaine in 1932. Prior to that time he was a member of the firm of Dent, Dobyns & Freeman.

He was born in Lockport, N. Y. He received his early education in the public schools in Denver, Colo. He was graduated from Princeton in 1899 and received his law degree from Northwestern university in 1902.

He married Esther Dodge in 1906. They have three children, Charles Yoe Jr., Henry Dodge, and Donald Henry. The Freeman residence is at 1450 North Dearborn parkway.

Follow Simpson's Policies.

The selection of Freeman as chairman of the Edison company will mean a continuation of the management policies initiated by Chairman Simpson, it was said. It was the apparent intention of Chairman Simpson to groom Freeman to take over the chairmanship when the need arose. The shift is not expected to result in other important changes in the executive personnel. Edward J. Doyle is president of the company.

Earlier the names of Britton I. Budd, president of the Public Service Company of Northern Illinois, and George A. Ranney, chairman of the Peoples Gas Light and Coke company, were mentioned in connection with the chairmanship. These possibilities appear to have been eliminated. Ranney was vice chairman of Edison before the separation of the management of Edison and Peoples Gas. Public Service is an Edison subsidiary.

May Drop Field Position.

It is uncertain whether the position of chairman of the executive committee of Marshall Field & Co., which Mr. Simpson held, will be filled by the directors of the company. The position was created for Mr. Simpson when he resumed an active rôle in the company's affairs a few years ago. It may be allowed to lapse. Frederick D. Corley is president and chief executive officer of Field's.

In respect to the memory of Mr. Simpson, the Chicago, Evanston, Oak Park, and Lake Forest stores of Marshall Field & Co. will close this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

Death of Simpson Recalls His Big Business Successes

The death Saturday of James Simpson, chairman of Commonwealth Edison company, ended a remarkable business career. Business associates yesterday recalled that Mr. Simpson had sought to retire from active business nearly 10 years ago.

In 1930 he gave up the presidency of Marshall Field & Co., accepting the position of chairman of the board in the belief that he would be relieved of active executive duties. Two developments intervened to prevent the realization of that hope. In 1932 he was prevailed upon to accept the administration of the big Chicago utility company when it was decided to replace the old Insull management. He continued in that position until his death, directing a major financial reorganization of the properties which was completed only a few months ago.

Completes Finance Program.

After accepting the chairmanship of the Edison group he became intensely interested in the financial problems of the properties and did not relax his activities until the program that he had initiated was completed. It was due largely to his driving force that the company stuck to the program that he had laid out. As a result the group of properties today is regarded as without equal in financial standing and prestige in the utility industry.

Associates said that Mr. Simpson gained much personal satisfaction from the knowledge that the plans had been brought to a successful end. He gave detailed attention to work involved in the program. Only a short time before his death he saw the completion of his plans when he personally negotiated with Frederick H. Ecker, president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company for the refunding, at lower interest rates, of 114½ million dollars of Edison company bonds.

That was the largest private sale of bonds in the history of the utility industry. It was Simpson's shrewd bargaining ability, bankers agreed, that enabled the company to obtain the lowest interest rate in its history on the bonds.

Makes Personal Offer.

Some of the preliminary negotiations that led to the closing of that deal were recalled yesterday. Simpson's offer was made personally to Ecker. The insurance company head demurred at the interest rate proposed. He declared that it provided only a small return on the company's funds. At that point Chairman Simpson observed that he wanted personally to put the proposal to Ecker before taking negotiations with other insurance companies. The suggestion that the deal might be taken elsewhere was sufficient to bring Ecker around to the terms proposed by Simpson.

The resumption of an active executive rôle in the Marshall Field & Co. organization, after his first retirement in 1930, also prevented him from realizing his original aim of getting out of active business duties.

Simpson Takes Active Part.

Early in the depression it was decided that a major reorganization of the merchandising company should be accomplished. The program was begun under the late James O. McKinsey, who was elected chairman of the company to succeed Mr. Simpson. Midway in the program McKinsey died. Thereupon Simpson again took an active part in the company's management. The program included several major changes in the company's business. The wholesale division, which had been a major part of the business, was largely eliminated, and other divisions were reorganized. It was the last phase of this reorganization—the recapitalization of the company—that was engaging the attention of Mr. Simpson when he died.

WINTER WHEAT OUTLOOK WORST IN FORTY YEARS

Drouth Is Unabated in Western Areas.

The drouth which has prevailed over a large area of the winter wheat belt, resulting in the poorest crop outlook in 40 years, remained unabated last week. Lack of rainfall has been most pronounced for three months or more in Nebraska, Kansas, Olahoma, and northern Texas.

Chicago grain experts asserted that altho beneficial rains have improved crop prospects in states east of the Mississippi river, these states do not provide enough wheat for their own needs. Little or no moisture has been received in states west of the Missouri river, where most of the commercial crop originates.

Has Little Market Effect.

Drouth news had little effect on the course of grain futures prices last week. Market observers said the dry weather and the government loan program tended to restrict selling of wheat, while a threat of wheat exports from Canada curtailed buying.

Announcement that the government would lend farmers 55 to 57 cents a bushel on this year's corn crop had little effect on the market. The federal offer is 13 to 17 cents more than Illinois and Iowa farmers may obtain by selling their corn in the open market.

TRUST CHARGE FILED AGAINST CELOTEX FOR PURCHASE OF STOCKS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26 (AP).—The federal trade commission announced today that it had issued a complaint charging the Celotex corporation, Chicago, with violating the Clayton act by acquiring the capital stock of a major competitor, Certain-teed Products corporation, New York.

The complaint alleged that about Jan. 1, 1938, the Celotex corporation acquired from Phoenix Securities corporation 9,946 shares of Certain-teed's preferred stock and 109,946 shares of common stock, and that about March 1, 1939, it acquired an additional 40,000 shares of Certain-teed common from the General Investment corporation.

The commission alleged that these purchases had the effect of "substantially lessening competition in interstate commerce between the two companies; of restraining interstate commerce in the sale of structural insulation and acoustical material."

Consolidated Coppermines Reports Record Earnings

Consolidated Coppermines corporation, with headquarters in New York, yesterday reported the highest quarterly earnings from its own mining operations in the company's history. The pre-audit income for the third quarter, ended Sept. 30, was $442,793.

SUGAR CONTROL MAY BE DROPPED FOR 1940 CROPS

Washington, D. C., Nov. 26 (AP).—Federal farm officials have virtually decided to lift all restrictions in 1940 on the production of sugar by farmers in the continental United States. This is planned despite concern expressed in state department quarters that such action might adversely affect trade with Cuba, Porto Rico, Hawaii, and the Philippines.

Under past New Deal farm programs, domestic sugar producers have been limited to the production of about 30 per cent of the nation's needs. The balance was imported from the island possessions and Cuba.

Recent discussions with leaders in the domestic sugar industry, farm officials said, have indicated that a majority of the producers desired to be unhampered by restrictions in 1940. A formal announcement of agriculture department plans is expected to be made soon.

ASSOCIATED GAS REQUESTS LARGE LOAN FROM RFC

New York, Nov. 26 (AP).—The Associated Gas and Electric company, thru the N. Y.-Pa.-N. J. Utilities company, a principal subholding subsidiary, has applied to the Reconstruction Finance corporation for a $26,500,000 loan, one of the largest ever asked of the RFC by a private utility, it was learned today.

Associated Gas is asking the loan to pay the balance of back taxes due the federal government under terms of the recent settlement of a tax dispute with the United States treasury, and, in addition, for bond redemptions and new plant construction.

FOREIGN ORDERS LIKELY TO PROP STEEL INDUSTRY

Possibility that foreign steel orders may take up the slack in domestic orders was reported yesterday by the magazine Steel in its weekly review of the industry.

Domestic orders this month, according to Steel, will be well below the October total, altho unfilled business should carry heavy production thru January.

Meantime, the Thanksgiving holiday had little effect on operations, and the national production rate held at its recent peak of 93½ per cent of theoretical capacity.

STOCK PRICES REACH NEW LOW FOR NOVEMBER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Nov. 26.—Stock trading was dull again last week. Prices averaged lower, erasing the gains of the preceding week and establishing a new low level for November.

Many traders were said to be too confused about the future to take on new commitments despite the rising tide of business. All the old uncertainties remained and another new one popped up when President Roosevelt hinted that new taxes may be levied to finance the increased outlay for national defense.

War stocks gave poorer performances than other sections of the list.

SLEEPING ACCOUNTS.

Is there a new ruling among stock brokers to make a monthly service charge for inactive accounts? I have done business with a broker for several years, but never until the last two months has he made such a charge. What is the charge for?—M. L.

Answer: Stock brokerage firms in recent years have resorted to assessment of certain charges against inactive accounts to defray clerical and other expenses incurred in servicing them. With trading in securities comparatively inactive for long periods, many houses found their commissions were inadequate to pay the expense of carrying dormant accounts.

There is no stock exchange ruling establishing a schedule of rates for these service charges. The New York Stock exchange has been considering adoption of a rule providing for the assessment of inactive accounts by member firms for service rendered, but no definite action has been taken. The Chicago Stock exchange has no such ruling and has none under consideration.

Various methods are followed by different houses in making these service charges. One levies a charge of $6.25 on accounts inactive for a quarter year with debit or credit balances of less than $1,000.

Another computes the charge each month and assesses $1 on accounts with more than $1,000 balance and $2 for those with less. Other stock brokers omit any service charge if they have received at least $10 in commissions from the account during the quarter and charge a flat rate of $6.25 on other inactive accounts with less than $1,000 balance.

The service charge covers the cost of bookkeeping, safe keeping of securities in vaults, rendering periodic statements, notifying of and collecting dividends, transferring securities, and other necessary clerical work.

Although some firms have used the service charges for several years, other houses have adopted them only in the last year. Brokers contend that the costly servicing of inactive accounts makes the charge necessary in a period when trading is at a low ebb.

VEGA.

As a stockholder of Lockheed Aircraft corporation I received on Oct. 27 some shares of the Vega Airplane company as an initial dividend at the rate of one Vega share for 15 shares of Lockheed held. What does Vega do?—G. S.

Answer: Vega Airplane company is a subsidiary of Lockheed and is engaged in developing airplanes and manufacturing parts for the parent company.

Col. William G. Edens, Chicago banker for many years, will observe his 76th birthday today at the home of his son, William M. Edens, 2308 Park place, Evanston. Col Edens retired in 1931 from the vice presidency of the Central Republic Bank and Trust company.

Ship Sinkings Held Blow to Foreign Trade

New York, Nov. 26 (AP).—The latest wave of merchant ship sinkings has moved some foreign trade authorities to reëxamine export prospects in a darker light.

Boosting of war risk insurance rates, curtailment of neutral shipping, closer figuring on cargo hazards, and a moderate rise in prices of certain imported commodities, notably rubber, were among the immediate economic effects on this side of the Atlantic of the heavy destruction of merchant craft from mines and submarines last week.

Offsetting in large part hopes for expansion in United States exports under war stimulus, at least for the immediate future, was recognition the struggle has snarled international trade with many new obstacles, foreign commerce experts said.

Monetary Controls Restrictive.

After the collapse of the international gold standard and credit system in 1931, the exchange of goods and services among nations was hampered by a jungle growth of monetary controls, special tariffs, import and export quotas, and other devices for regulating trade.

Some countries, notably Germany, replaced the old free exchange with primitive barter methods, pleading necessity for lack of gold and foreign currency. The United States, thru its reciprocal trade policy, attempted to lead the world back to freer exchange methods.

There was some relaxation of controls on the recovery of commercial dealings from 1933 on. Now, however, the vast export-import business faces a new complex of wartime controls, supplemented by the increase in shipping hazards and indications warfare on sea may play a more strategic part in this conflict than it did in 1914-'18.

Allies Impose Trade Controls.

Profiting by experiences in the world war, the empires have been quick to clamp down on trade, both to insure adequate war supply and to hamper flow of materials to Germany. Among regulations adopted since August are:

1. Use of "blocked sterling" by England to ration foreign exchange and conserve purchasing power abroad for war needs, restricting the free supply of exchange to the open market.

2. Contracting for entire British empire supplies of such basic commodities as wool, sugar and cocoa, and price regulation, diverting exports from the world market to empire war needs.

3. Scrutiny of commerce for detection of contraband and rationing of the movement of major raw materials and foodstuffs into neutral countries to frustrate German lines of supply thru noncombatant areas.

Champion Paper's Profit Much Higher in 12 Weeks

New York, Nov. 26 (AP).—Champion Paper and Fibre company and subsidiaries for the 12 weeks ended Nov. 12, today reported consolidated net income of $405,428, after charges, equal after preferred dividend requirements to 53 cents a common share. Net income was $162,848, or 10 cents a share, a year earlier.

CHICAGO PLANTS SPEND BIG SUMS FOR EXPANSIONS

31 Establishments to Be Improved.

Industrial expansion in Chicago since Nov. 1 has involved a total outlay of $3,300,000 on 31 industrial establishments, E. P. Queri, recently appointed manager of the Chicago Association of Commerce, disclosed yesterday. Queri was brought from Los Angeles to Chicago to aid in the industrial expansion campaign fostered by the association's Greater Chicago program.

E. P. Queri.

One of the largest improvements is that of the Acme Steel company, which is spending $1,500,000 for equipment and the enlargement of its plant near Riverdale.

Not Due to War Orders.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. is spending about 1 million dollars on a warehouse near 35th street and Ashland avenue on property formerly owned by the United States Steel corporation.

This expansion includes additional cold rolling equipment to bring its cold strip capacity more in line with the output of its mills that produce the hot steel. The expansion was not caused by anticipated war business, it was said.

The Sears-Roebuck development is to provide for storage and distribution to stores in the Chicago area.

New Industry for Chicago.

A new industry for Chicago is the Ehret Magnesia Manufacturing company, which has taken a plant on 65th street in the Clearing industrial district. Queri said the company is one of the country's largest manufacturers of magnesia and asbestos products.

Rose Bushes Put to Bed

Nov. 26, 1939.

ROSE bushes in the gardens at the Du Page county farm have been put to bed for the winter and tucked in beneath coverings of garden soil and straw to protect them against the cold.

The hybrid tea roses were dug up and buried in shallow ditches. The plants were laid lengthwise in the ditches and covered with about 18 inches of soil. The trenches have tile drains in the bottoms to make sure no water stands in them. Later some strawy manure will be thrown over the top for further protection.

The bushes will be dug up and replanted as soon as the ground can be worked next spring.

Method Is Changed.

In years past these roses have been hilled up with dirt and left in place over winter. The dirt was hilled up around the bushes about a foot high. The tops froze back, but the bushes were not permanently injured. They soon grew out when the dead wood was pruned back in the spring. The gardeners say this method of protecting the bushes is satisfactory, but that it takes more work than to dig them up and bury them.

Hybrid tea roses bloom nearly all summer. They are preferred to most other roses at the farm because of the long blooming period, but they are less hardy than other kinds and freeze out during the winter unless well protected. When dug up and covered in trenches over winter, they soon start growth when set out the next spring.

Hybrid perpetual roses are more hardy. They will stand severe winter weather without any protection.

The rambler roses have been covered with soil to shield them from the cold, but they were not uprooted. The bushes were bent over and covered with six to eight inches of dirt. Straw will be put over the top. All this will be left on the bushes until early next spring.

Old Wood Cut Away.

The old wood was cut away from the ramblers last summer after the flowers were gone. This was to permit better flowering canes to develop for next year's blooms. The blooms form on year old wood. These plants are more hardy than the hybrid tea roses and will often live over winter without any protection when grown in a sheltered place.

The buddleia bushes also have been taken up for the winter. This is a shrub that sometimes is called summer lilac because the blossoms resemble those of a lilac and it blooms all summer. The bushes have been stored in a cellar where the air is damp. The roots were covered with damp peat moss. This shrub has beautiful flowers, but is not a hardy plant and is likely to be frozen back to the ground if left outside over winter.
